AFL Executive Council Approves Aid to Russia But Soviet Alliance "Unthinkable"

Chicago, Ill.—There is no present justification for the sending of an American expeditionary force to the European war zone nor is it the intention of the Government to do so, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declared at its mid-summer session here.

The Council termed an American alliance with Soviet Russia "unthinkable," but because Russia is now fighting Nazi Germany, which constitutes the chief threat to the safety of this country, the Council deemed it expedient to extend "such assistance as we can" to the Russian forces.

The statement on foreign policy highlighted the council meeting which also brought forth important declarations on many other pressing problems. A summary of these follows:

1—Warning against the dangers of inflation to the workers, the Council approved the recommendations of President Roosevelt for legislation to control advances in prices and the cost of living but it urged Congress to hedge the grant of new powers within clearly defined limits to prevent complete Federal regulation of industry.

2—Anticipating a tragic depression after the defense emergency unless steps are taken now to forestall it, the Council asked President Roosevelt to name a committee on which labor, industry, agriculture and the Government would be represented, to draft a program for the prompt expansion of peace production to be put into operation the moment defense orders lag.

3—Urgent demands for the authorization by Congress of an immediate 600 million dollar defense housing program to alleviate the "shocking and intolerable" conditions under which thousands of defense workers are now forced to live.

In its statement on foreign policy, the Council said in part:

"The Executive Council fears that the change in the war picture may give rise to a tendency among some enthusiasts to clasp the hand of Soviet Russia as a friend and ally in the defense of democracy. Already the Communists in this country are trying to propel America into close alliance with Soviet Russia. This is unthinkable. The teachings and practices of Communism are just as noxious and unprincipled as the teachings and practices of Nazism. Soviet Russia is not the willing ally of the forces of democracy in this war. She was forced into the war and her present friendly gestures to Great Britain and America are dictated by desperation and hypocrisy. The Communists are pretending to be friends of democracy because they need the help of democratic nations. Basically, however, Communism is a form of totalitarianism which is inimical to democracy.

"With this much understood, our nation can proceed to weigh the question of whether and to what extent we should render aid to Soviet Russia. Frankly, even though we may regard the Communist regime in Russia as the enemy of democracy, we cannot escape the fact that Russia is now also the enemy of Nazi Germany. Our whole defense program is based upon the threat of aggression from Nazi Germany. Therefore, if Russia can defeat Germany or even delay the Nazi program of world domination, America would gain thereby. Practical considerations consequently make it expedient that we extend such assistance as we can to help Soviet Russian fight the Nazi war machine.

"Our Government should do this for practical reasons alone and without the slightest pretense that the United States and Soviet Russia are friends or can be friends. At the same time our Government should guard against the possibility that closer ties with Soviet Russia may give her agents and adherents in this country wider opportunities to undermine American democracy from within.

"The war is involving America in increasingly complex situations and unless we steer a straight course and adhere closely to our principles and proceed with our eyes open we may find ourselves confronting dangers even greater than we have as yet foreseen.

"American occupation of Iceland came somewhat as a surprise but the necessity of taking this action to strengthen the defenses of the United States and to protect the shipment of munitions to Great Britain was clear to all. This defense move cannot in any sense be considered equivalent to the sending of an expeditionary force into the war zone. The Executive Council does not believe that present conditions justify or require the shipment of American troops to the scene of battle in Europe nor does it believe that it is the intention of the Government to do so."

Defense Workers Must Have Homes

GOOD housing for defense workers is just as important, if not more, than materials for defense, stresses Harry C. Bates, Chairman of the American Federation of Labor Housing Committee in the August issue of the Federationist:

"The American people have made up their minds that defense comes first. They were told that if there is to be enough aluminum to make bombers, they had to give up aluminum in their households. Rich and poor, they responded to the call and piled high thousands of truckloads with aluminum wares taken down from kitchen shelves and walls. They did this because they knew that defense production has prior claim on aluminum as it has on steel, machinery, electric power and many other materials.

"But it takes more than materials to make planes and guns. It takes labor to turn out defense production. And unless provision is made for the health and comfort of workers called to do defense work, production of planes and guns will suffer.

"That is why good housing for defense workers is just as important, if not more, than materials for defense industries.

"Defense production requires of each worker every day and every hour of his employment full contribution of his strength, his energy, his dexterity and his skill.

"When a man works a full shift with overtime on shipbuilding or aircraft assembly, on tank plate welding or on gun barrel machining, he puts into his job all he has got. When he comes home after a full day of defense work, he is licked. His strength is wrung out of him, his brain is tired, his nerves are shot. And yet, when he is back on the shift the next day, he has to be in topnotch form once again. His work may call for precision but, above all, it calls for speed. To do well this rush work under pressure, he must be refreshed and alert.

"That is why each defense worker must be provided with a home in which there is enough space for his rest and leisure. These he cannot get where there are two families doubled up in one home, where there is no privacy, no adequate ventilation, not even the least requisites for healthful, comfortable living.

"Labor is the prime mover of defense. But defense workers cannot be stored away like so many tools in a tool chest between production shifts. Unless there is good housing for men and women doing defense work, the quantity, quality and effiency of defense production will be gravely threatened.

"The Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor is in close and direct touch, through its nationwide network of local housing committees, with the housing needs in each and every community in which defense production is concentrated.

"Our thorough canvass of the situation has brought to us forcefully the urgency of the defense housing need. In one community after another we find that a critical situation exists.

* * * *

"In hundreds of defense areas in the East, West, North and South of the United States, a grave housing crisis already exists. Every month, every week and every day this crisis will be becoming more acute. Workers who are naturally and justly concerned with the health and welfare of their families will more and more often refuse to subject their wives and children to the hazards of disease and epidemics imminent in defense towns in which there is such overcrowding, squalor and lack of adequate sanitary facilities.

"Labor shortages for vital defense productions have been widely discussed. We have found that most of these shortages are local. While there are enough skilled workers to man the necessary key jobs, they may not be available in particular towns and cities.

"When workers fail to take jobs because they cannot find a place to live, defense production will lag.

Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen:-

Four your information, we have been specifying and using metal lath and plaster walls and ceiling construction for many years, and have found them to be more satisfactory than any other type of construction for all interior use than any other material which we have tried. We have altered and erected numerous theatres in the City of St. Louis, and specifically wish to note that on the Pageant Theatre we had a free standing fluted wall 23'-0" high, on the Mikado Theatre, a wall of 29'-0" high, and on the Esquire Theatre, walls at 32'-0" high.

We also wish to state at this time that we enjoy receiving your monthly pamphlet, as it is both instructive and useful.

Respectfully yours,
SOL. ABRAHAMS & SON CONST. CO.

SUSPENDED CELOTEX ACOUSTICAL CEILING CONSTRUCTION

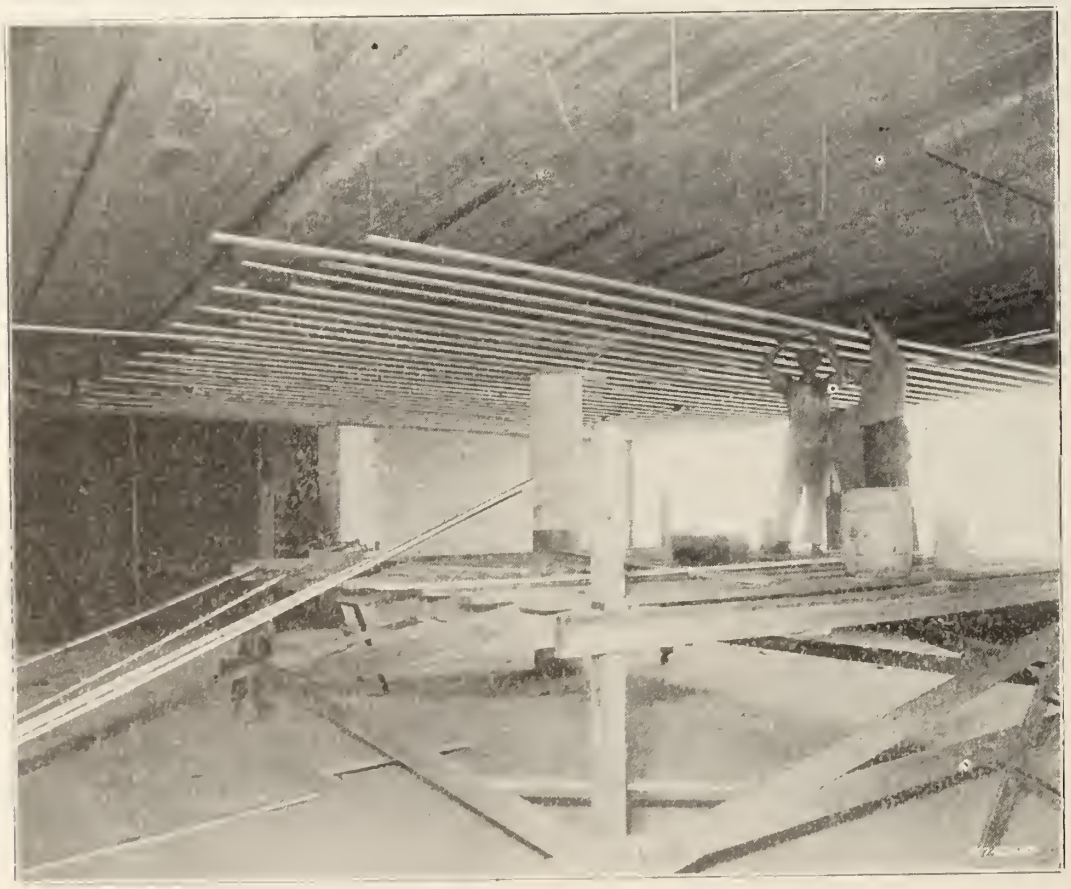

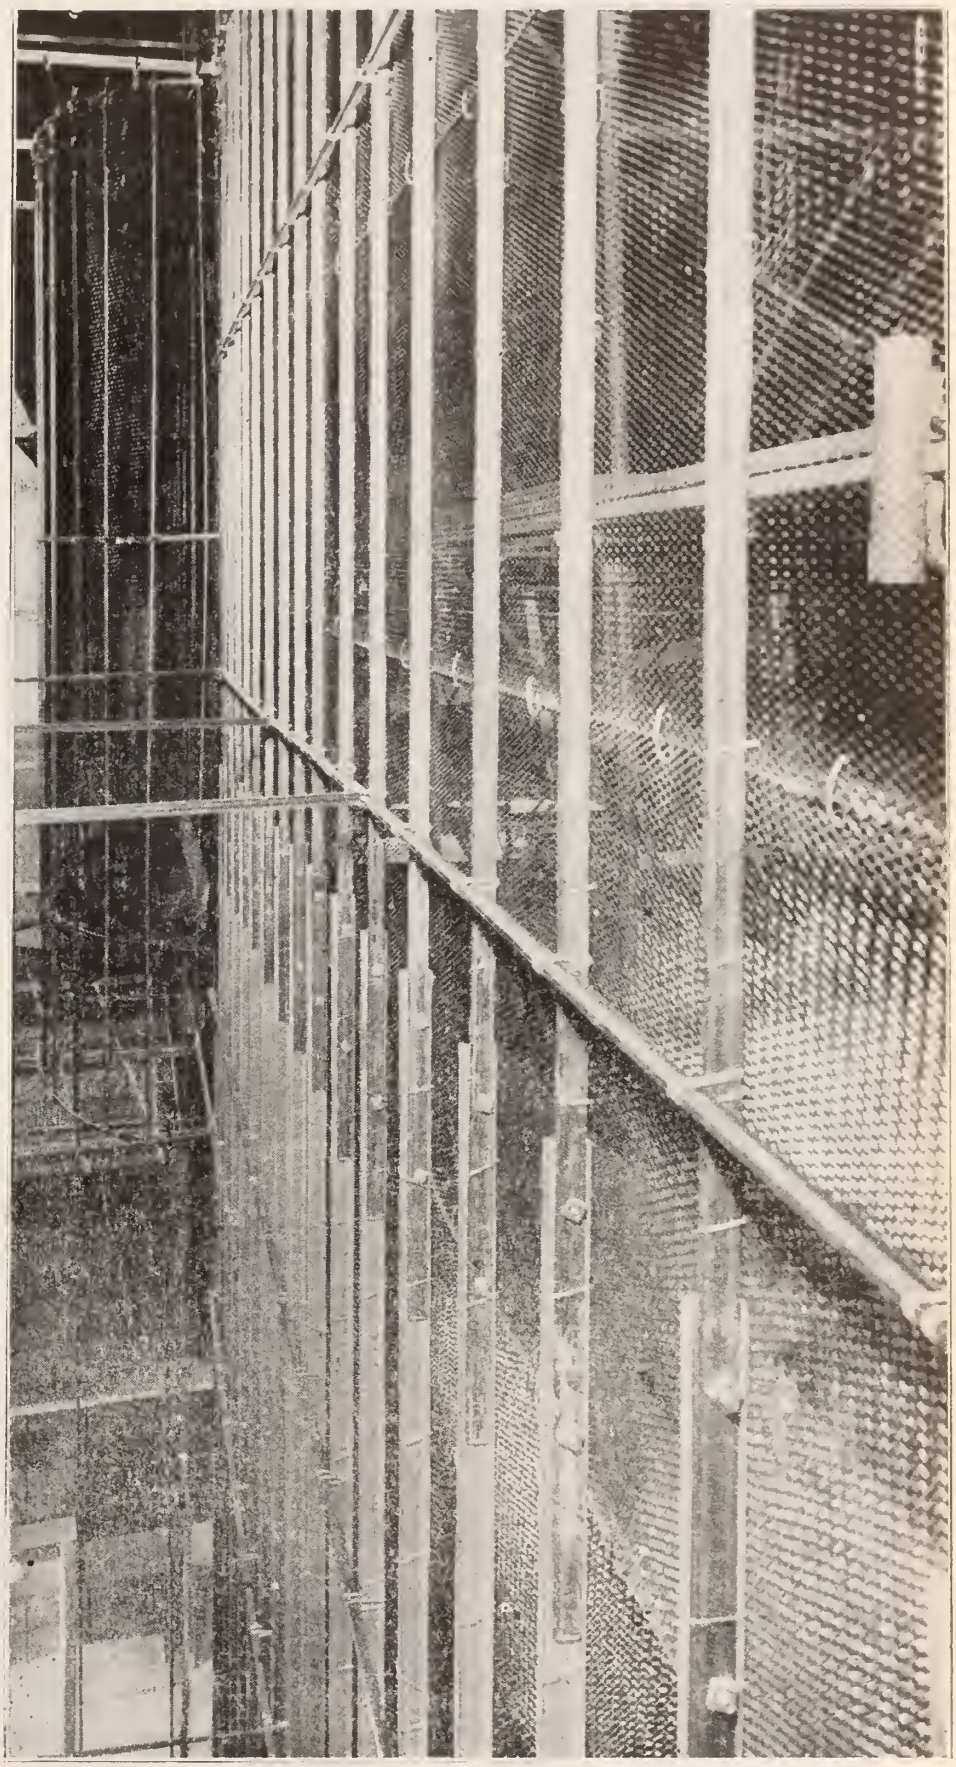

Photo shows two members of Local 73, (John Johnson and Hank Beermann) attaching ¾ in x 3 in. wood strips to 1½ in. carriers, by driving large nails thru the wood strips and bending over top of carriers. Wood strips are spaced 12 in. o. c.; carriers, 3 ft. o. c. Celotex blocks are then screwed to the wood strips. In this construction, lathers erect the hangers, carriers, and wood furring. Carpenters attach the Celotex blocks to the wood strips with screws.

SOLID METAL LATH AND PLASTER PARTITIONS 32 FEET HIGH

This photo shows a partial view of one of two metal lath partitions (free standing), 32 ft. high and 125 ft. long, erected July, 1941, by members of Local 73. Notice 6 ft. 8 in. door opening at lower left corner of photo. This gives a fairly good comparison with partition height. Two-inch channels, 12 in. o. c., were used for lower half of these partitions and one-inch hot-rolled channels for upper half. Note upper inch channels bolted to lower two-inch channels, with two 3/8 inch bolts at each lap. Holes were drilled two inches deep in concrete ceiling to receive inch channels. Temporary horizontal braces, five feet apart, were used and removed after brown coats were completed. Plaster was about 3½ inches thick at bottom and two inches at top, thus pyramiding for greater rigidity and stability. Many partitions of this type have been used for years in St. Louis, some higher than illustration. Never has one failed to give complete satisfaction.

On the preceding page we are publishing a letter Mr. Leo F. Abrams, of the Sol. Abrahams & Son Const. Co., St. Louis, wrote to the Metal Lath Manufacturers Association, describing how they have constructed unusually high partitions of metal lath and plaster in certain theatres in the St. Louis area and for many years have found metal lath and plaster walls and ceiling construction for all interior use more satisfactory than any other type of construction and material.

ST. LOUIS ZOO ILLUSTRATIONS

Illustrations from the St. Louis Zoo are continued in this issue. A large descriptive booklet, with more than two hundred illustrations, many of which are in color, and other interesting facts about the Zoo, can be obtained by sending 50 cents in cash, check, or money order (no stamps), to Mr. George P. Vierheller, Director Zoological Gardens, Forest Park, St. Louis, Missouri.

Above is the Bird House. To the right, two sixteen-foot giraffes. The Antelope House, encrusted by artificial red granite boulders, modelled from natural red granite boulder formation found near St. Louis, can be seen behind the giraffes.

Four polar bears that have lived together in this pit at the St. Louis Zoo since its completion in 1921, are shown below. The rock formation in this pit is a replica of limestone formation found on the bluffs of the Mississippi River.

NEW YORK STATE FEDERATION CONVENTION ANALYZES POLITICAL, SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

History was made at the 78th convention of the New York State Federation of Labor, held the third week in August, at Syracuse, New York, reports the Building Trades Union Press.

In a stirring speech to the delegates, President Thomas J. Lyons of the Federation called upon delegates to be on the alert against those who would exploit the present emergency in order to undermine our democracy:

"The enemies of democracy must be rooted out of their rat holes, whether they be in mansions or tenements. They must be removed from positions of power and influence in legislative bodies, in public office, in unions, in courts, in newspaper or wherever they may show their heads. Only thus will our people be armored in mind and in spirit."

He cited Labor's objective: "To see this democracy so furthered and so developed that the great mass of our people will enjoy the fruits of economic democracy as well as political democracy."

Labor will do its utmost to avoid strikes in defense industries, he assured the government, but the American Federation of Labor would "fight to the last ditch" against any attempt to pass anti-strike bills. "The strikes which are occurring now are caused almost without exception by the desire of certain profiteering employers to flout the labor laws of the land."

On army strike-breaking training, President Lyons had this to say: "This kind of Fascist mimicry must be stopped at once. We want our soldiers trained to smash tanks and not picket lines."

Someone could have done a better job on defense planning: "For months we have been told by government officials and leading industrialists that there could be no shortage in oil or aluminum. Then suddenly we learned that the need for these commodities is acute and that the public and the workers in those and related industries must adapt themselves overnight to a situation which could not possibly have developed overnight. Such instances as this illustrate the imperative need to give organized labor and the consuming public a strong voice in the establishing of defense priorities. Otherwise we are headed for chaos."

On the high cost of living he had this to say: "I think it is our job to get behind the President's Price Control Bill. This is at least a step in the right direction. There should also be established some sort of fact-finding board, on which labor would be represented which could apply pressure on the monoplies which are using this emergency as an excuse for arbitrary rises in the price of consumer goods."

Passage of the President's price control bill and all other measures to curb profiteering were favored by the Federation. It strongly opposed discrimination against any worker because of race, color or creed; and in special resolutions, denounced Negro discrimination and anti-semitism.

Aid to Great Britain, Russia, China and all other nations fighting the Nazis was favored by the delegates; also the Roosevelt-Churchill 8-point program for a democratic peace based on the destruction of Nazi tyranny; that Labor be represented at the peace conference after Hitler's inevitable defeat.

Major, political, social and economic problems facing our nation were analyzed with keen understanding by the New York State Federation of Labor, as can be noted in proceedings of their convention, and, as the Building Trades News reports, "in each instance, it cast its strength on the side of democracy."

COURT RULES ELIMINATING RURAL SLUMS IS PUBLIC PURPOSE

In upholding public housing in rural areas, the Supreme Court of South Carolina handed down the first decision of its kind in America. Involved was rural housing for Darlington County, S. C., which is one of the areas in which USHA rural housing demonstrations were started. The court upheld:

1. Housing for farm families and the elimination of rural slums is a public purpose.

2. Rural public low-rent houses are exempt from taxation under the state constitution and the South Carolina Housing Authorities Law.

3. Rural housing does not discriminate in favor of farm families of low income.

Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, hailed this as a great step forward in the drive to extend the benefits of the low-rent housing program to low-income farmers and their families.

Loans and annual contributions are made to county or regional housing authorities to assist in providing decent homes for low-income farm families, under the rural housing program of the United States Housing Authority. An unfit house is eliminated for every new home built.

Supreme courts of twenty-eight states have to date handed down forty-eight favorable decisions, in unbroken line, upholding local slum clearance and low-rent housing programs. The decision of the South Carolina Supreme Court in this case was based on the same solid foundation as other favorable decisions in city housing programs.

THIS ODD LITTLE NAIL IS THE REASON

GOLD BOND FLOATING WALLS RESIST PLASTER-CRACKS

IT'S a simple thing. Just a nail, a strip of felt, and a square of metal lath. But until Gold Bond research engineers developed the patented "Floating Wall" nail, plaster walls and ceilings that would not crack were thought impossible. Now every plasterer and lather who uses the "Floating Wall" nail with Gold Bond gypsum lath and plaster eliminates nine-tenths of the causes for plaster-cracking! Yet the cost is so low this finer complete wall system can be used in everything from a deluxe apartment hotel to the most modest country cottage.

Get the Best First from Gold Bond

This better wall system is only one of Gold Bond's many contributions to the plastering industry. You always get the best things first from Gold Bond. National Gypsum Company's busy research laboratories developed famous Gold Bond Micro-Plastic Plaster—made of purest gypsum rock, tube-milled for easier working. They produced the exclusive Gold Bond metal arch bead that makes attractive, low-cost arches on the job—without special tools. Today the Gold Bond line means better results, easier handling, lower costs and increased profits to plasterers and lathers everywhere.

More than 300 trained Gold Bond representatives are at your service—and when Gold Bond is specified exclusively, one organization accepts responsibility for all wall and ceiling materials.

Write today for 1941 Gold Bond Handbook giving detailed specifications on the "Floating Wall" and other Gold Bond Wall Systems. NATIONAL GYPSUM COMPANY, BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

NO SPECIAL EQUIPMENT IS NEEDED TO APPLY GOLD BOND FLOATING WALLS. Any good lather can drive the patented nails between the panels of gypsum lath—leaving plaster base free from rigid attachment to framing. Plastering is done in the usual manner. In spite of these advantages the only extra cost is the price of the nails.

WILLING COOPERATION OF LABOR HELPED DEFENSE PROGRAM, SAYS GREEN

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Addressing a mass meeting of 20,000 here and a nation-wide radio audience, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared in his Labor Day address that the free working men and women who have built America "will now defend it any cost."

"I am proud of their intelligence, their courage, their patriotism and their record," Mr. Green said of the five million A. F. of L. members. "On this Labor Day I call upon the entire nation to join me in saluting the loyal army of workers who are succeeding in making America the arsenal of democracy."

Earlier in the day, participating in a coast-to-coast broadcast with President Roosevelt, Ernest Bevin and other labor leaders, Mr. Green said:

"Speaking for the five million members of the American Federation of Labor, I assure the American people that there is no more loyal and thoroughly aroused body of men and women in the nation today. We of the American Federation of Labor appreciate the benefits of freedom. We love our country. We are for the national defense program 100 per cent. We do not hesitate and we never have hesitated to express our hate of totalitarianism in all its forms.

"Manifesting this spirit, American workers in the past year have accomplished production miracles. They have contributed their skill, their sweat and their creative genius to the tasks set for them. With willing hands and high hearts they have broken all production records. More than 99 per cent of American Federation of Labor members have refrained from striking on defense jobs for any cause.

"These men in overalls, these patient, sturdy, unconquerable workers in munitions factories, in shipyards, in aircraft plants, and on construction jobs, now constitute America's first line of defense. They do not wear uniforms, they do not bear arms but they are fighting their country's battle right on the job. They are free men and they are determined to remain free. I ask the American people to recognize and acknowledge their loyalty, their constructive accomplishments and their unbeatable spirit. I pledge to the American people that the great, free army of American workers will never let them down."

In his brief address, delivered before a huge outdoor audience, Mr. Green made these chief points:

1—That the willing cooperation of labor has made possible the great advances and progress in the national defense program.

2—That President Roosevelt has kept his pledges to the workers and that, therefore, they follow him gladly with full confidence in his policies and purposes.

3—That at the conclusion of the war labor representatives at the peace conferences will demand and obtain full restoration of trade union rights for the workers of Europe now under Hitler's rule.

4—That American labor is taking the lead in the solution of such grave problems as lack of defense housing, the threat of defense unemployment, rising living costs and the preparation now of plans to expand peace production the moment the defense emergency ends.

5—That nothing would be better calculated to promote public confidence and help the defense program than a united labor movement in this country. Mr. Green reiterated the A. F. of L.'s standing offer to make peace with the CIO.

Mr. Green concluded:

"We are not losing sight of the fact that the main problem and the immediate one is the winning of this war. America already is too deeply involved in this war—and rightfully so—to be able to countenance a Nazi-Fascist victory. We cannot afford to let the enemies of democracy gain complete conquest of Europe, Asia and Africa because we know that then the Western Hemisphere becomes their next goal. The safety of America, the preservation of our democratic way of life and the progress of the human race depend upon the utter defeat of totalitarianism.

"That is why the five million members of the American Federation of Labor have rallied to the national defense emergency and have accomplished miracles of production. That is why I confidently expect this great army of loyal workers to go on to even greater accomplishments during the coming months.

"We of labor have faith in ourselves. We have faith in our principles, in our Government and in Divine justice. We refuse to believe in the triumph of evil. We know that a new day is coming when peace and progress will once again be restored to humankind. We are not sitting back idly waiting for that day. We are pitching in with everything we have to make it come quickly and, if the necessity arises, we are ready to fight to the last drop of blood to achieve our goal."

———o———

"All labor must know that the American Federation of Labor has provided effective machinery to protect the vital interests and the urgent needs of workers in the solution of the defense housing problem.

"The American people must know that in these activities the American Federation of Labor holds full cooperation with the national defense program to be its first and foremost objective."

OHIO BUILDING TRADES ACT TO BRING ALL CONSTRUCTION UNDER AFL

The Ohio State Building and Construction Trades Council in a state-wide meeting, attended by international representatives of affiliated trades, laid plans for the pooling of its manpower and resources in a campaign to tie up with a similar drive being conducted among the various trades by the American Federation of Labor.

One most important phase of this meeting was that in addition to cementing their own structural set-up, the building trades crafts initiated a movement to bring about a similar pooling of resources within the Building and Construction Trades Department, thus working in conjunction with the American Federation of Labor.

Several thousand delegates from building trades unions in every city in the state adopted a resolution to set up their plan on a national basis by appealing to the Building and Construction Trades Department to call a similar meeting for all affiliated trades at some centrally located city, as soon as possible.

An adequate monthly assessment, to be levied for twelve months on all affiliated building trades unions working under closed shop conditions, was also recommended, so that sufficient funds will be available to conduct this organizing campaign to bring all construction work to American Federation of Labor tradesmen.

Millions and millions of dollars worth of defense construction throughout the United States is being done under a closed-shop agreement between the government and the American Federation of Labor unions, President John E. Breidenbach of the Ohio State Building and Construction Trades Council pointed out, and the time is ripe for the establishment of similar conditions on all private jobs. Similar conditions can be established, if the Department and its component members did as effective a job of selling the benefits of union operation to the industry as it had to the government.

Without waiting for national action, the council voted to put the plan into action, each building trades council to select a committee of five men to work actively with President Breidenbach and Secretary Robert O. Dale in state-wide organization work.

RAISING WAGES NO CAUSE FOR INFLATION

"Labor will have to be on guard against the attempt to bar wage betterment by raising of the cry that pay increases bring price inflation," states the Trades Council Union News, St. Louis.

"Wage increases that enable Labor to share fairly in the nation's rising income are only elementary justice and, if industry and government show the proper spirit, should cause no undue price rises."

New Economical Clip System

Equally Practical for any Wood or Fireproof Construction

Celotex Anchor Clip System Makes Beautiful Crack-Resisting Walls

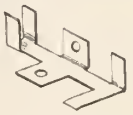

TRY THIS NEW, thoroughly tested method of building clipped gypsum lath walls. The Celotex Anchor Clip System is simple and not expensive. Does away with cracks by compensating for swelling, shrinking, twisting, and warping of wood framework. Recommended for use with Anchor Gypsum Lath and Celotex Anchor Plasters.

Easy to Apply

Celotex Anchor Clips are nailed to the face of the studs. Only about 25% as much nailing is required as for ordinary nail-on construction. Economies of time and labor permit building Anchor floating walls for little more than the cost of ordinary walls.

Only 3 Types Needed with Wood Studs

Anchor WF Clip is used to start lathing at base ground.

Anchor W Clip attaches lath to wood studs and joists.

Anchor T Clip with one wing snipped, for use on internal angle.

CEILING ON WAGES WOULD MEAN SLAVERY

(The Union Gazette, Santa Clara County, Cal.)

"There are plenty of advocates who insist that a ceiling to wages and abolition of strikes are what we need above all else at the present time.

"The fact of the matter is that neither of these slavery doctrines is necessary or even desirable for the United States at the present time. To abolish the right of workers to quit their work, when they deem it justifiable would be to re-establish involuntary servitude, in violation of the proclamation of emancipation as well as violating the provision of the constitution of the United States which put an end to chattel slavery.

. . . "What should be recognized is that wages are determined primarily by the cost of living. If a ceiling is put on the necessities of life that is the only ceiling that is necessary."

LIVING COST RISES; WORKERS SUFFER LOSS

Living costs have been moving upward at an alarming rate in recent months, showing an increase of 3½ per cent between March and June of this year.

The Department of Labor index in June was at a higher level than officials there predicted for September of this year. Food prices over the second quarter rose 7½ per cent, and by July had increased still further, standing 9½ per cent above a year ago. Preliminary reports for the last two weeks of July indicate that this trend in food prices is continuing.

Other retail prices have also gone up rapidly; on July 1, furniture was 12½ per cent above a year ago; cotton wash goods, 8 per cent higher; and floor coverings, 6 per cent higher.

It is generally felt that unless this upward price movement is soon brought under control, serious inflation will result with great loss to workers.

It is estimated that an annual income of $2,126 is required to maintain a minimum adequate living standard for a family of five at today's prices. This means a wage of $1.02 an hour with a 40 hour week and full employment. A bare subsistence living standard for a family of four can be maintained with an income of $1,406 a year, or 67½ cents an hour."

BOND YOUR FINANCIAL OFFICERS

Yearly bond renewals will now be accepted, to take effect October 15, 1941. A letter has been written to each local secretary, notifying him that this is the time to place bond on the local's financial officers.

A few of our local unions have failed to avail themselves of this protective measure and we urge that the bonding of their financial officer be taken up at their next meeting.

WHERE ARE WE?

By Ruth Taylor

The Nazi-Soviet War has brought confusion to many. But Organized Labor still stands firm. "What will Labor say?" people ask. "Where does Labor stand?"

Labor believes what it has always believed—that democracy is the way of life which it will follow to the bitter end, that this form of government alone offers a chance for the individual to progress, an opportunity for each generation to rise above itself and to go on, always in an ascending scale.

Labor believes that totalitarian regimes, whether they be Nazi, Communist or Fascist, are parisitic growths—like fungi feeding upon the rights and liberties of others, sapping the many for the perpetuation and benefit and glorification of the few.

Labor believes that the basic theories of the Communists and the Nazis are the same, that their procedures are the same, that only the order of their method is different—and that they are both based on false premises and carried out in the spirit of injustice and contrary to the laws of God and man.

Labor is not swayed by the Nazi slogan of "Holy War." It remembers not only the persecution of the Jews, but the false trials and hamstringing of the Catholic Church, and the stultifying of the Protestant Church and the martyrdom of Niemoller and his confreres. Nor is it moved by the right about face of the Communists. It remembers how it has suffered from their boring from within, the sabotaging, the wholesale endorsement of the Nazi slogans, the oppression of the workers in Russia, the persecutions of all religious sects—Labor will not listen to the crocodile plea to approve autocracy which uses the cloak of democracy where no democracy exists.

Labor believes that the sign of good government is the fulfillment of the promises made in the Bill of Rights; that when a government is tyrannical, and denies those rights to any group of its citizens, it no longer should be considered representative of the people and that any government not representative of the people must perish.

Labor believes in aiding democracy—in fighting for freedom, in all out aid to Britain. Let's not waste time quibbling—while tyrannies attack one another, let's increase production so that we may help bring ultimate defeat to Hitler, and at the same time speedily rearm for the defense of this country and the preservation of that form of government where, without regard to race, creed or color, the human dignities shall forever be preserved and Labor Day stay emancipated.

THYSSEN TELLS HOW HE BACKED HITLER

(Labor)

An article purporting to tell the inside story of Fritz Thyssen's dealings with Hitler is appearing in one of the McFadden publications. It may or may not be accurate.

Ten years ago, Thyssen was the biggest of the "big shots" in German industry. He was making enormous profits, but he wasn't satisfied. He figured that if he could crush Germany's fine trade union movement he could increase his gains.

So he rounded up his fellow industrialists, raised a huge slush fund and put Adolph Hitler in power. Thyssen and his associates thought Adolph was a "nut" who could be pushed aside after he had completed the task of murdering trade union officials and looting trade union treasuries.

But Thyssen wasn't as smart as he imagined. Hitler smashed the labor movement, but he also took charge of industry, and when Thyssen objected he had to flee for his life. No one should waste sympathy on Thyssen. He got what he deserved. Nevertheless, has "confession" may serve as a warning to employers in other lands, including our own, that totalitarian dictatorships don't pay in the long run.

We SELL PLASTERING, TOO!

In consumer magazines, building, and architectural trade papers, Pittsburgh Steel Company sells plastering as well as Steeltex! We believe, as you do, that there is no other medium as well adapted for perfect monolith wall and ceiling surfaces as plaster. When applied on Pittsburgh Steeltex the inherent beauty of plaster is indefinitely preserved and protected. For Steeltex is scientifically designed for the plastering craft with full consideration of the problems of the trade. Its advantages are many. Write for complete information.

BAR-Z-SYSTEM Hollow PLASTERED PARTITIONS

are Easier to ERECT and to PLASTER

Lathers and plasterers welcome the Bar-Z-System of building hollow plastered partitions. The rigid sheets of Bar-X-Lath can be readily tied to the Bar-Z-Studs. These are steel channels two inches to six inches in width and of any length that suits partition heights. They are set on floor runners and are fastened at the top to ceiling runners.

Steelcrete Bar-X-Lath has four pairs of No. 11 rods welded to each other through the meshes. The extra rigidity, together with the perfect keying qualities of the Diamond Mesh, simplifies application of the scratch coat and assures a more uniform plastering job.

SAL MASO ON DEFENSE SAVINGS COMMITTEE

Public spirited citizens in each state have been singled out by the Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to aid in the sale of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. Among those chosen in New Jersey is Sal Maso, our Sixth Vice President, who received the following telegram from Secretary Morgenthau:

"The Treasury Department is planning to organize a committee of public spirited citizens in each state to encourage participation by all the people financing the National Defense through the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. As a major aid to the Treasury program I will be much gratified if you will accept membership on the Defense Savings Committee for the State of New Jersey."

In accepting membership on the Defense Savings Committee, Brother Maso stated that he will "cooperate in any way possible to encourage participation by all the people in this area in financing National Defense through the purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps."

UNIONS AND DEMOCRACY SYNONYMOUS

In countries where liberty and equality prevail as ideals of human relations, there the labor movement is strong, declares the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America in its annual Labor Sunday Message. Where they are not applied to industrial relations, there unions are few and weak. Where democracy has been discarded, as in the totalitarian states, there the independent labor union movement has disappeared. The existence of these contrasting situations is not a mere coincidence. Democracy, by the very law of its nature, must extend into industrial and economic as well as political relations. Totalitarianism, by an equally inherent law of its nature, must destroy an independent labor union movement. Industrial civilization must either extend more democratic control to those who produce and to those who consume economic goods and services, or it must center total power in a political state. There seems to be no other alternative. If we cannot have the spirit of Christian democracy in industry, all democracy is jeopardized.

MATERIAL POSSESSIONS NOT OUR COUNTRY'S REAL WEALTH

WHAT constitutes the "wealth" of the United States? There probably would be a number of answers available to this question, depending upon whom you ask and how much constructive thinking is done in providing such answers. There are those of course who say that our national "wealth" consists of the money being "hoarded"—as they call it—in our banks. But this is not the nation's "wealth"—far from it. The millions upon millions of acres of land in this country of ours constitutes a portion of our "wealth." The sons and daughters of our 140,000,000 of people constitute the national "wealth." Business enterprises operated through individual initiative help to contribute to the sum total of our "wealth." Employed millions of men and women constitute another potential factor when we get to summing up what we have in the way of "wealth" in the nation. Health and happiness which some enjoy and more could enjoy if they set out to enjoy them, may be counted as part of our country's "wealth."

Yes, we are wrong when we think of wealth only in terms of cash or gold. We have more gold buried in the hills of Kentucky than exists everywhere else in the world collectively. But this does not avail us anything because it is buried away under lock and bolt and key and guarded by the military. Some folks say, quite thoughtlessly, that if we took all of the nation's "wealth," as they call it, and divide it up equally then everyone would be rich or at least comfortably fixed. But that isn't the answer, either.

When you talk about dividing up the nation's wealth you have to take into consideration the necessity for dividing up brains and private and personal initiative that men and women possess, too. And who can conceive of any workable plan that would result in a division of brains among all of us? It simply cannot be done and we live in a fool's paradise who think that by sitting down and figuring it all out along this line we can provide a Utopia here in America.

The rolling acres of farm land, the swiftly moving streams, the natural resources hidden away in hills and mountains, private investments in industry to afford all of us better things and cheaper commodities, unselfish service in behalf of others—these constitute our national wealth and there is no escaping these conclusions, however much theories are evolved and promises made to the contrary. Take our children—the hope of this and every other generation! We afford them a schooling to enable them the better to serve their generations. They are "wealth"; not the miser's hoard, secretly hidden beneath the kitchen floor. Ah, yes, it is a waste of good time to be talking about dividing up the national wealth so that everyone might get a slice. The slice that we received wouldn't last very long and then where would we be? The answer of course is obvious—we would be right back where we started from. Business and industry and labor afford us all that we have in the way of wealth of a material nature and employment. Take these out of our national life and where do we stand? Or to quote the poet, "Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey—where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Manhood, womanhood, childhood—these constitute our real nation's wealth. They endure! They survive! They are sure! All else, whether it be all of the gold in all of the mountains of the world or the resources of our great banking houses, can produce nothing except where the human element, Labor, enters into the picture.—The Plasterer.

PRIEST URGES AMERICANS TO STRENGTHEN UNIONS

Passaic, N. J.—The only safeguard for the workers of America, the only security for the permanence of the American way of life, is to increase and strengthen the American trade union.

That statement was made here by Rev. John Monaghan, chaplain of the Association of Catholic Trade Unionists, New York, before the St. Nicholas Forum.

"Through the unions," Father Monaghan declared, "the present social gains have been attained. Trade unions are marked as enemies already by the American Hitlers, who will save America for a dollar a year and sabotage its labor in the name of defense.

"Any state that must be saved only by the destruction of trade unions is not worth fighting for and certainly not worth saving."

The best security against revolution is in constant correction of abuses and the introduction of needed improvements.—Whately.

WHEN LABOR AWAKENS

What will happen when the dull, slow-moving and as yet unorganized workers finally do awaken and join hands with those who already are united in their labor unions.

Practically every principle for which organized labor has ever contended and which finally has been realized is now generally recognized to be for the general good of society as a whole. That is the most convincing proof that could be offered to demonstrate that labor is on the right road to betterment.

Will labor ever awaken? The answer is that labor is already beginning to awaken and there seems little likelihood that labor ever will be lulled back into a sound sleep again. On the contrary, there seems to be every likelihood that the portion of labor still sleeping will be awakened by the rule and merciless jolts they are getting from those who imagine they will never wake up.

DON'T GET SCARED

The Monroe Doctrine and the Good Neighbor Policy are in firstclass condition. The Western Hemisphere seems to be tied together in twenty-one solid knots and any one that attempts to untie any of the knots will regret it. Japan will be taken care of if she gets rough with our possessions in the Pacific.

Price control may sound very wicked, but the object is to prevent runaway prices and inflation.

Taxes are going to be higher than anyone ever expected, but no one expects that they will be any higher than they look right now.

Defense production has attained terrific speed and the OPM in Washington is simply crying for more so that there will not be less.

"Priorities" isn't a very bad word—it simply means the Government asks for the preference in its orders for defense deliveries.

There wasn't any talk about aluminum in the last war and the greater part of this war can be run without it—but it is a preferable material for certain defense machines; so housewives didn't object to throwing in their pots and pans. (Organized Labor)

THROUGH THE CELLOPHANE

Have you ever bought sliced bacon, packaged in cellophane with the wrapper striped red so that the bacon looked meaty and richly streaked with lean? Then have you gone home and pulled off the wrapper to discover that the product was not as lean as you had expected?

If you have had such an experience, then a red letter day for you will be October 1, 1941, Consumers' Guide, publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture, reports.

On that day a new set of regulations will outlaw this practice for all meat products entering interstate commerce. The new regulations have been promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture under authority of the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

Other practices which are strictly not cricket have also been ruled out of bounds, such as the use of tinted cellophane wrappers on hams and other smoked meats which might give people the impression that the product is more richly flavored and appetizingly smoked than it is.

Safeguards which have been required by the Federal meat inspection service remain in force; meat and meat products intended for interstate or export shipment must continue to be Federally inspected; labels on meat products must be approved by the meat inspection service; label statements and pictures must conform to Federal standards of truthfulness; cereal in sausage and similar products must be declared on the label.

The new rules, generally stated, require that meat or meat food products containing two or more ingredients must list the ingredients on a label in the order of their predominance. If there's more water in the sausage than cereal, then water goes ahead of cereal.

"The regulations do not make it any less necessary for consumers to use their wits when they go shopping. Label statements can mean nothing to consumers if they don't read them and act on them," says the Consumers' Guide.

CHECK YOURSELF

Gentleman—One who can disagree without being disagreeable.

Pessimist—One who, when he has the choice of two evils, takes both.

Optimist—One who looks out in the dark and sees a light which isn't there.

Cynic—One who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

Bore—A man, who, when asked about his health, tells you all about it.

Self—What you are when you think nobody is looking.

Diplomat—A man who remembers a woman's birthday, forgets her age.

NEW WOOL LABELS

Here's what the "Wool Labeling Act of 1939," which became effective on July 14, 1941, says must now be on all labels of wool products, as reported by Consumers' Guide, publication of Consumers' Counsel Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture:

(a) the amount of new wool in the fabric;

(b) the amount of reprocessed wool;

(c) the amount of each non-woolen fiber in more than 5 per cent of the fabric;

(e) the total percentage of all other fibers;

(f) the percentage of weighting, filling, and other adulterating matter;

(g) the name of the manufacturer and/or the distributor or seller.

Under the terms of the Act, when the word "wool" is used it means virgin or new wool that has not been used before. "Reprocessed" wool is wool that has been woven once, then un-woven and re-woven over again without having been worn or used in the meantime. "Re-used" wool means just what it says; wool that has been used. It is also called "shoddy."

This type of label enables the buyer to know what kind of fibers are in woolen materials but does not give exact information on the wearing quality of the material.

AFTER DARK

The Ohio Medical Journal reports a capsule rich in Vitamin A which will help the motorist to see in the dark and minimize the effect of glare on the eye.

"People just aren't built to see in the dark and it accounts for the fact that 60 percent of all auto fatalities happen at night," says Edward M. Rice, Secretary Street and Highway Lighting Safety Bureau, New York City. But probably the awful toll of night deaths will be cut when authorities use the taxes we pay for safe roads to:

1. Modernize antique lighting on city streets.
2. Provide modern safety lighting on dangerous, heavily travelled highways.

And when the motorist and pedestrian realize the limitations and dangers of driving after dark.

SELL IT WITH HONKS

Sales messages in the form of trade tunes are now being used, reports Forbes Magazine. When you hear "Keep the Homes Fires Burning," it will most likely be a coal truck lumbering by (not the fire department on a mad dash); while "Rock-a-Bye Baby" in dulcet tones, can be expected from the horn of a baby food maker's truck.

WIT AND HUMOR

A Scot stepped into a telegraph office and picked up one of the blanks. He looked at the clerk behind the counter.

"How much," he asked, "is a telegram to Chicago?"

"A wire to Chicago," responded the clerk promptly, "will cost you five cents a word for ten words. There will be no charge for the signature."

The Scot looked musingly at the clerk.

"There will be no charge for the signature?" he repeated after a pause.

"That's right," said the clerk.

The Scot rubbed his forehead with the pencil.

"Well," he finally stated, "suppose you just send my signature."

The clerk grinned.

"All right," he cried, "I'll do that for you. What's your name?"

Another pause on the part of the Scot.

"Well," he fnially murmured, "I may not look it, but I'm an Indian. And my name is, I-Won't-Be-Home-Till-Friday!"

A lady was training her Chinese servant to answer the door bell. She went outside, rang the bell, and the servant answered the door.

The next day she was worried by a continual ringing of the bell. At last, when no one answered the door, she opened it herself and found her servant on the step.

"Whatever are you doing, Li?" she asked.

"Yesterday you foolee me, now I foolee you," was the reply.

The policeman's son was studying music. "How many beats are there to the bar in this piece of music, Dad?" he asked.

The boy's mother spoke up. "Fancy asking a policeman a question like that!" she said. "Now, if you'd ask your daddy how many bars to the beat, he might be able to tell you!"—Sogehen.

Small Boy—"What is college bred, Dad?"

Daddy (with a son in college)—"They make college bread, my boy, from the flower of youth and the dough of old age."

Two slightly inebriated men met on the street.

Said the first—"Do you know what time it is?"

Said the second—"Yes."

"Thanks," said the first as he staggered away.

An old man heard about a treatment that would restore his youth. The medicine was a certain extract made up in pills. He bought a box. But instead of taking one every day, he swallowed the whole boxful one night before going to bed.

Next morning the family had great difficulty in waking the old man. At last he rolled over and rubbed his eyes.

"All right, all right," he grumbled. "I'll get up. But I won't go to school!"

A class in natural history was reciting. The teacher asked, "Where is the home of the swallow?"

A long silence, and then a hand waved.

"You may answer, Robert."

"The home of the swallow," declared Robert, "is in the stummick."

ST. LOUIS ZOO ILLUSTRATION

"Happy", one of the two giant pandas at the St. Louis Zoo, nibbles on bamboo shoots, the principal food of these rare animals in their native mountains of Western China.

Defense Workers Must Have Homes — Continued from Page 1

"In many communities housing conditions would not be acute today if it had not been for the consistent opposition of special interests to the low-rent housing and slum clearance program initiated by the American Federation of Labor and supported by it during the past six years. While Congress enacted this program into law in 1938, sufficient funds have never been authorized to make possible a low-rent housing program for low-income families proportionate to the national need.

* * * *

"A. F. of L. local housing committees, whose work is coordinated nationally by the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor, have been set up by our central labor unions. These committees provide a channel for information, representation and action on all matters pertaining to housing in every town in the country.

"The development of the defense program has placed new and heavy responsibility on our State Federations of Labor, central labor unions, building trades councils and, most important of all, on our local housing committees.

"Skyrocketing rents is one problem which calls for prompt relief to workers in defense communities. The Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor has placed in the hands of local housing committees a model rent control law which is designed to prevent rent profiteering. Aggressive support by all labor of this proposal is the best protection to workers against usurious practices of landlords and rent abuses which have flared up in many defense communities.

THE WORKER

By JOHN J. BUCKLEY

This is the song of labor and toil—
Men who work and carry through
In dusk or dawn, heavy the moil,
Earnest in thought, handiwork true
Though wars come and kingdoms fall
And despots crush to despoil.
Their song is heard above it all,
In honest labor, work, and toil.

When work is done and homeward turn
To hearths where love shines from afar
And dreams fulfilled in hearts that burn
Of fellow creatures, though discord jar
The world, yet within their eyes
A dread and hope that never dies;
Beyond the whims of tyrants and kings,
But worthier, more noble things.

There are songs of those good and brave
And broken; hymns of those in fear,
The forlorn, oppressed, and the slave
In darkened days, who seek cheer
Where meekened voices, in dread and gloom,
And evil nations thrive and bloom.
The worker desires not that; inflame
Our desire, God's Peace, In Thy Name.

Brief is the day and short the hour.
What does it matter who claims the glory
Higher than all in divine dower?
Work, Rest, and Peace is all life's story.
Song in the heart, song from the soul
Binding our lives, holding together,
Come time or tide, whatever we weather,
Singing the bounty of God, forever.

VOL. XLII. OCTOBER, 1941 No. 2

REPORT OF DELEGATES TO THE THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR HELD AT SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 1, 2, 3, 1941

The convention was called to order at 10 a. m., Wednesday, October 1, in the Olympic Bowl of the Olympic Hotel, Mr. Harry Carr, President Seattle Building and Construction Trades Council, presiding.

The invocation was pronounced by the Reverend Jerome L. Toner, O. S. B., Ph. D., St. Martins College, Lacey, Washington.

The convention was welcomed to Seattle by the Honorable Earl B. Milliken, Mayor of Seattle, and Mr. Herbert Kimsey, Chief of Police of Seattle, who addressed the Wednesday morning session briefly.

President Coyne then declared the Thirty-fifth Convention in session for such business as may properly be transacted. He addressed the delegates as follows:

In opening this, the Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department, may I ask for Divine guidance and may we legislate wisely and well that those whom we represent will be better served for the purpose of maintaining that life and way of living which we still, and hope in the future, will be preserved for our people.

Many incidents of an internatioal nature which have occurred since we last met in convention have placed our peace-loving country in a precarious position to such an extent that now, for the past year, the one purpose that has been outstanding in the efforts of organized labor as represented by the Building and Construction Trades Department has been cooperation and a desire to aid in the national defense to assure ourselves that we, too, will not suffer as workers have who live across the water.

We have observed, since the dogs of war were loosed, that the first group of people in each and every country that has been invaded to feel the effect of the evil minds of the war lords has been organized labor.

These labor organizations have been destroyed; the members have been thrown into concentration camps; they have been forced to labor unlimited hours of toil with less than half the food necessary to sustain body and soul, while we, in this free American country, have enjoyed our liberties to the extent that during the past year we have been able to sit down with agents and representatives of the government and negotiate an industry stabilization agreement which guarantees to our membership the freedom which we all so much enjoy.

And may I say in passing that, while I feel that this is indeed an honor and privilege to organized labor in the United States of America, that I also want to express myself in no uncertain manner that organized labor has left nothing undone to give full and complete cooperation to our government in this period of stress.

Labor as represented by the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation has made its contribution to the successful effort for national defense by its acceptance of the agreement referred to and by their complete cooperation with the representatives of the government in every department, bureau and service.

I now again declare the Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor open for such business as may properly come before it. The law of the Department requires that the President appoint an Auditing and Credentials Committee in advance of the opening of the convention. In accordance with that provision the following were appointed to serve on that committee:

William J. Moran, Chairman
William F. McCarthy
Laurence Foley.

The various committees were then appointed by President Coyne, after which he introduced Mr. Ray C. Kirkpatrick, Special Assistant on Labor Relations to the Administrator, Federal Works Agency, who addressed the meeting.

The Reverend Jerome L. Toner, who rendered the invocation, was again presented to the delegates and he delivered an interesting and constructive address.

Numerous letters of regret for their inability to attend and address the convention, were read from various officials of the United States Department of Labor, Federal Works Agency United States Housing Authority, War Department, the Secretary of the Navy, United States Maritime Commission, the Under-Secretary of War, and other Navy Departments, the Associated General Contractors, and others.

A number of resolutions were introduced and will be touched upon later in this report.

REPORT OF PRESIDENT COYNE

President Coyne reported on his activities since the last convention of the Department, held in New Orleans. The most important item in his report consists of a detail of action taken toward elimination of W. P. A. competition on construction work:

Works Projects Administration—Upon the suggestion of Assistant Secretary of Labor Tracy I got in touch with Howard Hunter, Administrator of the Works Projects Administration, and had a very successful conference which resulted in providing for a future conference to be held at which the Resident Members of the Executive Council of the Department were present.

At this conference proposed legislation was discussed which was designed for the purpose of merging what remains of the Public Works Administration and the Works Projects Administration into a single unit to provide for the type of public works to be undertaken, namely, construction and finance of federal and non-federal projects, also to make grants of funds to states for such projects to be not in excess of 45% of estimated cost with a further provision that projects may be undertaken in the interest of national defense and national security under such conditions as the President may prescribe.

It was suggested that the projects may be operated by force account or by contract or by a combination of both.

It also provides that persons employed on the projects shall receive wages not less than the prevailing rate of wages in the locality where work of a similar character is currently being done, and that there shall be consideration given to the nearest source of an ample labor supply.

The bill guarantees to workers engaged on these projects the right of selforganization and collective bargaining and further provides for the establishment of an administrative unit to handle the labor relations problem as they may apply to wages, hours and working conditions between the employer and employees which may arise from time to time on the projects.

This is the first time any encouragement has been received from the Works Projects Administration since there was stricken from the original Act the provision for the payment of the prevailing rates of wages. If it is possible to have legislation enacted of the nature which has been herein outlined and which is now under discussion between the committee representing the Building and Construction Trades Department and the Administrator of the W. P. A. and his aides it will indeed be a step toward providing employment after the defense program has been completed.

The delegates heard with deep regret the passing away of National Referee William P. Carroll, reported as follows.

CASE 36—DEATH OF WILLIAM P. CARROLL, NATIONAL REFEREE

It is with deep regret that the Executive Council calls the attention of the delegates to this convention to the death of the National Referee, William P. Carroll, on Friday, September 26, 1941, notice of which was received only since the executive officers of the Department arrived in Seattle. Condolences and floral tributes were forwarded to the family of Mr Carroll.

In view of the death of Mr. Carroll the Department is without a national referee and the matter of a selection of a successor was discussed at length by the members of the Council. It was finally agreed that the selection of his successor be left to the incoming Executive Council of the Building and Construction Trades Department.

REPORT OF EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Executive Council reported on forty-three cases, mostly of a routine nature.

Details of agreements reached between the Government Agencies, building and Construction Trades Department, and the Office of Production Management concerning uniform overtime rates, uniform shifts, non-stoppage of work, subcontractors, predetermination of wages, application of agreement, apprentices, and other data pertaining to cooperative measures instituted by the Department on defense work, were reported in a recent issue of THE LATHER, so it is unnecessary to include them in this report.

Hearings before the National Referee were postponed, due to the illness of President Coyne. A further report on this item is included later on in this report. During President Coyne's illness, the Executive Council voted temporary authority to Secretary-Treasurer Rivers to render decisions in jurisdictional disputes.

REPORT OF SECRETARY-TREASURER RIVERS

In accordance with the provisions of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Building and Construction Trades Department, I am submitting my report and the financial report of this Department covering the period from July 1, 1940 to June 30, 1941.

In compliance with the action of the Convention of this Department I forwarded the financial report, audited by a Certified Public Accountant, to the Presidents of affiliated national and international unions. I have also submitted a copy of this report, the books and records, to the Auditing and Credentials Committee, appointed by President Coyne, for examination and verification that they may report their findings to this Convention.

I have fully cooperated and assisted wherever possible the President of this Department in carrying out the activities of the past year.

On March 1, owing to President Coyne's illness, a special meeting of the Executive Council was called to consider taking appropriate action with regard to making decisions on jurisdictional questions and other important matters. The Executive Council directed that I make decisions and that I should discuss with the local members of the Executive Council further important questions prior to acting upon same. I acted in that capacity until May 8 when President Coyne was able to return to the office.

With regard to Legislation, there were several bills presented in Congress, particularly the Vinson Bill, which would have been detrimental and injurious if they had become enacted into law. I called conferences and did everything possible to have this injurious legislation defeated.

I wish to extend my appreciation to the Officers of the International Unions and their Washington Representatives; and I wish to commend Mr. George Meany, Secretary-Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. William Hushing, Chairman of the Legislation Committee of the American Federation of Labor, for their cooperation and assistance to this Department in defeating these bills.

I have called several conferences of the Washington Representatives for the purpose of having proper wage adjustments made by Governmental Agencies, the Bacon-Davis Division of the Department of Labor. We have been successful to a great degree in these wage adjustments.

In connection with my duties I am submitting the following data with reference to the issuance of Building and Construction Trades Council Charters, total affiliates of the Department, and membership of the National and International Unions.

Mr. Sidney Hillman, Associate Director General, Office of Production Management, gave a lengthy address in which he complimented the workers in the Building and Construction Trades for the small percentage of strikes (one-half of one per cent.) on defense work, and highly commended the officers of the Department for their splendid cooperation with the Government during this time of National emergency. He urged still greater efforts to prevent strikes on defense work, with the statement that even one day's delay on some essention defense work might prove fatal to the safety of our nation.

Mr. James P. Mitchell, Labor Relations Division, Quartermaster Corps, United States Army, also addressed the delegates.

Mr. William P. Seaver, Assistant to Mr. Nathan Straus, Administrator, United Housing Authority, addressed the convention, reading a message from Mr. Straus, who was unable to attend.

Mr. James D. Marshall, Assistant to the Director of the Associated General Contractors of America, delivered a lengthy address, stressing the importance of continued cooperation between our two organizations and the benefits derived from same.

Mr. Daniel W. Tracy, Assistant Secretary, United States Department of Labor, formerly President of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, outlined the work of his Department and the tremendous part the various divisions are playing in facilitating progress on defense work, thru the prevention and settlement of strikes on defense projects. He told of efforts made from time to time, by recalcitrant members of Congress, to legislate anti-labor bills, which would prevent strikes, picketing, and organizational work in general on defense work, and urged the delegates to give serious consideration to this condition and prevent strikes, if at all possible, using the various governmental agencies set up for the conciliation and adjudication of grievances, without work stoppages.

Mr. Gerard Riley, from the National Labor Relations Board, also addressed the convention.

Mr. George Meany, Secretary-Treasurer, American Federation of Labor, addressed the Thursday afternoon session of the convention, and, after complimenting the Department on its wonderful progress during the past year, he outlined what he stated was, in his opinion, the most important situation that labor must face at the termination of the war, especially workers in the building and constdruction field, and that is the period of unemployment that follows in the wake of such wars. He stated that the officials of the American Federation of Labor were fully cognizant of this threatened disaster to Labor and that plans were being formulated, in cooperation with governmental agencies, to devise ways and means to overcome the disastrous effects of this period of readjustment.

A number of resolutions referred to the convention were acted upon, among these being two resolutions that referred to the appointment of a new referee within thirty days after the adjournment of the convention, to take the place of the recently deceased referee, Mr. William P. Carroll, and that the newly appointed referee proceed to hold hearings as soon as possible, and to render decisions on all pending cases. Both resolutions were combined into one and adopted by the convention. It reads as follows:

Resolution No. 9.—WHEREAS, It is with profound regret that we learn of the death of Mr. William Carroll, who had been appointed as a Referee for the settlement of jurisdictional disputes in the building and construction industry, and

WHEREAS, No hearings have been held in the many cases that are pending for a period of two (2) years,

BE IT RESOLVED, That this convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department does hereby direct the Executive Council of the Department to select a successor to hte late William Carroll to act as referee within thirty (30) days after the adjournment of this convention and on any future occasion involving a vacancy in the position of referee through death, disability, discontinuance of services or otherwise to not permit the vacancy to exceed a period of thirty days and,

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Executive Council of the Department be directed to remunerate the new referee on a per diem basis determined by the Executive Council instead of an annual salary, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That as soon as the new referee is appointed he shall be instructed to immediately set dates as early as possible for hearings on and decisions on all pending cases.

It might be mentioned at this point that the Executive Council of the Department met the day following the adjournment of the convention, and appointed as the new referee, to render decisions on jurisdictional disputes, Mr. Peter Eller, associated with the Thompson-Starrett Co., Inc., New York City.

Two other important resolutions, pertaining to priorities on building materials during the National emergency, were introduced, in which the necessity of a continuation and extension of housing, both in defense and non-defense housing, was stressed and these were acted upon by the convention.

These two resolutions were amended and combined into one resolution and adopted. The resolution reads as follows:

Resolution No. 5.—WHEREAS, The Office of Production Management has established priorities affecting different materials used in the building and construction industry to the extent that they are now affecting private employment in private industry and members of the Building and Construction Trades Department, and

WHEREAS, Although it is a fact that a Division of Priorities has been established in the Labor Division of the Office of Production Management there has been but little relief afforded which would release necessary materials to continue building other than housing for National Defense purposes, and

WHEREAS, There is a further effect which results in slowing up the program of housing under the United States Housing Administration to which there seems to be but little relief to date, and

WHEREAS, It is generally understood that the coordinator on national defense housing must approve all priorities for certain types of materials that are to be used in private and defense housing and such priorities can be made effective, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor urge the President of the United States, the Office of Production Management, the Federal Works Agency, the Army and the Navy to take the necessary steps to cut out the unnecessary approvals required through coordination and other sources by the Office of Production Managament and the Department which is charged with the responsibility of constructing buildings so that priorities can be made effective for defense housing without unnecessarily stinting materials for use in private industry which will provide employment for the men who are affiliated with the National and International Unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department both during the defense program and after the defense period has passed, therefore, be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy be mailed to the President of the United States, the Office of Production Management, the Administrator of the Federal Works Agency, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of Navy, and Administrator Knudsen and Assistant Administrator Hillman of the Office of Production Management.

Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. John P. Frey, President, Metal Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, also addressed the Friday session of the convention. President Green stressed the necessity of strike elimination whenever possible, due to the National emergency, and President Frey outlined in detail the methods of cooperation between the Metal Trades and Building and Construction Trades Departments.

Nominations and election of the new Executive Council was the concluding action of the convention. The President and Secretary-Treasurer of the Department were not up for re-election, having been elected for three yars. Their present

LABOR AND DEFENSE

By Frank R. Smith

Labor is doing a great job under the defense program. Difficulties there have been and labor has been criticized. Actually, poor planning, inefficiency and incompetency at the top are factors to be dealt with on many a defense construction job and if these cause trouble, labor is blamed.

Read what Frank R. Smith, 9th vice president of our International Union and business representative of Local Union 2 has to say on the situation, as published in The Cleveland Citizen:

"Due to the accusations and the nonsensical space filler used by many of the writers in the daily papers the general public has come to believe that any member of a labor organization is either a stupid dupe of a bunch of crooked officials or is one of the officials himself and is reaping stupendous amounts of money from employers and members alike through criminal procedures.

"Those of us in the labor movement have been in constant touch with all these officers and members—we have seen what they have been doing during the defense program and we want to state here and now, that we can only boast of the part that they have taken and the attitude of practically all of them through the trying times which have faced us.

"Naturally, being affiliated with the Building Trades, this writer is more conversant with the matters pertaining to that branch of the defense efforts. In this regard we need only refer any interested individual to the figures released by the federal government to bear out our contention. In every case in which there has been a cantonment to be built or an arsenal or munitions plant constructed the planned time has been pushed far into the background and final completion has far surpassed the greatest expectations of any of the people involved in the planning.

"It is true that there have been unforseen difficulties arise in many of the cantonments but everybody involved in the construction of these camps knows that the trouble has arisen from poor planning and incompetency at the top. The men on the job have not only had to do their job but had to do just that much better in order to overcome the handicaps piled on their heads by directional inefficiency and planning faults.

"Regardless of how many accusations are thrown our way or how many people are led to believe that the defense program is being held up by organized labor we only want to be sure that the factual details are published for public consumption and that the true government figures are made available. We know that our members are doing their job and that labor is doing far more than their share in the emergency. We can stand for any foolish criticism but still we hold our heads high in the pride which goes with a tremendously difficult job being well done.

"From the beginning of the history of organized labor we have constantly been deluged with the harping criticism of anti-union employers and their paid mouthpieces to the extent that all labor has suffered some serious setbacks in the estimation of the public. Today the figures are being released impartially; many employers have learned the true attitude of the unions and the benefits of dealings with a bonafide labor organization so that we now have a few factors in our favor and need only reveal the true state of affairs in order to convince the general public of the great job which is being done.

"There is no necessity for any person to try to cover up the fact that there have been crooks in the labor movement. That must be and is admitted just as bankers, grocers, sport figures and thousands of others find the same sort of situations in their business. Our only contention is that we have a record throughout our organizations which is one of service to the member and his family and may never be contradicted by all the false information in the world.

"From the first legislation in this country passed to make life a little more livable for the working man and woman to the latest social advantage achieved during the past few years labor has held its place in the forefront. The same may be said of any national emergency, from the signing of the Declaration of Independence to the present crisis and we stand on our record as the backbone of democracy and the greatest fighting force for right and justice in this nation today.

"We are proud to be Americans, proud of the part we have played in our national history and positive that when the final story of the present international strife is written, labor will again stand at the top as the one great agency for the protection of our way of life."

Photos appearing on page six of this issue were taken on one of two housing projects being constructed with all metal lath partitions, in St. Louis, Missouri, on which lathers also erected a number of metal specialties not ordinarily used, as illustrated.

Approximately 175,000 yards of metal lath are being used, not to mention corner beads, base screeds, metal casing beads, metal partition stops, metal plaster stops under stair soffits, metal plaster stops at all stair headers, metal plaster stops around all bath tubs (about 950 of them), metal plates fastened to metal lath partitions for receiving hand rails on dividing partitions between stairways, also metal plates with hook for hanging wash, and metal hand rails attached to metal partitions in all stairways.

CONSTRUCTION FIRST IN DEFENSE, HILLMAN TELLS BUILDING TRADES CONVENTION

"If defense comes first in our lives, construction comes first in defense," Associate Director General Sidney Hillman, of the Office of Production Management, told the Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Council, in Seattle.

"We are all agreed that today defense must come first—that it must have first call on our thinking and our doing. If defense comes first in our lives, construction comes first in defense.

"Before we can produce guns and planes and tanks, we must have defense plants built or altered. Before we can lay the keels of our men-of-war and cargo vessels, shipyards and ways must be ready. When we build new factories like Boeing Aircraft, and new shipyards like Todd Dry Dock, here in Seattle, and hire thousands of new workers, we must provide them with decent housing. Overcrowding in badly ventilated rooms of run-down dwellings sooner or later takes its toll in lowered morale which means lowered defense production. Similarly, if we are to train an army, we must have proper living arrangements in our camps and cantonments."

And the architects were able to furnish thousands of feet of extra rentable space, yet actually reduce partition costs.

Another Gold Bond "First"

This exclusive system is another of Gold Bond's contributions to the plastering industry. From National Gypsum's research laboratories have come the famous Microplastic Plaster, made of purest gypsum and tuhe-milled for easier working. They developed the patented Floating Wall that eliminates nine-tenths of the causes for plaster cracks and they created the exclusive Gold Bond metal arch head that makes perfect, low-cost plastered arches right on the job.

Better results, lower costs, easier handling—and the best things first! That's what the Gold Bond line means to plasterers and lathers everywhere. 21 model plants serve Gold Bond dealers with fresh materials, and 300 trained Gold Bond representatives are ready and able to help solve your problems. And when you use Gold Bond exclusively, the responsibility for all products is centered with one organization—the world's largest exclusive wall and ceiling material manufacturer. Write today for details and specifications on the Gold Bond 2" Solid Partition System. Metal Products Division, National Gypsum Company, Buffalo, New York.

NO PREFABRICATED UNITS NECESSARY. The exclusive new metal base of the Gold Bond 2" Solid Partition System can be quickly cut and bent on the job. Plastering goes faster—and the finished job is more satisfactory.

BOULDER FORMATIONS CONSTRUCTED BY LATHERS AND PLASTERERS

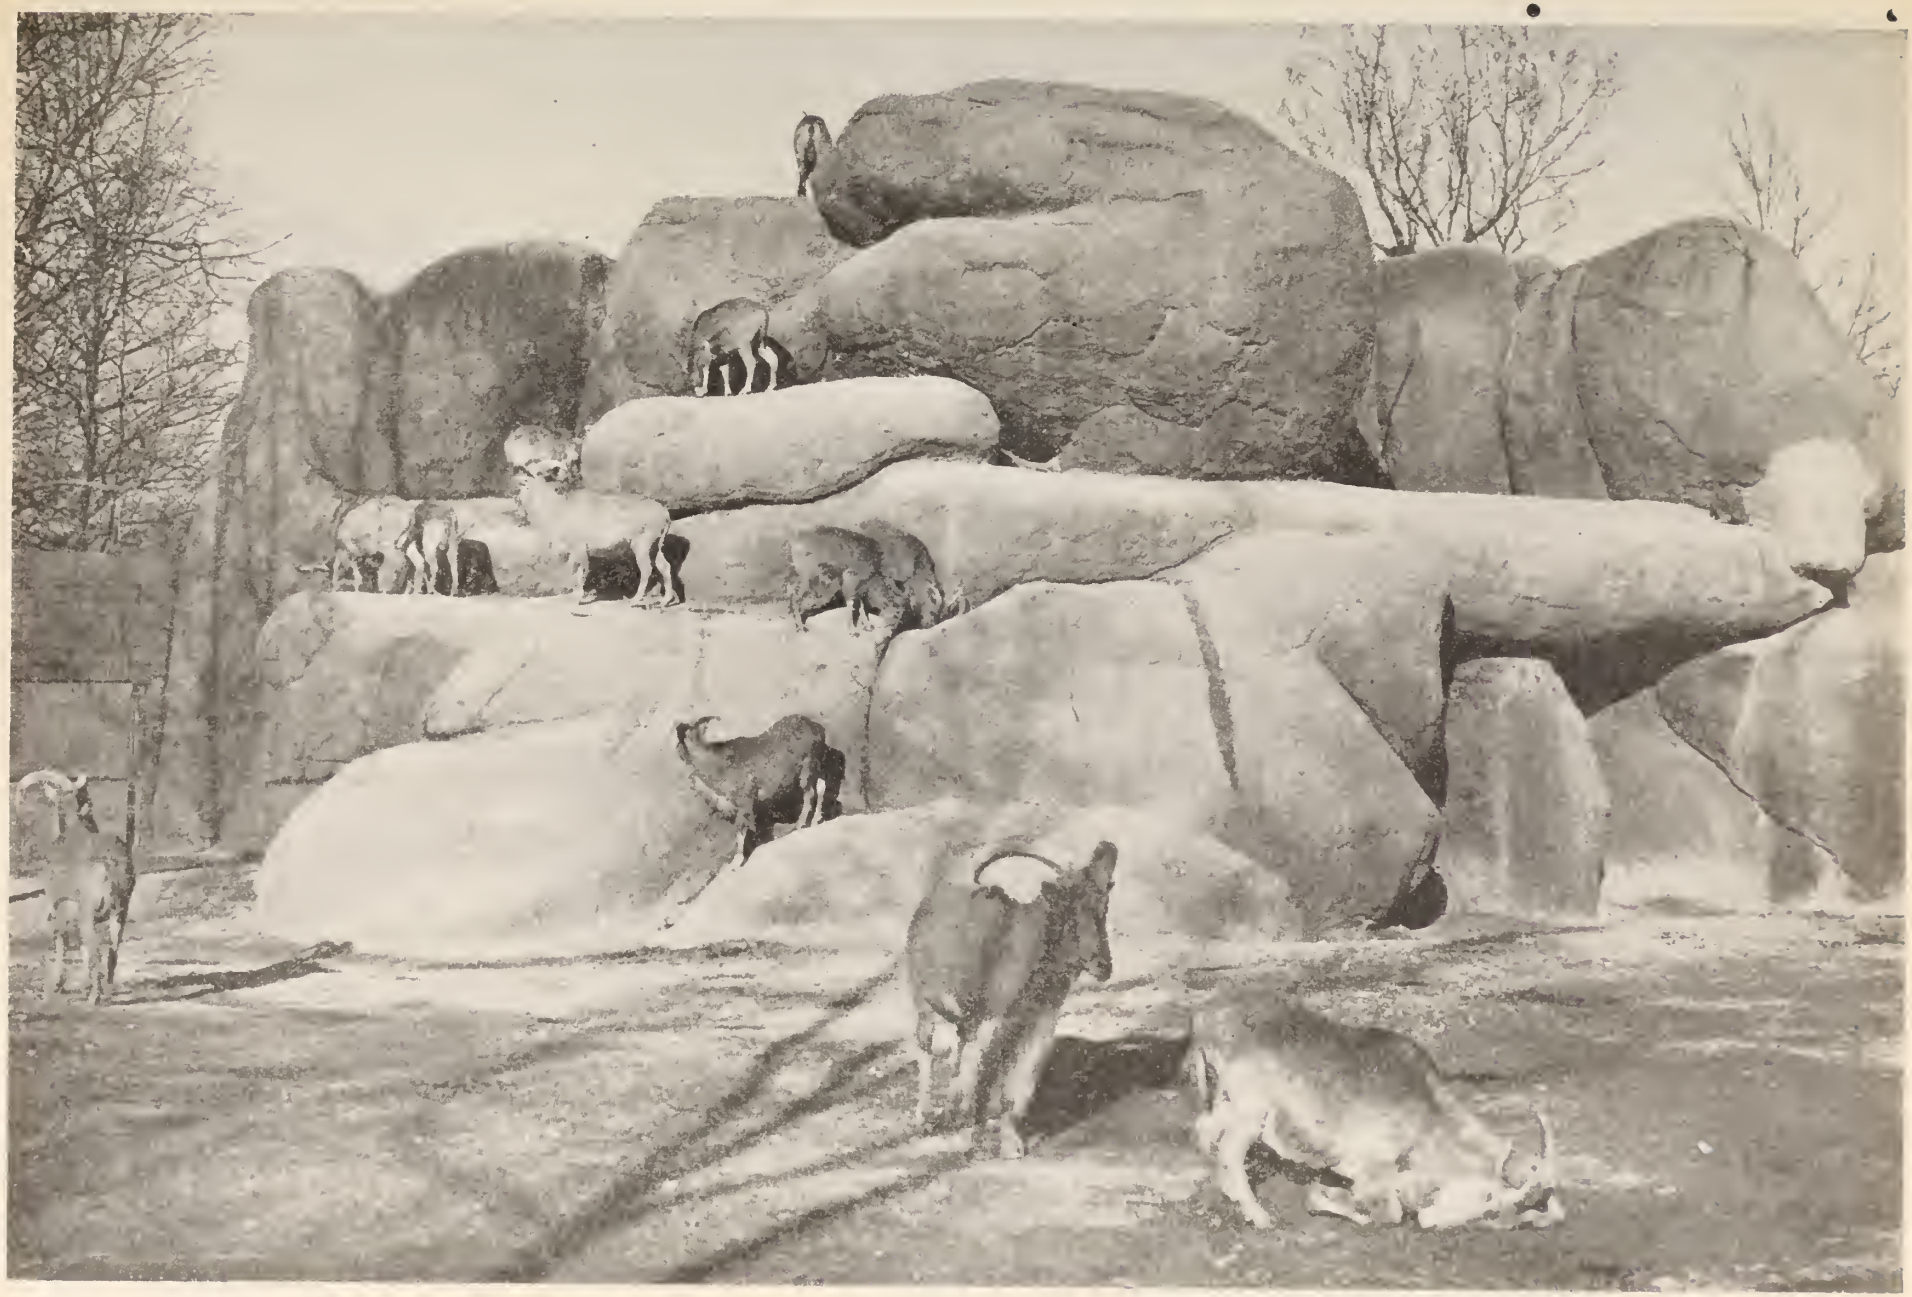

Lathers and plasterers constructed boulder formations of metal lath, cement, gravel, and color, at the St. Louis Zoo, in perfect replica of rock formations at Graniteville, Mo., shown on this page. Entire buildings are covered with these artificial boulders, in faithful reproduction of mountain, plain, and forest scenes.

Barless animal dens are formed by surrounding artificial boulder formations with concrete moats. All rocks, boulders, dividing walls, and anything resembling rocky formations at the Zoo, were built by lathers and plasterers. Interior dividing partitions, arches, etc., in such buildings as the snake house, bird house, monkey house, and others, are all metal lath and plaster, or cement. HOUSING FOR DEFENSE—AND AFTER

IN the investigation of the House Committee on National Defense Migration (the Tolan committee) the question of the housing of the millions of workers in the defense program has forced itself on the committee not only as a present problem, but as one that must be answered in terms of the post-defense period.

Men who have taken part in this great movement to new or old manufacturing centers know how they have been forced to put up with all kinds of makeshifts in order to work—crowded slum housing in the cities, trailers, tents and barracks in the outlying sections—how they have been forced to travel long distances to the job, because they could find no living quarters near. This was true from the first, when workmen began building the great army camps—and it is true today, in every part of the country which has plants working on defense orders.

The vice president of the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation at San Diego, Calif., testified:

"It is a fact, however, that there is still a tremendous shortage—first of all, of any kind of houses; and, secondly, of houses within the price levels which would enable the average employee to enjoy their use. It is also a fact that from 75 to 80 percent of those offering houses will not permit children on the premises. The average price level of housing facilities suitable for our men should not exceed $30 per month."

His statement about families with children was borne out by the testimony of numbers of migrants, not only in California, but in Connecticut and New Jersey, in Maryland and elsewhere.

Otis Porter, who was born in Pawnee, Oklahoma, but who was working in the Consolidated plant, told of paying $18 a week rent for a one-room cabin in an auto court, where he, his wife and six children lived. He was spending more than half his wages of $135 a month for the privilege of living, eight persons in one room. He had been refused other places because, he was told, "We won't take children."

In Hartford, Wm. Pinault testified that he had been forced to place his nine children in an institution and with relatives, because landlords refused to rent to the head of such a large family. The expense of caring for his family was more than his income, although his average pay was over $40 per week.

The personnel administrator of Consolidated said, in San Diego:

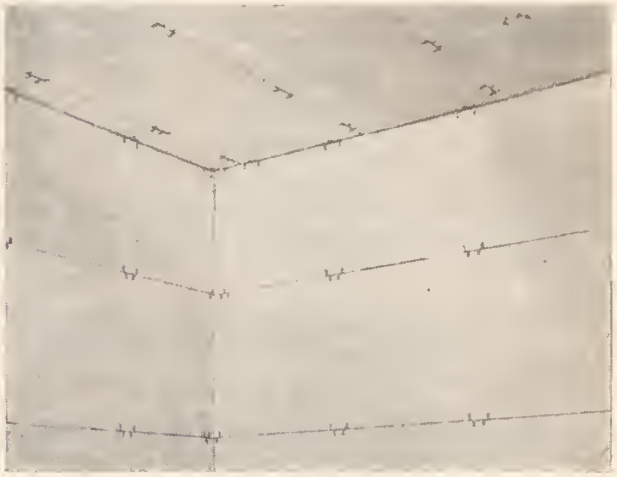

"The Chairman. Now, your employment set-up, is it affected in any way by housing conditions around here?

"Mr. Wiseman. It is, to a certain extent. Particularly, with the man who, we will say, will enter our employ at our minimum starting wage. He investi-

New Economical Clip System

Equally Practical for any Wood or Fireproof Construction

Celotex Anchor Clip System Makes Beautiful Crack-Resisting Walls

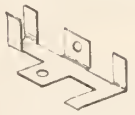

TRY THIS NEW, thoroughly tested method of building clipped gypsum lath walls. The Celotex Anchor Clip System is simple and not expensive. Does away with cracks by compensating for swelling, shrinking, twisting, and warping of wood framework. Recommended for use with Anchor Gypsum Lath and Celotex Anchor Plasters.

Easy to Apply

Celotex Anchor Clips are nailed to the face of the studs. Only about 25% as much nailing is required as for ordinary nail-on construction. Economies of time and labor permit building Anchor floating walls for little more than the cost of ordinary walls.

Only 3 Types Needed with Wood Studs

Anchor WF Clip is used to start lathing at base ground.

Anchor W Clip attaches lath to wood studs and joists.

Anchor T Clip with one wing snipped, for use on internal angle.

CELOTEX ANCHOR CLIPS

ANCHOR GYPSUM LATH • CELOTEX ANCHOR PLASTER

The word Celotex is a brand name identifying a group of building products marketed by The Celotex Corporation. In certain territories gypsum lath, sheathing, and wall board are sold by The Celotex Corporation as selling agent and not as principal.

ATTENTION SECRETARIES!

General President McSorley requests the secretary of each local union to communicate with the Federal Works Agency, United States Housing Authority, Mr. Nathan Straus, Administrator, and protest against Release No. 604, which is an order to conserve metal, and replace this with substitutes and other substances, on USHA and defense construction.

Only one-tenth of one per cent. of all steel sheets produced are diverted into metal lath. This percentage will decrease as production speeds up, consequently greatly lessening the percentage of metal the lathing industry will appropriate to itself for metal lathing and light iron furring.

Our members are urged to bring these facts to the attention of the Federal Works Agency, United States Housing Authority, Mr. Nathan Straus, Administrator, and protest against putting this order into operation, as it will deprive our members of means to earn a livelihood.

CORRECTION!

Page three of the September issue shows a solid metal lath and plaster partition, on which we mentioned that 2-inch channels had been used on the lower part and 1-inch on the upper part. This is not correct. On the lower 16 feet of this partition, 1½ inch channels had been used; on the upper 16 feet, ¾ inch channels. When completely plastered, the partition was approximately 3 inches thick at the bottom, tapering to 2 inches at the top, thus permitting greater rigidity and stability.

You run the risk of becoming suspended if you fail to deposit your transfer within 30 days after date of issuance.

ADDRESSES WANTED

Fill out your address blank promptly and correctly when requested to do so by your local secretary. Then you can be sure that you will be notified by the General Secretary-Treasurer if your per capita tax is 45 days in arrears which renders you due for automatic suspension at headquarters in accordance with Section 96. You are allowed 15 days from date of notice of suspension to pay up your tax before the automatic suspension goes into effect.

A THOUGHT

M. J. Mahoney

Replete with memories of the past,
Of time that traveled far and fast,
While we recall some old happening
Which to our mind it oft does bring,
'Tis all that we have left in life,
From youth to age of pleasure, strife—
We cherish them our every thought,
While some are grim with danger fraught,
Others bring to our face a smile
As we meditate on them the while.
For what is life when youth is gone
Without thoughts of past to dwell upon"
Some deed you've done, a battle fought,
Comes within the range of human thought
Which guides us on thru life till death,
And keeps us from each serious threat
Until at last we reach the end of life,
We part with friend and foe and strife.

WILLIAM L. AKERS DIED

Bill Akers, secretary and business agent for Local 230, died Friday, August 15, 1941, at a Fort Worth hospital. He will be greatly missed by the local, as he had many friends. Possessed of an even temperament and sound judgment, he was invaluable to the organization as well as the many traveling journeymen, who will remember him for his consideration and many favors. The remains were shipped to Wichita, Kansas for burial.

DECISIONS OF GENERAL PRESIDENT

Section 121 L. I. U. constitution provides that all decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Exceutive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

Frank Koeckritz, 25501 and Edward Koeckritz, 17075 vs. Local No. 10

Brothers Frank and Edward Koeckritz appealed against the action of Local 10 in placing a $75.00 fine against each of them on the charge of erecting work in an unworkmanlike manner. The General President, after carefully reviewing all of the evidence presented, found these brothers guilty as charged, and he therefore sustained the action of the local union in the matter of the fines imposed.

Wm. Burns, 28993 and Leo O'Brien, 29436 vs. Local No. 82

Brothers Burns and O'Brien appealed against the action of Local 82 in placing fines against them as follows: $25.00 for violation of Sections 33 and 34 local by-laws; $50.00 for violation of local working agreement; $20.00 for violation of Section 177 L. I. U. constitution; and $5.00 for violation of Section 145 L. I. U. constitution, which makes a total of $100.00 in each case. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented from both sides in this controversy, found the appellants guilty of violation of Section 34 local by-laws, as well as Sections 145 and 177 L. I. U. constitution, and the local Working Agreement, and he therefore sustained the action of Local 82 in the matter of the fines placed for these violations to the extent of $75.00. He also ordered the $25.00 fines placed for violation of Section 33 remitted.

Ed. Walters, 21488 and C. J. George, 9932 vs. Local No. 208

Brothers Walters and George appealed against the action of Local 208 in placing a fine of $25.00 against each of them for violation of Section 18 of the local's constitution and by-laws. The General President after carefully considering all of the evidence presented, found the imposed penalty to be unfair and unjust and he therefore ordered the fines rescinded

HOUSING FOR DEFENSE—AND AFTER

gates what he can get, and naturally he bargains for the highest rate of pay to start. When his ability is determined by us, and it is found that he is not entitled to a rate higher than our minimum, then he learns something of the rent situation here, and we have many men tell us they are governed as to whether they will stay in San Diego by whether they can find a place to stay. Of course, he has to pay the rent that he has found to prevail."

The secretary of the Hartford (Conn.) Civic & Economic Welfare Council testified as to the conditions in Connecticut:

"Despite the increase of housing facilities which inevitably must be built, there will remain an inescapable shortage, and with it must come, unless checked by authoritative control, a continued spiraling of rent increases. Rent control is a necessity for this area if we are to prevent worker dissatisfaction, a let down in production, strikes and labor turnover."

Many employers stressed the bad effect that such housing conditions were having on their securing sufficient help and asked the committee to do everything possible to help speed up government housing projects that would allow their workers to secure suitable homes.

Witnesses at all hearings testified that private enterprise cannot and will not be able to meet the need for low-rent housing, either during or after the present emergency—that private capital cannot meet the need, and that such absolutely necessary low-cost housing must be subsidized.

CONSUMER QUIZ

Here are some easy questions you can try on yourself to test your knowledge of the foods you need, buy, prepare, and eat, as printed in Consumers' Guide, publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

1. Which kind of milk is safer to give a small child, raw or pasteurized?

2. Which vitamin is most easily destroyed in cooking, canning, and storing vegetables: A, G, B, or C?

3. What two colors in vegetables are an indication of the presence of Vitamin A?

4. Is the price of eggs usually lowest in April, November, July or January?

5. Of these foods, which 3 are especially recommended for their Vitamin C: Cod Liver Oil, Beef Kidney, Cheese, Oranges, Tomatoes, Leafy Vegetables or Peanuts?

6. Nutritional night blindness is caused by the lack of which of these food nutrients: Calcium, Vitamin A, Iron, Vitamin G, Phosphorus or Iodine?

Correct answers to these questions will be found below

1. Pasteurized.
2. Vitamin C.
3. Green and yellow.
4. April.
5. Oranges, tomatoes, leafy vegetables.
6. Vitamin A.

CONSIDER YOUR POSTMAN

If you fail to receive your mail some morning, start racking your brains for some sins you may have committed against a long suffering postman.

Resolutions denouncing people whose dogs bite postmen, who don't shovel the snow off their walks, and who are so inconsiderate as to pack eggs in crushable containers and then send them thru the mail, were presented to the National Association of Letter Carriers Convention, recently held in Los Angeles.

POOR LIGHTING CAUSES ACCIDENTS

Five out of seven traffic fatalities occur at night during winter months, according to figures released by the National Safety Council. These are not due to snow or ice, but poor lighting and longer nights, which is all the more reason to "slow down at sun down."

Lowered visibility seems to be the major difference in the hazards of night and day driving. It is necessary that drivers and pedestrians realize this and give more attention to their safety under these adverse conditions.

Next to agriculture, oil is Kansas' leading source of income. Oil and gas are vital to national defense and Kansas' abundance of these materials is of tremendous value to the nation.

WIT AND HUMOR

Al Falfa—"Did you know that that feller who is runnin' for office has a glass eye?"

Tim Hay—"No; can you tell which one it is?"

Al Falfa—"Yes. You look at both his eyes pretty hard, and the one that has a gleam of human kindness in it is the glass one."

"What am I arrested for?" asked the corrupt voter.

"You are charged," said the officer, who was entering the arrest in the station-house ledger, "with having voted eight times."

"Charged, hey?" muttered the prisoner. "That's queer. I expected to be paid for it."

———o———

Listener—"Shut up and go home! I wouldn't vote for you; I'd rather vote for the devil."

Candidate—"All right; but suppose your friend is not running?"—Farm Journal.

———o———

"Your political antagonist is calling you every name he can think of," said the agitated friend.

"Don't interrupt him," answered Senator Sorghum. "It is better to have a man searching the dictionary for epithets than going after your record for facts."

———o———

"Why don't you go into politics?"

"I've been in politics," answered Farmer Corntassel. "I once got elected to the legislature. And I found the legislature was just as hard to improve as the farm."

———o———

"Politicians aren't actually read out of the party; they are merely kicked out from under the plum tree."

———o———

"Do your studies on Mankind embrace women?"

"No, when you start to embrace women, goodby studies!"

———o———

A farmer was losing his temper trying to drive two mules into a field, when the parson came by.

"You are just the man I want to see," said the farmer. "Tell me, how did Noah get these into the ark?"

———o———

"Mamma," said little Johnny, "don't men ever go to heaven?"

"Why, of course, my dear. What makes you ask?"

"Because I never see any pictures of angels with whiskers."

"Well," said the mother, thoughtfully, "some men do go to heaven, but they get there by a close shave."

"Now," said the hypnotist, "I shall make this man forget everything."

"Hold on," yelled a man in the back row, "he owes me five dollars."

———o———

"What is a snuff manufacturer?"

"A man who goes around putting his business in other people's noses."

———o———

In San Francisco, recently two autoists met in an alley too narrow to pass each other. One of the autoists rose in his car and shouted to the other:

"I never back up for any d—n fool."

The other driver quietly put his car in reverse, backed out, and replied:

"That's all right, I always do."

———o———

Sergeant—"Hi, you can't go in there."

Private—"Why not?"

Sergeant—"Because that's the general's tent."

Private—"Then why has he got 'private' on the flap?"

Sergeant—"Stop asking why. Do you think I'm a fool?"

Private—"I don't know yet. I only came here yesterday."

———o———

Street Car Conductor—"Can't you see the sign, 'No Smoking?'"

Sailor—"Sure, mate, that's plain enough. But there are so many dippy signs here. One says, 'Wear Nemo Corsets.' So I ain't paying attention to any of them!"

———o———

"My father always proposed a toast before he disciplined me."

"That's funny! What was it?"

"Bottoms up."

———o———

Short-sighted Burglar—I must get another pair of spectacles. This is the third time I've mistaken a flag pole for a drain pipe.

———o———

"As a farmer," said Farmer Smith, "I claim to have a valuable hen. I crossed a parrot and a hen and as a result I have a chicken now that not only lays an egg, but also says 'come and get it.'"

———o———

Bump—"Has your wife learned to drive the car yet?"

Bumper—"Yes. In an advisory capacity."

PLAN NOW TO PREVENT POST-WAR DEPRESSION

Chicago, Ill.—The immediate establishment of a long-term planning agency, composed of representatives of Government, industry, labor and agriculture, to develop a broad program to provide employment for millions of workers scheduled for dismissal from national defense industries with the advent of peace was recommended by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its summer meeting here.

"American industry is now running in high gear on defense orders," the Executive Council's statement said. "Peace, when it comes, will halt this huge industrial machine in its tracks. Thousands of factories and munitions plants now operating twenty-four hours a day will be forced to close. Millions of workers will lose their jobs. Farmers will suffer from curtailment of markets and purchasing power. Depression will set in and our economic system may not be able to withstand the shock.

"This is the inevitable prospect for America unless we begin to prepare for peace while we are strengthening our defense against the threat of war.

"The Executive Council believes that industrial production can not only be maintained at its present high level after the defense emergency but can and should be expanded. But this will require creative planning and the sincere cooperation of Government, industry, labor and agriculture.

"The first step must be to set up a planning agency in which each of these branches of our economic system will be fully represented. This body should proceed at once to draw up a program by which American resourcefulness can be teamed with American resources to accomplish a rapid shift from war production to peace production when the time comes.

"The Executive Council feels confident that American resourcefulness can be mobilized for peace needs as well as for defense emergencies. The genius and invention of our scientific laboratories can devise dozens of new industries to meet the wants of our people. Many new fields, such as television and air-conditioning, are even now ready for tremendous expansion. Many existing needs, such as home construction, are waiting to be filled. In the agricultural field, we have only begun to realize that farm production can be utilized not only for food but also to provide necessary materials for industrial use.

"These are just a few of the more obvious lines along which a program for America's future economy can be directed with careful preparation. There is no danger that we will not have enough to do to keep our workers and farmers and factories busy and prosperous. The real danger is that we won't be ready to act when normal times begin. The Executive Council, therefore, recommends to President Roosevelt that he take the lead by inviting representatives of industry, labor and agriculture to meet with Government representatives for the purpose of laying the groundwork for a peace production program."

WHY NOT A IOU?

In a great city like New York, where people are daily face to face with every phase of life, from direst poverty and suffering to heights of folly, pleasure and extravagance, it is easy for one to become hardened to the constant appeal for charity. Where so many frauds are practiced in the name of charity it is natural than even the ultra sympathetic should grow skeptical and suspicious.

The directors of organized charity are constantly reminding the kindhearted of the folly of giving alms to street beggars.

The other evening a gentleman was walking down Fifth Avenue to his club, when he was approached by an extremely forlorn man, of middle age, who pleaded for "just enough to get a cup of coffee."

"I don't doubt, my friend," said the clubman, "that you are really in distress, but I have made a rule never to give money upon the streets."

"I understand," said the beggar, "and I must admit, sir, that it is a good and usually a safe rule. I will not, therefore, ask you to break it; but if you will be so kind as to give me your address I will call at your house any time you say."

CHECK UP ON YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT

To All Social Security Account Holders:

The Social Security Board reminds you that—

(1) There is a four-year limit on your opportunity to secure any required changes in your Social Security Account. This limit is fixed by law.

(2) If you started your social security account in 1937, your first four years will be up at the end of 1941. This means that if there should be any error in the record of your wages for 1937, you must ask for correction before the end of next December. The time will be up for changes in 1938 wage records at the end of 1942. And so on, each year.

The Social Security Board advises account holders to be on the safe side and check up on their accounts at least once every year. To do this you simply ask the Board for a statement of the wages credited to your account. For your convenience in making this request, the Board issues cards. You can get such cards from any local office of the Social Security Board.

When you receive a statement of your wage credits you can compare it with your own record of what you earned during the same time. If the amount shown on the Board's statement of your credits is not what you believe it should be, you can ask the Board to look into the matter, and correct the error if there is one. Errors do not often occur, but they can come about in such ways as the following:

Your account number could have been omitted on your employer's quarterly wage report, or a mistake could have been made in copying the number from your account card.

You might have worked for an employer who did not know he should report your wages, or for some other reason failed to do so.

The full amunt of your wages might not have been reported, or there might have been some mistake in copying the figures.

But whatever the nature of the discrepancy, the sooner it is caught, the better. It is to your own interest, therefore, to ask for a wage statement once every year.

And the immediate point of this message is that if you have reason to believe there is any error in your social security account for 1937, you must make your request for correction before the end of next December or you will be too late.

REPORT OF DELEGATES TO THE SIXTY-FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR HELD IN SEATTLE, WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 6 TO 16, 1941, INCLUSIVE

GREETINGS! We, your delegates, submit the followlng report on the proccedings of the 61st Annual Convention of the Amerlcan Federation of Labor.

Pursuant to law, the convention opened at 10 o'clock, Oct. 6, 1941, in the Senator Auditorium, Scattle, Washington, the invocation being delivered by the Rt. Rev. J. F. Gallagher, Vicar General of the Diocese of Seattle. Addresses of welcome from the following men, prominent in civic life as well as in the labor movement in that locallty, were extended to the conventlon: Claude O'Reilly, President of the Seattle Central Labor Council, the Hon. Earl Milliken, Mayor of Seattle; Emil Sick, President Seattle Chamber of Commerce; James A. Taylor, President Washington State Federation of Labor; Hon. Arthur B. Langle, Governor of the State of Washington and President William Green. President Green, in a very appropriate manner, expressed his appreciation and that of the convention for the warm, cordial welcome that had been extended to all who were to participate in the Sixty-first Convention of the American Federation of Labor.

In his address, President Green emphasized the grave responsibility that confronts the organized labor movement representing five million workers, and which movement at this time is facing "days when we will he subjected to the most severe tests, and for that reason we shall approach our task, the discussion of economic, social and industrial problems in this great congress of labor with a sense of deep responsibility. We are here as American citizens first, and we place that above and beyond every other consideration. The welfare of America, the promotion of our social order, will stand above and beyond every other consideration that may be dealt with by this convention. We feel that every legislative act taken in this convention must have for its primary purpose the protection of America, our form of government, our freedom, and our liberty, and the promotion of the general welfare of all classes of the people." Quoting further from President Green's address:

"And so we determined at our last convention that we would stand with our Government, that we would give to the Government every ounce of support we could extend it, that we would serve as skilled, trained men, giving the best we have in the promotion of our defense program.

"In addition to that, we ask our great President, the President of the United States, to tell the people in Great Britain that we propose to extend to them every ounce of aid possible in order that they may defeat this cruel dictator ravaging Europe.

"We are now encouraged and inspired to go further than ever before in the adoption of an official declaration, I know, in this convention. We have learned so much during the past year. We have read of the tragedies that have been taking place in the democracies of Europe. For that reason now, understanding more clearly the issues at stake and the tragic consequences that must follow in the event the forces of democracy are beaten, we of the American Federation of Labor are going to rise to new heights, and we are going to advise the President of the United States that we will give all we have in support of his program, that we will stand by him and behind him and all around him, and we will tell him further that if it is necessary to take more decisive action in order to maintain freedom of the seas, and to protect democracy hroughout the world, we will stand by him and follow to the bitter end.

(The delegates arose and applauded.)

"There can be no mistake as to the attitude of the American Federation of Labor and those whom you have the distinct honor of representing in this convention, and I am happy to tell our distinguished visitors here, the Governors of these states and those who are sitting with us this morning, that we come to Seattle united. There is no Left Wing and Right Wing group in the Amerlban Federation of Labor. Others may fight, they may have their Left Wing, their Center Wing or their Right Wing, they may have Communism, Fascism, or Nazism, but the American Federation of Labor is a united family. We know nothing about Left Wing and Right Wing groups. We speak as one, we act as one, we walk as one and we fight as one.

"Furthermore, I want to emphasize this fact, that there are no Isolationists in the American Federation of Labor."

In concluding the most patriotic address ever made to an American Federation of Labor convention, President Green added:

"The proposal to freeze wages is an economic fallacy which must be opposed by the A. F. of L., because any fair man will concede that earning capacity must be in proportion to increased living costs."

The Credentials Committee reported upon the credentials of 531 delegates, representing: 88 international and national unions, 3 departments, 36 state branches, 126 central bodies, 66 local trade and federal labor unions, and 3 fraternal delegates, and recommended that they be seated. The fraternal delegates were as follows: representing the British Trades Union Congress—Geo. W. Thomson and Edward Hough; representing the Canadian Trades & Labor Congress—H. C. Simpson. This report was concurred in and the delegates were seated.

Secretary-Treasurer's report showed that on August 31, 1941 there was a net balance on hand of $1,007,149.96. Expenses for the year amounted to $1,835,973.43, of which $1,059,758.98 was expended for organization activities. An accounting of the investments of the Federation was also included in the report of Secretary-Treasury Meany. During the 12 months ending August 31, 1941, 496 charters were issued: 1 new international union was formed; 22 central bodies were chartered; and 472 directly affiliated locals were chartered. At the close of the fiscal year there were 1,441 local trade and federal labor unions with an average membership for the fiscal year of 198,605. On August 31, 1941, the Defense Fund was $800,054.15. The total membership of the Federation reached an all-time high in 1941 with 4,569,056 paid members on Aug. 31, 1941.

Other speakers at later sessions of the convention included the Hon. Harold E. Stassen, Mr. James Wilson, Liaison Officer International Labor Organization; the Hon. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, and Judge Padway, A. F. of L. Counsel. Judge Padway reported in detail upon the outstanding activities of the Courts affecting labor during the past year. Other speakers included Edw. J. Phelan, Acting Director I. L. O.; Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., Director Workers Education Bureau, both of these addresses being of great interest to the organized worker and covered such subjects as come under the scope of the bureau, each represented as director thereof.

Mr. Herbert E. Gaston, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, addressed the convention on the third day of its deliberations. He conveyed to those present the greetings and good wishes of Secretary Morgenthau who, due to urgent business in Washington, was unable to personally attend. His address dealt principally with the tremendous problem and task of financing our National Defense program, which will necessarily entail the placing of taxes. In his talk he outlined the necessity also of avoiding the dangers of dislocation of our economic life by too harsh or badly planned tax levies.

The Most Rev. Gerald Shaughnessy, S. M. Bishop of the Diocese of Seattle, also addressed the convention, as well as Lynn U. Stambaugh, Commander of the American Legion. Commander Stambaugh's address carried many points of interest. He stressed the plight of labor in such countries as have come under the sway of Hitler domination. He also brought out the need of service in time of national emergency. Quoting from the closing remarks of the Commander:

"As a group who have fought in defense of American liberty, as men who have upheld the one government that today stands as the hope of free men, the Legion is necessarily for the legitimate improvement of labor conditions.

"We oppose the attack upon labor from within, by the infiltration of either Communist or Nazi, as a movement that would drive labor to destroy itself by destroying the American Constitution and taking power away from the people to give it to a dictatorship. Against that destruction of labor and its rights, against that elimination of free labor and the substitution of slave labor, The American Legion stands and will continue to stand. It is in that spirit that we ask you to join in the partnership that will go so far towards building the national will to make secure all our freedoms, all our liberties."

Mr. Mark Etheridge, Chairman of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices, also addrdessed the convention, as well as Mr. Arthur J. Altmeyer, Chairman Social Security Board, and Mr. Walter Schevenels, General Secretary, International Federation of Trade Unions.

Secretary Meany reported the appointment of 14 Committees to handle the business of the convention. Your delegates acted upon various committees so appointed. There were 176 resolutions introduced in the conventoin.

Secretary Meany read to the convention the message from President Franklin D. Roosevelt, dated Oct. 2, 1941, extending his warm personal greetings to the officers and delegates attending the Sixty-first Annual Convention. His message in part follows:

"Every aspect of our national defense hinges on greater industrial production. The Government has set up machinery to adjust industrial disputes in the full confidence that it is adequate to solve problems which may arise on defense jobs in all fairness and justice to the parties concerned. The Conciliation Service of the United States Department of Labor and the National Defense Mediation Board provide ample facilities for the adjustment of differences. The time has come when the services of such agencies must be used before any recourse is taken to a strike or lockout and I call now upon labor and management to cooperate at all times to that end....

"Yes, this nation has given to you and given to me the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and these are among the greatest blessings of mankind. It is our joh, our everlasting job, to preserve them as we have known them and to make whatever sacrifice is necessary as individuals or as groups in order to do so. To do anything else would be to threaten their destruction and our own at the same time.

"In this hour when civilization itself is in the balance, organizational rivairies and jurisdictional conflicts should be discarded. Only by united action can we turn back the Nazi threat The establishment of peace between labor organizations would be a patriotic step forward of incalculable value in the creation of true national unity.

"I am certain that the members of the American Federation of Labor will do their full part in carrying through the program to which we as a nation are committed and that all other responsible groups will do likewise. That is the contribution the American people will demand of all groups. That is the contribution the American people are determined they shall have for the preservation of home, family and nation

"Yours is a great responsibility. Workers in bondage throughout the world look to you as producers of the weapons of freedom to release them from slavery. I know you will not fail them."

A copy of the Executive Council's report was distributed to the delegates attending the convention. A summary of the report was read to the convention, which contained many items of interest to the delegates and those they represented

This report showed that the Council decided that a conference will be held with representatives of the Printing Trades Unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. and with the Allied Printing Trades Council, for the purpose of evolving a plan for the creation of a printing trades label to be used by the Printing Trades Council exclusively. In addition the Executive Council has decided to consider a policy designed to protect the interests of the A. F. of L. and affiliated printing trades unions in printing contracts for the American Federaion of Labor and affiliated organiations.

The Executive Council with reference to the C. I. O. reaffirmed its position in favor of peace negotiations designed to bring about a settlement of the differences which exist within the ranks of labor.

The Council commended the activities of the American Federation of Teachers to rid their organization of communistic influences, the charters of some locals so controlled having been revoked.

Wages—This summary report showed that "despite efforts exerted by the A. F. of L. organizations to lift the American wage level and improve conditions of employment, there are thousands of workers whose wages are still below a subsistence level as evidenced by the special drives which have been made to establish the minimum wage standards provided for by the minimum wage law in a large number of industries Wage earners base their demand for higher wages upon a justified claim to share in increased productivity and resultant increased income. It is therefore the fixed purpose of the A. F. of L. to continue to press for higher wages and imroved conditions of employment for the workers of our country."

National Legislation—Due to the great concentration of efforts upon the part of the 77th Congress toward legislation for National Defense and for the purpose of aiding those nations now in the struggle to eliminate dictatorships, many highly desirable proposals including those advocated by the A. F. of L. have generally lain dormant the Council reported. Among those of concern to the wage earners included those covering defense, housing, social security, anti-labor legislation, etc., and the Council made a detailed report upon such legislation to the convention.

The Council also reported upon its efforts during the past year with referencen to the Shorter Work-Day and Work-Week, due to the advance of production methods and increased productivity which greatly affected unemployment, holding that there must be an adjustment of the hours of labor to provide work for all, and in order to prevent a repetition of the distressing period of economic disorder which prevailed in our nation from 1929 to 1939, and recommended that the Convention reaffirm its approval of the principle of the Shorter Work Day and Work Week as a partial remedy for unemployment and urged the creation of an economic committee immediately upon the arrival of the post-war period to meet this situation.

Wage-Hour Law Administration — Social Security. The Executive Council in its report upon these subjects recommended continued and accelerated application of the Committees to continuation of efforts to secure extension of coverage of the provisions of these acts.

National Labor Relations Act—Due to the national emergency and other pressing legislation the Council reported that no great changes have been effected in this Act, although reporting that beneficial changes had been made in the personnel and the administrative set-up, through the efforts of the A. F. of L., which efforts will be continued to bring about the proposed amendments.

Works Progress Administration—Due to the transfer from civil to defense production with resulting unemployment, vast industrial dislocations have occurred and the Council came to the conclusion that "relief must be met through federal and local public assistance channels and the problem must not be obscured by emergency conditions, also relief should be continued wherever truly needed."

Housing for Workers—Quoting from the Executive Council's Summary report:

"In August, 1941 the progress of the defense program was threatened by a widespread and acute housing crisis. Lack of housing often deterred workers from taking defense jobs due to their reluctance to bring their families into congested towns lacking housing and sanitary facilities with subsequent threat of epidemic and disease. The A. F. of L. took a leading part in bringing the problem of defense housing to public notice.

Under this caption your Executive Council has presented a comprehensive survey of Federal housing undertakings under FWA, FHA and USHA, outlining the functions of these several agencies. In view of the findings of the Special Housing Committee of the A. F. of L. your Executive Council has made recommendations for your consideration and action.'

See Report of the Building Trades Committee given later in this report.

Labor Standards and Public Contracts — The Executive Council called the attention of the convention to the fact that to date prevailing minimum wages have been set for only 36 industries and to the greatly increased importance to labor of the prevailing wage and overtime standards with the expansion of the defense program. The Council recommended to the officers the formulating of a program which would expedite the prevailing minimum wage determinations, strengthen the enforcement of the labor standards established by the Act and establish a basis for continued representation and cooperation of the A. F. of L. in the administration of the Walsh-Healy Act. The Council further recommended formulation of amendments to the Act for presentation to Congress to extend its application to subcontracors.

Labor and the Anti-Trust Drive—The Council reported that the Supreme Court sustained every contention advanced by the A. F. of L. to resist the unwarranted assault upon its rights which had resulted from the efforts of certain federal officials to distort the Sherman Act and make it a vicious anti-labor instrument. The Council presented in its report a history of a number of test cases upon which the foregoing statement is based.

Education—The Council brought out in its report the need of safeguarding the permanent program of education, separate and apart from any program that may be evolved due to the national emergency as it would affect the field of education and urged all central bodies to be on the alert against reduction in provisions for public education.

State Legislation—Very little legislation of benefit to labor was enacted by the states in 1941. Outstanding, however, among those measures enacted were an Anti-Injunction Law in New Jersey, a State Labor Relations Act in Rhode Island, together with a wage payment and wage collection law and a number of amendments affecting the Workmen's Compensation Law. The Council also reported that Florida amended its Child Labor Law by adopting a basic 16-year minimum. It was pointed out that while the gains were small, Labor succeeded in defeating many hostile measures.

Union Label Trades Department—The Executive Council urged continuance of the loyal support that this department has received from the various branches of the A. F. of L. in the past, including women's auxiliaries to promote and publicize the Union Label, Shop Card and Service Button.

Research and Information—Under this head the Council reported: "The activities of this bureau in disseminating data needed in hearings and priority orders and production, in connection with minimum wage orders under the industry committee procedures of the Wage-Hour Law and the prevailing minimum wage determinations under the Public Contracts Law, etc., the growth of Labor's central clearing house for union information from the field has greatly increased during the past year. Attention is called to the fact that the information collected from our movement is not available elsewhere and is practically vital today when union members are faced with lay-offs due to priorities and other difficult adjustments due to the national emergency.

"Your Council deems it advisable to develop this service of providing facts for collective bargaining at headquarters and to make it available to locals of internationals as well as directly affiliated locals."

European Conflict—The Council recommended that the 61st Convention renew its pledge of support and cooperation to our national defense program and in its policy of extending full and complete aid to Great Britain and her allies.

Japanese War on China and Boycott on German and Japanese Goods—The Council reiterated its past position in reference to these subjects affecting these aggressor nations.

Post War Reconstruction — The following is an excerpt from the Executive Council's summary report on this subject:

"In connection with the preparation of a program for post-war reconstruction your Council recommends that a tripartite commission be created and authorized to study and report upon post-war Labor and social problems and to recommend methods of dealing with these problems. Such commission should be empowered to draw upon the government and private agencies for assistance in its work."

Defense—The report of the Council on this subject was quite lengthy and, since it affects trade unionists in so many of its phases, we recommend that this be looked up and studied if possible. This includes a report of the A. F. of L. Committee on National Defense, National Defense Mediation Board and outlines the functions of such branches as the O.P.M. and its several divisions. The functions of the Priorities Division and Division of Contract Distribution are of vital concern to wage earners and the program and position of the A. F. of L. in connection with these agencies are included in the report.

Pan-American Federation of Labor—The Executive Council brought out the necessity of inter-dependence relations between the Americas for our mutual security. It was therefore the opinion of the Council "that the countries of Central and South America should participate fully in benefits accruing through any loans which our government may make to any of the countries under present emergency conditions. In the light of the situation in the Americas today preparations have been considered and are under way for holding an early congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor.

Alaska and Hawaii—The Executive Council brought out the strategic importance of both Alaska and Hawaii in the International crisis since thousands of workers from the states have been employed in these places recently on army and navy bases; in fact the exact number was given as 10,000 engaged on government projects alone in Hawaii, and reported a widening field for organization work on the Islands to extend the benefits enjoyed by workers of the mainland.

The convention adopted these recommendations of the Executive Council handled through the various committees, and commended their efforts on the various matters affecting the working classes of people.

The convention went on record as opposing any restrictions of our legal right to strike, whether such restrictions be attempted through overt legislation or through subterfuge.

Adopted resolutions providing for collective bargaining in publicly owned industries.

Recommended full support be given to agencies of the government in eliminating actual fifth columnists in the public schools, but urged every effort be made to protect the financial support of the school to defend the civil rights of loyal teachers and the freedoms which are essential to education in a democracy.

Adopted a resolution providing for labor representation on all National Defense Boards.

The several resolutions affecting Social Security and that part of the Executive Council's report on this subject was referred to the Committee of the A. F. of L. on Social Security. The convention adopted the report of the Committee on Legislation, which recommended the convention reaffirm its position of 1940 upon this subject at New Orleans, as set forth on pages 355 and 356 of the printed report.

On the question of priority unemployment, the convention adopted the following resolution as amended:

RESOLVED, That a Civilian Supply Board, on which labor shall be fully represented, shall be set up by the government with full powers to accomplish the following:

a. To afford workers affected by priorities time in which to seek new employment by arranging for adequate warnings to industry before imposition of priorities, by advance planning for substitute materials, by arranging for a tapering off rather than sudden elimination of raw material supplies.

b. To cooperate with the United States Employment Service in special efforts to find employment for workers made jobless by the imposition of priorities.

c. To cooperate with government education services for the retaining of workers made jobless by the imposition of priorities.

To cooperate with all Government agencies in fostering private plant expansion for the production of materials in which shortages are and apt to occur, and, in the event that a private plant or plants prove uncooperative in the expansion of production, to press for their operation by the Government.

Trade Union Committee to Abolish Discriminations on account of Race, Color, Religion or National Origin—The convention reaffirmed its position of last year upon this subject.

A. F. of L. Representation in the Canal Zone—The convention adopted a resolution calling for Mr. Hushing to visit the Isthmus of Panama at least once every six months during the period of national emergency.

The question of the formation of an Office Workers' International Union was again referred to the Executive Council by the convention.

A resolution calling for a Universal 6-hour day and 5-day week was adopted.

A resolution calling for the extension and improvement of the civil service system was also adopted, as was a resolution calling for higher standards in government employment.

The Executive Council directed attention to several bills pending before Congress, designed to eliminate the payment of a poll tax, as a prerequisite for voting. The committee recommended that the Council be instructed to endeavor to secure legislation to abolish this evil. The report of the committee was adopted.

A resolution advocating the extension of the Wagner-Peyser Act to Puerto Rico was adopted.

The convention also adopted:

The report of the Executive Council to continue opposition to the adoption of two bills on the subject of Anti-Trust legislation, known as HR-5218 by Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania and HR-5259 by A. S. Monroney of Oklahoma.

Voted to amend the National Labor Relations Act as drafted by the A. F. of L.

Reaffirmed its previous endorsement of the rules and regulations and the purpose and activities of the federal committee on apprenticeship and State apprenticeship schools.

Adopted a resolution calling upon all affiliated state and central bodies to name a committee on vocational training (if one does not exist which can so function) which committee shall be asked:

1. To gather, compile and analyze data on the subject of vocational education in its community;
2. To examine closely the training programs of emergency government agencies and the up-grading, in-training programs of industry;
3. To confer continually with social minded civic organizations in each community which are interested in such a program and to keep before them the social and economic aims of labor's program.
4. To assist in organizing teachers of these training programs into the only bona fide teacher trade union, the American Federation of Teachers; and it was further

RESOLVED, That each city central or state federation be urged to send the reports and findings of its committee on vocational education to the American Federation of Labor Committee on Education.

The above two resolutions were handled through the Committee on Education, whose report upon these subjects was unanimously adopted, as was their report on the following subjects affecting education: calling for the adoption of resolutions presented advocating adult education programs as a permanent project; reaffirming the traditional stand of the A. F. of L. in favor of federal aid to education; and reiterating its stand of 1940, urging the Congress of the U. S. to provide adequate funds for a research department in the U. S. Office of Education, and that the permanent Education Committee of the A. F. of L. cooperate in establishing such a department when the necessary funds are available.

The convention adopted numerous resolutions affecting the betterment of the working conditions and social benefits of postal and other government employees.

The convention also went on record in favor of reducing the per capita tax from International Unions to the A. F. of L. from two cents to one-and-a half cents per member per month.

Other outstanding actions of the final week of the convention included:

Adoption by unanimous vote of a strong stand in support of President Roosevelt's foreign policies and in furtherance of the national defense program.

Issuance of a convention call for a purge of racketeers from union ranks, together with the adoption of a new law banning anyone convicted of a crime from being seated in any central body.

Declaration of purpose to continue to seek restoration of unity in the labor movement, while resisting reprehensible efforts of the CIO to raid established A. F. of L. union organizations.

Formation of an organizing program designed to organize hundreds of thousands of unorganized workers during the coming year and lift the Federation's dues-paid membership total over the five million mark.

Strengthening of resistance to anti-labor legislation aimed at destroying the democratic rights of free trade unions.

Suspension of the Brewery Workers Union for failure to abide by jurisdictional rulings of the Federation.

Adoption of a program to extend aid to oppressed workers in other lands and to knit them together for the common purpose of restoring the rights of workers everywhere after the war is over.

The convention directed President Green to appoint a committee to study the entire problem of post-war reconstruction. The Federation's officers also were instructed to request Congress to appoint a national committee for the same purpose. Representatives of labor, industry, government and agriculture should serve on the national committee, the convention urged.

One of the outstanding resolutions on national defense adopted by the convention read as follows:

"The American Federation of Labor does hereby pledge its fullest support to the national defense program.

"We concur in President Roosevelt's policy of all possible aid to Great Britain and Russia and all other countries fighting Hitlerism.

"We support the policy of a complete embargo on all war materials destined for Japan and urge all possible assistance to China."

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON BUILDING TRADES

Your delegates believe that the report of the Committee on Building Trades, which deals with the very important subject of Housing, should be included in our report for the information of our membership, and we are herewith incorporating the same in this report:

REQUESTING USE OF MINIMUM PLUMBING CODE BY GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Resolution No. 137—By Delegate C. T. Lehmann, California State Federation of Labor.

WHEREAS, All civilized nations the world over have for years recognized the importance of sanitation in keeping their citizens healthy; and

WHEREAS, Practically all states, countries and cities in the United States have ordinances in force, drawn in conformity with the accepted sanitary standards governing the installation of plumbing; and

WHEREAS, The Navy Department, the Army and other governmental agencies have erected homes and other buildings in a number of cities and counties in California; and

WHEREAS, In the erection of these aforementioned buildings the plumbing was installed in conformity with a Plumbing Code titled B M S 66, which does not conform to above-mentioned sanitary standards; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor at its Sixty-First Annual Convention assembled in Seattle, Washington, request the Navy Department, the Army and the USHA and Mr. John Carmody, Administrator of Federal Works Agency, to use the minimum Plumbing Code submitted by the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters to the above-mentioned governmental agencies in place of B M S 66.

Committee Report

This resolution has for its objective the correction of a practice on the part of government agencies, engaged in the housed in sub-standard dwellings, whereby the plumbing codes housd in sub-standard dwellings, whereby the plumbing codes in existence in the areas where these projects are being constructed are in most instances ignored with inferior materials and workmanship substituted.

Your Committee finds this to be true not only with respect to plumbing work but to other standards as well. It has become rather a common practice to erect temporary make-shift type homes with little or no regard for the preservation of the housing standards of the respective communities where these projects are to be built.

We, your committee, are further of the opinion that the type of homes being erected to house defense and other workers are not in conformity with the proper standards, and do not provide adequate safeguards for health and sanitation, such as the proper type of plumbing, lathing, plastering and such other standard materials as are customarily used in home construction to the end that the workers and their families will be properly protected.

We believe it essential that our government, if necessary, allow a slight increase in the established cost per unit limitation in such housing so as to provide sufficient funds to make possible the purchase of the necessary materials for these projects.

We, your Committee, recommend that the incoming members of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to place this matter before the proper governmental agencies with a request that the above named practices be discontinued in order that the housing standards promoted by our Federation may be preserved. We therefore recommend concurrence in Resolution No. 137.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Your committee reports jointly on Resolutions Nos. 135, 164 and 165, which are as follows:

LOW RENT HOUSING AND SLUM CLEARANCE

Resolution No. 135—By Delegate C. T. Lehmann, California State Federation of Labor.

WHEREAS, The successful outcome of the national defense program depends on the health, welfare, and morale of the workers of America; and

WHEREAS, Acute shortage of housing for workers threatens the well-being and undermines the spirit of our wage earners and their families; and

WHEREAS, The low rent housing and slum clearance program locally, administered by local housing authorities with the aid of the United States Housing Authority, is Labor's program whose abandonment or interruption at this critical time would be detrimental to the welfare of the people of the United States; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor at its Sixty-First Annual Convention assembled in Seattle, Washington, instruct its officers to petition the Congress of the United States, and the President of the United States, to assure continuation of the Low Rent Housing and Slum Clearance Program, to authorize funds necessary to carry it on, and to assure priority ratings for materials and equipment necessary for the construction of USHA-aided projects.

USHA LOW RENT HOUSING PROGRAM

Resolution No. 164—By Delegate Harry C. Bates, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America; Delegate George Masterton, United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters; Delegate John P. Coyne, Building Trades Department, A. F. of L.

WHEREAS, During the past four years the United States Housing Authority has provided housing for low income families with speed, economy and efficiency; and

WHEREAS, The program of low rent housing and slum clearance construction which has been authorized by Congress to date is far too small to take care of millions of families who must be rehoused; and

WHEREAS, A permanent public housing program is essential if decent, low rent housing is to be made available to the families now subjected to the dangers of overcrowding and disease which prevail in slums; and

WHEREAS, To escape a recurrence of widespread unemployment at the end of the war emergency, such a long-range program must be planned now; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor reaffirm its belief that the United States Housing Authority is the Federal agency which should be entrusted with the entire program of housing for low income groups; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor take all steps necessary to secure without delay an additional authorization of loan funds to the United States Housing Authority, in order that the housing program may be continued.

PRIORITIES FOR LOW RENT HOUSING AND SLUM CLEARANCE

Resolution No. 165—By Delegate Harry C. Bates, Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America; Delegate George Masterton, United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters; Delegate John P .Coyne, Building Trades Department, A. F. of L.

WHEREAS, In hundreds of communities throughout the United States there are critical shortages or housing facilities for workers and their families; and

WHEREAS, Lack of decent, sanitary and soundly built housing facilities threatens the welfare of our workers; and

WHEREAS, The well-being and high morale of wage earners engaged in national defense production are indispensable to the success of our national effort; and

WHEREAS, The USHA program of low rent housing and slum clearance, administered by local housing authorities, constitutes the speediest and most economical means of providing sound, permanent, and livable homes for low income families of workers during defense emergency, and of meeting the housing needs of workers when the emergency is over; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor, its Housing Committee, and its affiliated organizations take all steps necessary to assure the continuation of the low rent housing and slum clearance program of the USHA during the present emergency; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor call upon the President of the United States to issue a blanket priority rating for building materials necessary for uninterrupted construction of low rent housing and slum clearance projects built with the aid of the United States Housing Authority.

Committee Report

These resolutions are concerned with the uninterrupted continuation of the low-rent housing and slum clearance program by local housing authorities, with the aid of the United States Housing Authority, and with the assurance of priority ratings for materials and equipment necessary for the construction of USHA aided projects.

The American Federation of Labor has had a major share of the responsibility in the formulation of a national low-rent housing and slum clearance program. The resulting Unitde States Housing Act of 1937 was approved by Congress with nation-wide support of our entire membership. In the past two years the Executive Council has made every effort to secure from Congress additional loan authorization to make possible timely expansion of this program. Although predominant sentiment in Congress strongly favored extension of low-rent housing for workers, minority interests, responsive to special pressures, have been successful in holding up this legislation in committees. Critical housing shortages which have developed in many industrial communities under defense conditions are in large measure attributable to the inabillty of the local housing authorities to secure loan funds from Congress in time to develop well-planned long-term projects to provide housing for low income wage-earners. And yet the United States Housing Authority, although deprived of adequate funds, was able to carry on the work of low-rent housing and slum clearance to perfect the standards of workers' housing, to achieve unprecedented economies in the construction of such housing, and to maintain the integrity of this pioneer program.

Low-rent housing for low income workers is an integral part of the program of social security we have developed in America. To suspend this program for the duration of the emergency would be no less disastrous than to suspend unemployment compensation, old age benefits, or any other permanent measures of economic security for workers, to the maintenance of which the government is pledged to the people. The USHA program of low-rent housing and slum clearance, locally administered by local housing authorities, has gained added importance in the present emergency. It offers the speediest and the most economical means of providing sound, permanent, and livable homes for low income families of workers during the emergency crisis. It is a program which, because of its local decentralized administration, truly reflects the needs of each community. Above all, it is a program of housing which can be fully and permanently utilized when the emergency is over.

Continuation of the low-rent housing and slum clearance program will not be possible unless blanket priority ratings for building materials and equipment necessary for uninterrupted construction of low-rent housing projects are assured by the Federal Government. In the administration of priorities, the vital contribution made by low-rent housing to the welfare and morale of our workers should be fully recognized. It is also clear that all low-rent housing now under construction or to be constructed will primarily serve defense workers.

Your Committee recommends that the American Federation of Labor, its Housing Committee, its local housing committees, and its affiliated organizations be directed to take all steps necessary to assure the continuation of the low-rent housing and slum clearance program of the USHA during the present emergency, and to secure from Congress additional authorization of loan funds for this purpose.

Your Committee recommends further that the American Federation of Labor request the President of the United States to authorize the issuance of a blanket priority rating for the USHA-aided low-rent housing projects.

Your Committee recommends full concurrence in the principles, purposes and policies of these resolutions.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Your committee reports jointly on Resolutions Nos. 133 134 and 136, as follows:

USE OF LOCAL HOUSING AUTHORITIES AS DEFENSE HOUSING AGENCIES

Resolution No. 133—By Delegate C. T. Lehmann, California State Federation of Laor.

WHEREAS, In communities in which defense production is concentrated, lack of housing for defense workers has made it necessary for workers responsible for defense production to live under shocking conditions; and

WHEREAS, Speedy construction of sound housing for defense workers which fully meets the needs of each community can best be achieved through the tested decentralized machinery of local housing authorities; and

WHEREAS, Local housing authorities are representative public agencies, established to serve the best interests of the community and are responsive to the real needs of defense workers; and

WHEREAS, A post-war housing crisis can be averted only by means of a unified program of housing designed to meet the long-range requirements of the entire community as well as to safeguard its people against bankruptcy, homelessness, and distress; and

WHEREAS, A local housing authority is an agency best fitted to assume the responsibility of solving the housing problem in its community at the end of the emergency; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Sixty-First Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor assembled in Seattle, Washington, with full support of the Central Labor Councils, Building and Construction Trades Councils, and Local Housing Committees, call upon the President of the United States to designate the local housing authorities as local defense housing agencies for the administration and development of all local defense housing, and for the formulation of post-war housing plans.

DEFENSE HOUSING PROJECTS

Resolution No. 134—By Delegate C. T. Lehmann, California State Federation of Labor.

WHEREAS, There is a need for 150,000 new homes for workers in defense industries; and

WHEREAS, Congress is now considering a bill appropriating $300,000,000 for this purpose; and

WHEREAS, The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has made a nation-wide survey and has advocated $600,000,000 for housing defense workers; and

WHEREAS, The defense housing projects constructed by the United States Housing Authority or in cooperation with local public housing agencies have generally proven to be superior to those constructed by other governmental agencies; and

WHEREAS, There exists and has always existed a good mutual understanding between the United States Housing Authority and Organized Labor; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That in order to carry out the policies of the Executive Council hereby: (1) This body go on record approving of the action of the Council and requesting the officers of the Executive Council to call upon members of Congress, urging them to give their unqualified support to this measure; to bring this matter to the attention of the officers of the affiliated national and international unions and of all local building trade councils and central labor councils and to take all other steps necessary to insure that these funds be appropriated and allotted to USHA; 2) Request the officers of the Department to continue their active cooperation with the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor in order to safeguard fair wages, working conditions and construction standards during construction of all USHA projects, and in order to secure satisfactory labor representation on all local housing authorities; and be it further

RESOLVED, That this resolution be endorsed by the Sixty-first Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor assembled in Seattle, Washington.

APPROPRIATION OF FUNDS FOR HOUSING PROJECTS

Resolution No. 136—By Delegate C. T. Lehmann, California State Federation of Labor.

WHEREAS, The National Defense Program has contributed further to an already acute shortage of decent housing; and

WHEREAS, Practically all funds available for defense housing have been exhausted, and housing conditions among defense workers are still deplorable; and

WHEREAS, The United States Housing Authority because of its three and one-half years of housing and planning experience, and because of its existing close relationships with the local housing authorities of communities throughout the United States, has demonstrated its ability to design, construct and manage housing projects possessing a high degree of utility and beauty, expeditiously and at a low cost; and

WHEREAS, The defense housing projects constructed by the United States Housing Authority or in cooperation with local public housing agencies have generally proven to be superior to those constructed by other government agencies; and

WHEREAS, There exists and has always existed a good mutual understanding between the United States Housing Authority and Organized Labor; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Sixty-first Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor, assembled in Seattle, Washington, direct its officers to call upon the members of the Congress of the United States urging them to appropriate the necessary funds for the construction of the essential additional defense housing; and be it further

RESOLVED, That these funds be allocated to the United States Housing Authority for the design, construction and management of additional defense housing in localities throughout the United States in cooperation with the local housing authorities of the communities.

Committee Report

These resolutions emphasize the need of speedy and sound housing for defense workers and for the utilization of local housing authorities as local defense housing agencies for the administration and development of all local defense housing and for the formulation of post-war housing plans.

Provision of adequate housing for defense workers has to date fallen far short of the need for housing in all communities in which defense production is concentrated. Lack of housing has forced defense workers and their families in many communities to live under intolerable conditions which, in a number of localities, have become chronic. Speedy provision of soundly built, sanitary dwellings for defense workers is one of our most urgent defense needs. Local housing authorities, constituted in most of our communities as representative public agencies, are best equipped to assume the responsibility for the construction of defense housing. Favoritism and pressure of vested interests in the administration of defense housing have combined to deprive the local housing authorities of responsibility for the development of defense housing, which would have been granted them exclusively under a sound defense housing plan.

Your Committee recommends that the American Federation of Labor urgently call upon Congress and the President of the United States for the promulgation of a unified program of defense public housing to be developed and administered by the local housing authorities under the supervision of the United States Housing Authority.

Your Committee recommends the approval of the purposes and policies embodied in these resolutions.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

HOUSING

Committee Report

HOUSING FOR WORKERS

Committee Report

This portion of the Executive Council's report contains a review of basic developments in the field of housing, and a broad statement of the American Federation of Labor's approach to the national housing policy.

Provision of adequate housing facilities for defense workers and their families is just as important as provision or materials, equipment and labor to turn out defense production itself. Lack of decent shelter and sanitary facilities in congested defense communities, provides a constant threat of epidemic and disease, placing in jeopardy the health and productive ability of our defense workers, and deters many of them from moving to defense centers and from filling strategic jobs. Thousands of our workers employed in the production of planes, ships, tanks, and guns are housed in trailers, and shanties, or are packed in cramped and crowded quarters in makeshift barracks, tents, jail houses and public buildings. Utter lack of sanitary facilities, adequate water supply and sewage disposal is common in communities in which defense production is concentrated. Unless they are provided with adequate quarters which meet minimum standards of space and comfort—unless these quarters are sufficient to afford the opportunities for needed rest and recreation—these workers cannot achieve top efficiency on defense production, and cannot contribute to the Nation the full measure of their skill and productivity. Nor should defense housing be furnished in the form of flimsy, small, ill-heated, jerry-built shacks. Sound, safely constructed, carefully planned homes meeting minimum standards of construction are the housing accommodations to which defense workers are entitled.

The Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor estimates need for 750,000 family dwelling units and 300,000 units for single workers to provide the most essential accommodations to workers on defense industries. In this connection, your committee deems it important to stress the following statement of the Executive Council, embodied in its report to this convention:

In reviewing the defense housing program in its entirety, devoted to repeated efforts to cajole private operative builders into doing a job on their own initiative and in their own way which the Federal Government could have started immediately and completed without delay. Even more time was spent on experiments with prefabrication in response to pressures from promoters eager to get the Federal Government to underwrite their promotion and development costs. At the same time the need for a public defense housing program was consistently understated. No attempt was made by the Administration to place before the public and before Congress the unassailable case in support of a prompt and adequate public defense housing program. No call was sounded for a single, unified, planned program which would fit the long range needs of defense communities and could be administered through the existing network of 618 local housing authorities equipped to build the housing best suited to the requirements of each community and to the needs of its workers.

It cannot be denied that the absence of such an aggressive policy served to bring out the acute housing crisis in our key defense communities. We urgently request that steps be taken by the American Federation of Labor and its Housing Committee to achieve a fundamental realignment and unification of the national housing policy. The insufferable conditions, which threaten the welfare of defense workers in the face of the approaching winter and threaten the defense program itself, must be promptly brought to an end. We ask that a housing program be formulated which would make speedy provision of durable, sanitary, and livable housing for defense workers the prime objective, second to none.

The first defense housing statute enacted in the present crisis was a proposal advocated and supported by the American Federation of Labor. This law, Public 671, approved by the President on June 28, 1940, authorizing utilization of the U. S. Housing Authority and of the tested and decentralized machinery of the local housing authorities throughout the Nation, contemplated a unified program designed to achieve sound planning, as well as maximum economy and speed in the construction of housing facilities for defense workers. Your Committee is in accord with the Executive Council that the framework of Public 671 is best suited for a public defense housing program, and recommends that every organization affiliated with the American Federation of Labor be urged to support the extension of defense housing under this statute.

The major portion of defense housing is being built under the Lanham Act, administered under the supervision of the Federal Works Agency. We note that at least ten separate and unrelated branches of federal and local governments have been designated as construction agencies to carry out this program. Integration of defense housing construction administration and establishment of uniform standards and procedures for the entire public defense housing program is a vital necessity. Prime responsibility for the execution of this program must be placed upon the local housing authorities of the USHA.

A major development in defense housing was the approval by Congress of Title VI of the National Housing Act, which provides for private construction of homes in defense areas under especially favorable mortgage financing by the FHA. This program, formulated and recommended by the Defense Housing Coordinator, now provides for the construction of $300,000,000 worth of privately built housing.

Your Committee concurs with the Executive Council's view that it is highly questionable to press home ownership upon defense workers in emergency jobs, under terms which most workers could ill afford under normal conditions and can afford even less when their defense jobs are necessarily unstable and uncertain. A public policy designed to anchor to home ownership low-income defense workers, whose employment status is least secure, is ill-conceived and unsound. To bring to these workers the pretense of home ownership, without in any way protecting the risk they assume in underwriting the entire equity without a down payment, is a policy subversive to the true American ideal of sound and permanent home ownership we hope to bring within the reach of our wage-earners. Under the terms of this title, the banker and the builder are given 100 per cent protection by the government of the risk they assume. The worker, however, is given no protection whatsoever, and would be subject to the deficiency judgments for the unpaid balance on a home he would be forced to give up when his emergency employment terminated. Your Committee commends the Executive Council for their disapproval of this proposal, and for their attempts to correct its most vicious features.

We concur in the statement of the Executive Council that skyrocketing rents in many defense centers call for prompt remedy and place a special responsibility on our local housing committees. Union representatives should serve on all local fair rent committees already established, and where none exist should see to it that such committees are properly established. We recommend the establishment of rent ceilings in defense areas by Congressional authority, with full provision for local recommendations and labor representation in the fixing of such ceilings. Until provision is made by law to establish such ceilings on rents, we urge that our Housing Committee be authorized to recommend a program of action to our unions to protect defense workers against exploitation by unscrupulous landlords and others seeking to take advantage of emergency conditions for profiteering.

We commend the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor for its vigilance in protecting the interests of labor with regard to housing, and recommend that, in view of the urgency of the defense housing problem, sufficient facilities be made available to the Committee to intensify its efforts and to enable it to serve fully the housing needs of our membership during the ensuing year.

Shifting and unstable defense employment of building mechanics and laborers make it particularly important that the employment needs of building workers be made fully known to the government agencies concerned, and a sound program of housing construction be developed.

Labor must meet the present emergency by taking an active and leading part in the formulation and development of a sound program of housing for the Nation. To assure full representation and effective voice in the development of this program active participation of every union of the American Federation of Labor is urgently needed. We strongly concur in the recommendation that all Central Labor Unions and State Federations of Labor be urged to bring their housing committees to full activity, so that, under the general supervision of the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor, they can provide effective channels for information, representation, and action pertaining to housing in every community of the Nation.

The permanent program of low-rent housing and slum clearance is labor's program and must not be allowed to lapse during the emergency. Its value to the nation in defense and as a means of meeting the post-war housing problem is of foremost importance. Full priority ratings must be accorded to low-rent projects to make possible their uninterrupted construction.

In the administration of all housing and building priorities labor has an immediate and vital concern. Full labor representation is essential in the administration of priorities on building materials, supplies and in connection with regulations governing allocation of defense construction.

With these recommendations your Committee urges the adoption of this portion of the Executive Council's report.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT

Committee Report

The past year has set a high mark in the record of achievement of the Building and Construction Trades Department in its service of safeguarding the interests and advancing the welfare of mechanics and laborers in the great building and construction industries. We note with special commendation the successful conclusion of a nationwide agreement with regard to labor standards and labor policies, negotiated and concluded for our membership with the representatives of the United States Government.

Substantial reduction in jurisdictional disputes in the field of building and construction is largely the result of the far-sighted policy, firmly pursued by the department, to solve equitably conflicts arising from the introduction of new materials, and organizational developments in the building trades.

The Building and Construction Trades Unions have fully lived up to their pledge of unstinted cooperation with the national government in the defense emergency. The record which has been established, which has reduced delays and stoppages of work due to disputes, to negligible proportions, is especially notable.

We commend the officers of the Building and Construction Trades Department for their record of statesmanship, vision and service to labor during the past year.

Your Committee recommends the adoption of this portion of the Executive Council's report.

Chairman Masterton moved the adoption of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded.

Vice-President Bates: While this Convention has been meeting one of the most remarkable spectacles in labor history has been unfolding in Washington. Leaders of the Construction Workers' Unions of the C. I. O., marching side by side with two of the foremost enemies of labor, Representative Clare Hoffman of Michigan and Representative Howard W. Smith of Virginia, have unleashed a bitter and destructive attack upon the Building Trades Unions of the American Federation of Labor and the national defense program.

Hoffman and Smith, bitterly critical of every labor action since they have been in Congress, have come to the defense of the C. I. O.'s Construction Workers' Union, headed by Denny Lewis. They are supporting the effort of the United Construction Workers, to portray Patrick J. Currier, notorious anti-union mill owner of Detroit as a friend of Labor.

Currier's record in Detroit is notorious. He has resisted all unionization efforts and has been the subject of National Labor Relations Board action started by the C. I. O. A few months after Currier promised to comply with the Wagner Act and got the Labor Board case against him dropped, last February, a bloody riot took place in front of his plant. Arthur Quesbarth, a member of the Teamsters' Union, was fatally injured when he was struck by a missile hurled by one of the "loyal workers" of Currier's gang, who, at that time were classed as scabs by both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

In August, Currier called his workers together in a meeting and told them he wanted them to join a union. He signed a closed shop union contract with a check-off provision, after which the clerks, stenographers, factory workers and Building Trades workers in his employ were required to join the C. I. O. union.

Currier's wage rates, according to labor men in Detroit, have ranged from 45c to 80c an hour, whereas $1.40 an hour is the average rate on the housing projects jobs built by members of the Building Trades Unions of the American Federation of Labor in that area.

This new C. I. O. propaganda campaign against the Building Trades Unions has received extensive publicity in the daily newspapers all over the nation, which have followed with charges that the A. F. of L. has been given a monopoly on defense construction. We of the labor movement know there is no truth in it, but I feel that we must make every effort to answer the charges in the public press and public forums. I urge you to take back to your communities the real story of the stabilization agreement between the Building and Construction Trades Department and the government construction agencies.

This stabilization agreement is a high point in the government's labor relations. It was entered into freely after full discussion between the recognized building trades union, working through the Building and Construction Trades Department, and the government. It was not done in secret. It was announced in full text last July 24.

In that agreement the Building Trades Unions showed their patriotism by agreeing not to strike on defense jobs, and by relinquishing special prerogatives, including double pay for overtime, which had been enjoyed very widely. These concessions saved millions of dollars to the government—but the saving of dollars was not the important thing, either to the government or to the unions.

The regularization of employment, together with the mobilization of the supply of workers by the Building Trades Unions, enabled the government to insure that the defense job would be done. It enabled the defense program to work out methods for orderly transfer of labor, without cost to the government, for the construction of huge projects in out-of-the-way locations. It set up a uniform structure of wages and working conditions which discouraged labor raiding, and enabled skilled and semi-skilled Building Trades workers to get jobs near their homes.

The agreement furthermore showed that the Building Trades Unions stood ready to do their part in completing the Defense building program in the shortest possible time; that they were ready to sacrifice in order to insure production.

Now the charge of monopoly is made against us. I ask you, is it a monopoly for the government's defense construction agencies to make an agreement with the only organized body of labor supply which could possibly do the gigantic job which it faced? Is it a monopoly for the government not to deal with a union which has organized chiefly by signing up low-wage, non-union contractors instead of workers?

There is nothing secret, monopolistic or fraudulent about the agreement, and I submit that it is your duty to defend it in your communities when you return to your homes. It is your duty to prevent the C. I. O. Construction Workers Union from selling the public the idea that it really represents any great number of the highly skilled construction workers of America.

Unlike most union organized efforts, the C. I. O. Construction Workers' Union was aimed at an industry which was not only well-organized but also one in which the organized labor movement has after many years of struggle established high standards of wages and conditions. These wages and conditions played a prominent part in the effort of thousands and thousands of workers, both organized and unorganized in maintaining their wage rates during the last decade.

By back-door methods, by secret deals with anti-labor employers such as Currier, this C. I. O. union is endeavoring to destroy the benefits enjoyed by the Building Trades Unions of the A. L. of L.

it is impossible to escape the conclusion that no clear-cut, single-minded policy with regard to housing has been formulated by the Federal Government. This has resulted inevitably in a multitude of different and often conflicting policies and in wasteful competition among several operating agencies with overlapping jurisdictions.

The attitude of the Administration toward the place of public housing in the defense program was one of hesitancy and indecision. Many precious days, weeks, and months were

This attack upon the Building Trades unions and upon the action of the Office of Production Management is more than an effort to obtain a housing contract for a notorious anti-union operator.

It is an attack upon the defense program, and an attack upon the position of the A. F. of L. building trades unions. It is an attack upon the standards of wages and working conditions which our unions have developed over many years of bitter struggle. It is an attack upon our entire standard of living.

I want to announce here and now a warning to the American people to be on their guard against the vicious attack now being made on the Building Trades unions of the A. F. of L. by the obstructionist labor-hating Congressmen, by labor-hating columnists and labor-hating firms like the Currier firm and those in league with them.

We must rally against this unholy alliance and defend the democratic procedure as embodied in the stabilization agreement between the Building Trades and the different Government agencies entrusted with the building program necessary for National Defense.

The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Secretary Masterton: This completes the report of the Committee on Building Trades. It is signed by the entire committee:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Anti-injunction bills were introduced in ten states and passed in New Jersey only, the Executive Council reported. State labor relations acts were introduced in thirteen states, but passed in Rhode Island only. The committee urged the State Federations of Labor to continue in their efforts to secure the passage of these anti-injunction bills. Members on this committee were:

Wm. L. Hutcheson, Gordon Chapman, Everett W. Cox, Joseph S. Fay, Walter Matthews, Harry Milton, E. E. Henriksen,

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON INTERNATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS

The committee concurred in the petition of the Free Federation of Workingmen of Puerto Rico to establish adequate living standards for the Island's workers. The report of the committee was adopted.

(Puerto Rico is considered part of our own country and an error was made in submitting the resolution on the above to this committee.)

Establishment of a Branch Office of the Pan American Federation of Labor in Puerto Rico, in cooperation with the State Federation of Labor of Puerto Rico, was considered also, and referred to the Executive Council. The report of the Committee was adopted.

Need at this time for a Standing Committee of International Relations was recognized and the committee concurred in the recommendation that such a committee be established. The committee's report was adopted.

International Labor Organization—The committee urged membership in this agency of International cooperation be continued. Report of the committee was adopted.

The committee recommended that the convention reaffirm its pledge of support to the International Federation of Trade Unions; and likewise recommended concurrence in the Executive Council's report on this. The report of the Committee was adopted.

Pan American Federation of Labor—Since the first Pan American labor conference was held in 1936, a number of Latin American countries have adopted labor legislation comparable to our own. The committee urged that all support from the American Federation of Labor be rendered countries in the Western Hemisphere, including British Possessions in the Caribbean. The Committee recommended approval of the Executive Council's report on this subject. Report of the Committee adopted.

Hope and Aid to Oppressed People—The problem of the Jewish people, who have been singled out for especial savage persecution by the Hitler regime, was considered, with the recommendation that after the present world chaos has subsided, that Great Britain, in cooperation with the United States and other democratic countries, take necessary steps to restore the Jewish people their national life on the soil of Palestine. The report of the Committee was adopted.

The report of the committee as a whole was adopted. Members on this committee were: Thomas E. Burke, chairman; Matthew Woll, secretary; William Green, D. J. Tobin, George L. Berry, W. D. Mahon, Wm. L. Hutchseon, Wm. J. Bowen, Albert Adamski, Joseph V. Moreschi, Joseph P. Ryan, E. E. Millman, J. A. Franklin, John P. Frey, Christian M. Madsen, Edward Flore, Henry F. Schmal, Dennis Lane, Wm. J. McSorely, W. C. Birthright, John B. Haggerty, P. J. Morrin, Felix H. Knight, James Maloney, Harry Stevenson.

COMMITTEE ON SHORTER WORK DAY AND SHORTER WORK WEEK

In conceding that it may be necessary to work men overtime in some instances, the Executive Council pointed out that actual figures prove a longer workday is more than offset by increased industrial accidents. Conserving the health and productive capacity of our workers is just as essential as it is to conserve raw materials and there does not appear to be any sound reason for lengthening the hours of labor at this time. The Council further emphasized that it would be unfair and unjust to those who have been called to serve in the armed forces of our country if, on their return, they found those who remained at home had been unwilling to maintain the living and working standards that they enjoyed before.

The committee warmly commended the Executive Council for its comprehensive report and sound recommendations and recommended concurrence in this portion of the Council's report; also recommended that the proper officials of the American Federation of Labor recommend to the post-war readjustment or economic committee that may be created by act of Congress or executive order, the application of the 6-hour or 5-day work week, without any reduction in hourly, daily or weekly pay, for all workers, immediately when the post-war period arrives, as a partial remedy for the unemployment that they feel will follow.

The report of the committee was adopted as a whole. Members comprising this committee were: Harry Stevenson, chairman; Herman Seide, secretary; Joseph Tremblay, James Meehan, Chris Lane, Eduardo Molisani, Frank H. Weibel, William Cooper, Joseph Hauser, Louis P. Marclante, Sal B. Hoffman, C. F. Strickland, Milton P. Webster, John F. McCann, Harry J. Hagen, Samuel Ashton, Ira S. Turley, Patrick E. Gorman, Walter J. Kenefick, Fred A. Moore, C. J. Haggerty.

The number of Vice Presidents in the A. F. of L. was reduced from fifteen to thirteen.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing term

President	William Green
First Vice President	Wm. L. Hutcheson
Second Vice President	Matthew Woll
Third Vice President	Joseph N. Weber
Fourth Vice President	G. M. Bugniazet
Fifth Vice President	Geo. M. Harrison

Toronto, Ontario, Canada, was chosen as the next Convention city.

The Sixty-first Convention of the American Federation of Labor was considered as being one of the most successful conventions ever held, dealing with almost every conceivable phase affecting the working classes of people, as well as the general public at large.

The report of the Executive Council of the Federation was composed of a printed booklet, containing 203 pages, dealing with every phase of the Labor movement in general.

The Proceedings of this Convention are very voluminous and are both interesting, instructive and educational and we would recommend that our membership, wherever it may be possible, secure a copy for their own information.

Your delegates desire to take this opportunity of thanking the officers and members of Local 104 for their very kind and courteous welcome to their city as well as for their generous hospitality extended to us during our visit to Local 104.

We also extend to the Convention Committee of the American Federation of Labor and the trades unions of Seattle in general our thanks for their kind and generous hospitality extended to us during our stay in their city.

Respectfully submitted,
William J. McSorley

HOUSTON LATHERS ERECTED THIS STEEL HOUSE

This is a six-room steel frame house, constructed by the Joint Alliance of Lathers, Plasterers and Hod Carriers of Houston, Texas.

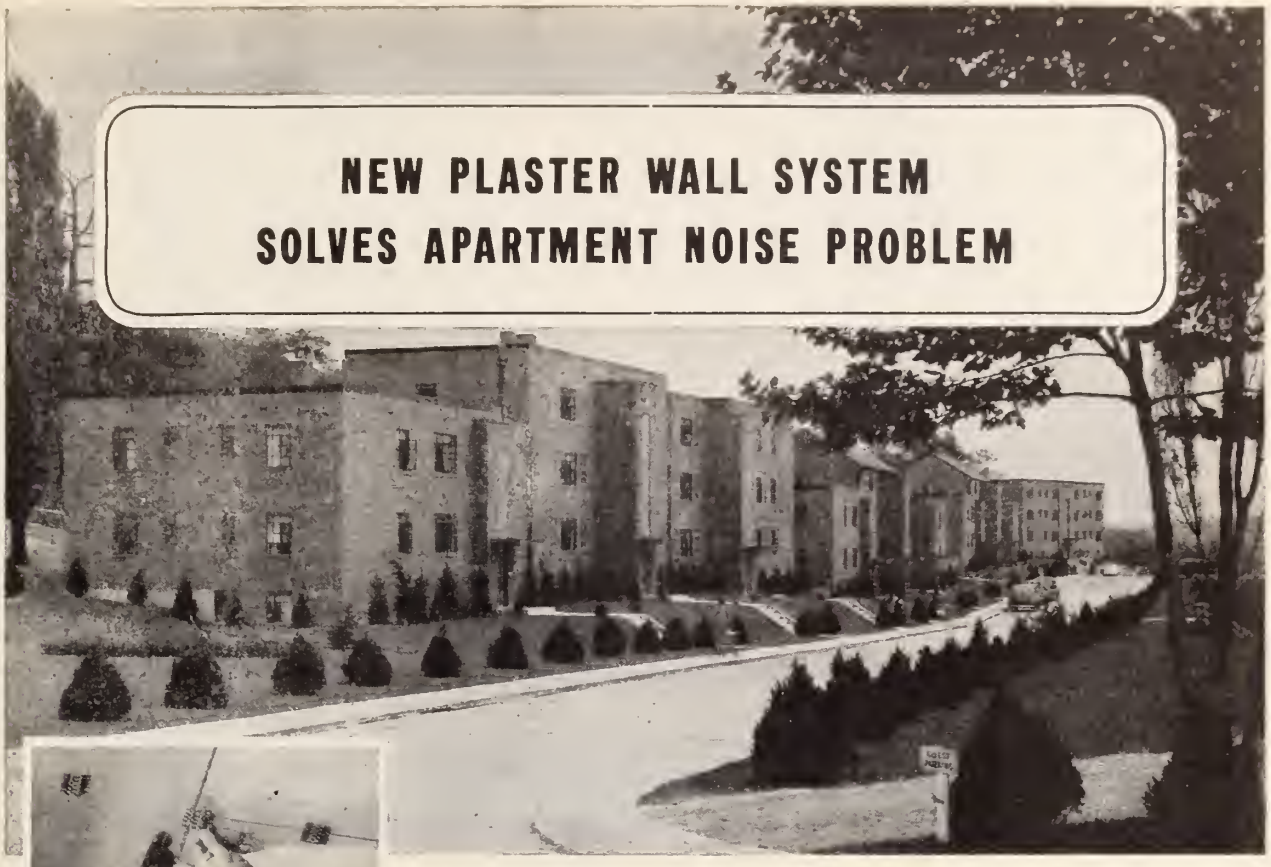

Joists, studs, beams, rafters, every structural member, were constructed by lathers; and outside-stuccoed and inside-plastered by the plasterers, to produce the very pleasing result shown.

Outside steel studs are 4 in. by 6 in. Inside and out it is lathed with 3 ft. 4 in. herringbone lath. The roof was constructed of 6 in. studs.

Members of our Local Union 224 were employed in the erection of this fire-proof, vermin- and termite-proof house, and were paid the regular scale of $1.50 per hour in effect at the time.

The total cost to the local union did not exceed six hundred dollars.

NEW PLASTER WALL SYSTEM SOLVES APARTMENT NOISE PROBLEM

AT BRENTSHIRE VILLAGE APARTMENTS IN PITTSBURGH, the Gold Bond Floating Wall System has given Builder Kovach insurance against plaster cracks plus a fireproof barrier that reduces noise transmission between floors. As shown at left, any lather can easily apply the patented nails between panels of gypsum lath, and plastering is done in the usual manner. With all these advantages, the only extra cost is the price of the nails.

IN Pittsburgh's smart Brentshire Village apartments, builder Stephen E. Kovach, Jr., solved the problem of noise transmission between floors by using the new Gold Bond Floating Wall System. Thanks to the patented Floating Wall nail, this gypsum lath and plaster system not only controls room-to-room noise, but provides greater fire protection, and eliminates nine-tenths of the causes for plaster cracking! To the plasterer and lather, the Gold Bond Floating Wall System offers a broad opportunity for increased business and better profits—because it costs so little you can use it in everything from a deluxe apartment to a limited budget home.

Another Gold Bond "First"

This exclusive Gold Bond development is only one example of how you get the best things first from Gold Bond. National Gypsum Company's research laboratories produced the famous Gold Bond Microplastic Plaster—the easier working plaster that's tube-milled from purest gypsum rock. They created the exclusive Gold Bond metal arch bead that makes perfect low-cost arches on the job, without special tools. Gold Bond has set new standards for the industry, and today to plasterers and lathers everywhere the Gold Bond line means easier handling, better results, lower costs and increased profits.

More than 300 trained Gold Bond representatives are at your service, and when Gold Bond is specified exclusively, the responsibility for all products rests upon one organization—the world's largest exclusive manufacturer of wall and ceiling materials. ATTENTION MEMBERS!

We have been requested by the officials of Local 53 to announce that the Forty-first Anniversary Testimonial Dinner, to be tendered to their Business Representative Lionel Brodeur, will be held Saturday evening, November 22, at the Town Hall, Broad and Race Streets, Philadelphia, and not at the Broadwood Hotel, as originally selected by the committee. We hope all who have bought tickets will take note of this change.

WHAT IS FREEDOM?

By Ruth Taylor

Freedom—the word meets us every time we twist the radio dials, or pick up a newspaper. It has a way of slipping into every serious conversation. Even in the lightest fiction today, we find the characters delivering monologues on the importance of freedom.

But what is this freedom which is our dearest possession?

Freedom is to speak and think without restriction and without fear.

Freedom is to associate with men of all races and creeds in the fellowship of cooperative effort for the good of all.

Freedom is to be tolerant, to grant to others the rights and consideration we want for ourselves.

Freedom is to have the right to work, and to change our work or place of working as we deem best.

TO ALL PERSONS WHO ARE RECEIVING MONTHLY BENEFITS UNDER THE OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE PROVISIONS OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT:

If you are receiving insurance benefits under the Social Security Act, you must have received a notice—an award letter—from the Social Security Board at the time your claim was approved, explaining that there are circumstances under which your benefits might stop. Did you keep that notice? If so, read it again now. It tells you that you must notify the Social Security Board if and when your circumstances change in such a way that your benefits should stop.

For example, you must notify the Board if you go to work on a job which is covered by the Social Security Act and which pays you as much as $15 a month (that is, more than $14.99). This provision of the law applies to everybody who receives monthly insurance benefits—retired workers, their wives, children, widows, dependent parents. And if a retired worker's benefits stop, the monthly payments to his wife or children stop during the time his are suspended.

The Social Security Board is sending out this reminder now because the defense program is calling for workers of all ages, and many people entitled to monthly insurance benefits are now working, or may be working, on jobs that are covered by the Social Security Act. This includes jobs in factories, mines, mills, shops, stores, offices, hotels, restaurants, laundries, telephone, telegraph, and radio services, construction work, trucking, or any other business or industry carried on by a private individual, firm, contractor, or corporation.

You may work on any job not covered by the Act, of course, and receive your benefits, no matter how much you earn. If you are in doubt as to whether a particular job is covered, ask the nearest Social Security Board office.

Other circumstances of which the Social Security Board should be notified are the marriage, divorce, or death of anybody who is receiving benefits; the fact that a child has reached the age limit for benefits, or has stopped school.

Here are the general instructions to follow:

1. If you or any of your family have been receiving insurance benefits under the Social Security Act, and any change occurs in circumstances which might affect the benefit rights of yourself or any member of the family, notify the Social Security Board, Washington, D. C. Unless notice is given within two months after the circumstance arises, there may be a penalty. The penalty is loss of two benefit payments for every

CHARLES TRENHOLM NO. 763

Died June 22, 1941, at the age of 84 years. An old-time, faithful, and loyal member of Local 72. All officers and members of Local 72 pay tribute to our deceased brother in these lines (author unknown) submitted by Brother J. J. Buckley some time ago, but not published earlier for lack of space:

He has done the work of a true man.
Crown, honor, and love him.
Weep o'er him tears of no men;
Stoop manliest brows above him.
For the warmest of hearts,
The freest of hands is still.
And the gap of our picked and chosen
The long years will not fill.
No duty could overtake him,
No need his will outran
Or ever what lips could ask him.
His hands the work had done;
In self he forgot for others.
Himself to friends lending,
Found the Lord in his suffering brothers
And not in clouds descending.
Ah well! The world is discreet.
There are plenty who pause and wait,
But here was a man who set his feet
All times in a chance of fate, redressing
Never rode to wrongs a worthier prologue
Shall he not hear God's blessing:
"Good and faithful one, enter in."

WIT AND HUMOR

The pessimist was suffering from rheumatism.

"Every bone in my body aches," he complained.

"You ought to be glad you are not a herring," said the optimist.

———o———

"What's happened George?" she asked her husband, who had gotten out of the car to investigate.

"Puncture," he said, briefly.

"You ought to have been on the lookout for this," was the helpful remark. "You remember the guide warned you there was a fork in the road."

———o———

The motorist whose car had come to a sudden standstill quickly diagnosed the trouble, and then applied at a neighboring cottage for assistance.

"Pardon me," he said to the woman who answered his knock, "do you by chance possess any lubricating oil?"

The woman shook her head.

"Any oil will do," said the motorist, hopefully; "castor oil, if you have any."

"I ain't got it," said the woman, "but I could fix you up with a dose of salts."

———o———

Sergeant—Now take that rifle and find out how to use it.

Draftee—Tell me one thing. Is it true that the harder I pull the trigger the farther the bullet will go?

———o———

Two workmen sat down to eat their lunch and one began unwrapping a parcel about 18 or 20 inches long.

"What's that?" asked his friend.

"Well, my wife is away, so I made a pie for myself."

"A bit long, ain't it?"

"Of course it's long; it's rhubarb."

———o———

First Chorine: "I have good reasons to believe that your fiance is going to give you a diamond engagement ring this evening.

Second Chorine: "Well, is that any skin off your nose?"

First Chorine: "No, but it took a lot off my finger giving it back to him."

———o———

The woman autoist posed for a snapshot in front of the fallen pillars of an ancient temple in Greece.

"Don't get the car in the picture," she said, "or my husband will think I ran into the place."

The lecturer was emphasizing the demoralizing effect of divorce.

"Love," he said, "is a quest; a proposal, a request; the giving of a daughter in marriage, a bequest; and marriage itself the conquest. But what is divorce?"

Voice From the Audience—The inquest.

———o———

Chang, a farmer of Mingkwank, was hopelessly in debt. So he and his wife decided to hold a "banquet of death" and commit suicide.

With great care Chang's wife killed and prepared a chicken, which she proceeded to cook in arsenic.

Just as everything was ready and set upon the table, Chang and his wife heard bandits. Frightened, they hid.

The bandits, overjoyed to find a feast prepared, sat down and boisterously ate the whole of the chicken and drank all the wine.

One by one the whole seventeen collapsed, groaning in agony.

Soon all the bandits were dead on the floor. Chang and his wife came out of hiding. They searched the bandits and found $600.

The police decided the money belonged to Chang, so his financial troubles were over.

———o———

Wife (at breakfast)—Could I have a little money for shopping today, dear?

Husband—Certainly. Would you rather have an old five or a new one?

Wifey—A new one, of course.

Husband—Here's the one, I'm four dollars short.

———o———

The famous film star was worried and his friends were trying to find out what was wrong.

"Well," said one of them, "I don't see what you've got to worry about. You've got everything you want—success, admiration, youth, and, above all, plenty of money."

"Yes," sighed the star, "I suppose that's what really matters in life—having success and money."

"Then what's troubling you?" persisted the other.

"I am just wondering," came the star's reply, "what good all my money is to me. Here am I with everything I want—and my poor old mother has to starve in a garret."

———o———

"I see where a Virginia man has succeeded in crossing a cabbage with an onion."

"I wonder what they'll name the cigar?"

VICE PRESIDENT PRIESTLY RETELLS PRAISES FOR ELECTRICIANS' PRESIDENT

The official family of Local 74 were invited to attend a banquet in the Grand Ballroom of the Stevens Hotel, to honor Brother Charles M. Paulsen, President of Local 134 for twenty-three successive years, and an executive officer of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. I prepared to attend this function (at the time just another banquet) with a slight feeling of resentment and a dull ache for my slippers and a quiet evening at home. However, I arrived at the banquet in due course and dined with our party at a table reserved for us, but as there were more than two thousand guests, our table was located in the foyer of the Grand Ballroom.

After the dinner, the overflow guests were graciously invited to take seats thoughtfully provided for us in the Grand Ballroom, so that all could hear the speeches and see the presentations and later enjoy the floor show. Again we were torn between the vision of slippers and the long-winded laudations, mixed with self-aggrandizement usual on such occasions; and again duty prevailed and I and my fellow officers of Local 74 seated ourselves in line with the master of ceremonies and prepared to be bored. When, lo and behold, a miracle transpired.

As each speaker was called upon, we heard homely, old fashioned words of respect, love, honor and gratitude, straight from the heart, spoken by prominent members of that great labor fraternity, to their brother, Charlie M. Paulsen, with an obvious honesty and candor that shone throughout the proceedings like a beacon on a starless night. And we saw a vision of a foundation laid on that love and respect of the general membership for Charles Paulsen; and the laying of the cornerstone by toastmaster Dan Manning; of a mighty pedestal as rugged and enduring as his native Northland, erected, stone by stone, by each successive speaker. And on this pedestal was placed a living, breathing Charlie Paulsen, in recognition of his fifty years of tireless effort and sympathetic devotion to the ideals of the true unionist, that causes him to give and give again from his store of time and energy, for the betterment of his fellow worker and to the uplift of all mankind.

As for Charlie, when the time came for him to respond, he stood at the mike completely overcome with emotion and his best effort was: "I—I—just can't talk. Thank you! Thank you!"

And now, Charlie, may we join with your thousands of friends in sincere best wishes to you and your good wife for many more years of useful activity and the fullest measure of pure human happiness.

WHAT'S THE USE?

What's the use to worry, you've not got long to stay? Why not take things easy as you pass along life's way? 'Twill do no good to worry, if things are going wrong. You may as well be pleasant, meet reverses with a song.

What's the use to criticize? What's the use to knock? What's the use to ridicule, or at some to throw a rock?

Don't appoint yourself a censor, no matter what you do; this great big world was never made for just a chosen few. There's none of us that's perfect there are few of us who stray, and never stray or wander from the straight and narrow way. So when you start to hammer some poor fool who's gone astray, 'twill do no harm to pause and think, you may loose your grip some day.

What's the use to kick one who's just about to fall? If you do not care to help him, don't mention him at all. You'll find if you take notice, that what I say is true; while there may be faults in others - there's a flaw or two in you.—Anon.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

"The United States, here she stands
With no silk hose nor aluminum pans;
Gas and oil are hard to get,
We'll be back in the one-horse shay, I bet;
But it will give everybody a chance to see How good 'the good old days' might be!"

one that would have been lost otherwise.

2. If you should receive a benefit check after circumstances have arisen which might affect your right to benefits, don't cash the check. Return it to the United States Treasury, Washington, D. C., giving the reason why.
3. If anybody in the family who is entitled to benefits or has been receiving benefits should marry, be divorced, or die, notify the Social Security Board at once.
4. If you change your address, notify the Social Security Board.
5. When a child reaches the age limit for benefits, or when a child age 16 or 17 stops school (except for regular vacations), notify the Social Security Board.

THANKSGIVING DAY 1941

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. . . . The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof: the world and they that dwell therein. . . . O Lord, Thou preservest man and beast.—Psalms.

By John J. Buckley

Today, all places, homes and kirk,
Our thanks, Dear Lord, ascend to Thee,
That in our burdens and our work
Thy gentle Grace and Sympathy
O'er shadowed us in work and home;
And Gifts and Blessings have bestown.
Thus as we feast, Do Thou us bless,
Our Land, and all within, in quietness.

That from our lands and bounteous fields
No one the fear of hunger know.
We are but stewards for the needs
Of each; to each to be expended
In life's bounty You have lended.
Our stewardship be not unjust,
Be faithful always In Thy Trust,
Thy Gifts bestow.

Though other lands feel the despair
Of faith surrendered, the awful cost,
That in each hour and day of prayer
We come to Thee is never lost;
For signal blessings so great, so deep.
In Loving Kindness keep us meek
And for Thy Guidance always seek,
And Thanksgiving Day be everywhere.

TO ALL OUR LOCAL UNIONS

Staple materials needed by the building industry, and our trade in particular, are being withdrawn to use in our National Defense, under priorities allocations.

We ask you to petition your Congressmen and Senators in Washington, and bring pressure on them, to institute an investigation of the shortage of building materials, and to see if there is not some way enough material can be released to continue our building program.

Copy the following letter and send it to your Congressmen and Senators:

Honorable Sir:

In view of the fact that an acute shortage of the Critical Materials needed in production for our National Defense Program is causing a serious disruption and dislocation of labor in our great building and affiliated industries, we hereby petition you to use your good office and institute a complete investigation of the entire situation.

With the vast resources and production possibilities our country affords, it is not conceivable why an adequate supply of these materials cannot be produced and manufactured to supply the needs and demands of this country.

The feasibility of curtailed production by Industrialists, to assure a greater share of profits due to our needs, is obvious, likewise, the possibility of exporting tons of these materials for unwarrantable purposes to the Allied Forces, under the Lend-Lease Act.

In carrying out our request, the facts about this acute material shortage will be determined, and we can, in all probability, safeguard the security and avoid disrupted employment of millions of our workers.

Very sincerely yours,

Anti-Labor Currier Bid Plot To Hinder Defense And Raid AFL.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Testimony before the Senate Committee investigating defense contracts exposed the "sweetheart agreement" between the Currier Lumber Company and the CIO Construction Workers Union as a plot to harass the A. F. of L. building trades unions and to embarrass the national defense construction program.

Facts submitted to the committee by Richard J. Gray, Acting President of the A. F. of L. Building and Construction Trades Department, disclosed that the Currier firm has a long record of anti-labor practices which should effectively bar it from receiving any Government contract.

Mr. Gray warmly defended the role of Sidney Hillman, Associate Director of the OPM, in helping to bring about the stabilization agreement entered into by the A. F. of L. building trades unions with Government defense agencies. He denied this agreement gave the A. F. of L. unions a monopoly on defense construction jobs and proved that a large number of these projects were awarded to non-union contractors.

Mr. Gray also submitted proof that the rejected Currier bid for a housing project in Detroit was not $400,000 lower than the next lowest bidder. He showed that the actual difference was only $216,000 and added significantly:

"If the committee prefers to investigate this point further, it would be interesting for them to subpoena from the Social Security Board the records of the social security taxes paid on the employes of the Currier Lumber Company. This would, to say the least, establish one particular point—that is, what were the wage rates paid by the Currier Company to their so-called 'union employes?' I have heard it alleged that the wages paid their mill workers ranged from 60 to 70 cents an hour in most cases. If this is so, that is from 20 to 30 cents below the wage customarily paid by employers of union labor for mill workers in the Detroit area and would, in a certain degree, account for some of the difference of the questioned $216,000.

"In view of the large publicity given in the public press and by radio commentators to this matter and the fact that the difference in the bids was freely stated as being $430,000, I think that the committee owes it to the citizens of this country to clarify these facts."

The Currier Lumber Company's labor record is so bad that industrial strife would unquestionably ensue if the contract were awarded to that firm, Mr. Gray declared. He submitted statements exposing this company's labor record and we mention two incidents in particular which reveal this company's nefarious activities:

"The Currier Lumber Company has a 6-year record of practices which under the National Labor Relations Act are considered unfair and illegal. It has advocated an open shop and encouraged such a policy in the Retail Lumber Dealers Association of Detroit. It has intimidated its employes from joining the union of their own choosing. It has fostered a company union among the workers of the Currier Lumber Company. Its subsidiary organization has chiseled on its workers pay, it has sent strikebreakers into a number of struck or lock-out plants, as well as aiding and abetting lumber dealers in their fight against organized labor and we hold Mr. Currier is responsible for the death of one of our members in a lumber dispute last spring.

"As far back as March, 1937, when the Truck Drivers' Local No. 247 of the Building Material Coal and Excavating Drivers and Helpers Union was engaged in a city-wide lock-out with the Lumber Dealers Association, Mr. Currier was a very active member of the Labor Committee which was set up by the Lumber Dealers Association to conduct negotiations with the union. Mr. Currier assured the union representatives that if the men were sent back to work negotiations for a closed shop, wage increases, and other demands of the strikers would be retroactive to the date of the men's return to work.

"On this understanding and acting in good faith the union representatives carried on negotiations with the Lumber Dealers Association for a period of about 30 days. At the end of this time, Mr. Currier announced the association would not recognize Local 247 and that the employers of their own volition were granting retroactive increases to their workers.

"Our union officials in Detroit tell me that as a result of this action the organization lost its entire membership in the lumber yards with the exception of one company, the F. M. Sibley Lumber Company, which remained about 98 per cent organized.

"The union committee believed that Mr. Currier was acting in good faith as he told our representatives that the strike was effective and that the wise course, for both management and labor, was for the men to go back to work and carry on negotiations.

"Early in the Spring of 1935, Mr. Currier set up a dummy organization, the Funke Builders Supply Company, to sell sand and gravel to the Currier Company. The address of the company was 8951 Schaefer Highway, the same as the Currier Lumber Company.

Defeat Anti-Strike Legislation

Washington, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor appealed to each member of Congress to vote against pending anti-strike legislation.

In letters to the Senators and Representatives, Mr. Green vigorously protested against any attempt to penalize millions of workers whose services have measured up to the highest Government requirements. He warned that enactment of anti-labor legislation would only serve to cause widespread resentment among workers who have cooperated fully in the defense program.

At the same time, Mr. Green sent letters to all State Federations of Labor, city central bodies and to 106 affiliated national and international unions comprising 40,000 local unions, urging them to rally their forces for the defeat of anti-labor bills.

The text of Mr. Green's letter to the members of Congress follows:

"The membership of the American Federation of Labor has cooperated fully and completely with our government in the advancement of the national defense program. The value of the service rendered by the membership of the American Federation of Labor is in evidence on every hand. Cantonments, buildings, and naval construction have been carried forward until much of it has been completed ahead of schedule. A 'no strike' policy in defense industries was adopted by the American Federation of Labor. That represents our official attitude toward uninterrupted defense production.

"The number of man hours lost as a result of strikes by members of the American Federation of Labor is inconsequential. The record made is equal to that made by labor in our beloved country during the world war.

"Some people have a very false idea that jurisdictional disputes cause great loss of time in industry. Actually this is far from true. Labor Department figures show that of all the workers involved in strikes settled in the first half of 1941, only 2.3 per cent were on jurisdictional strikes or disputes due to rival unions. If we try to calculate the time lost by jurisdictional strikes, we find it microscopic—less than one-hundreth of one per cent of time worked!

"Now take our experience in America and compare it with England. England is at war. Yet strikes still occur in England. We know that nowhere in the world is there such an example of what free workers can produce under the most gruelling conditions of bombardment and destruction. I do not need to enlarge upon the courage, the sheer grit, the unquenchable productive effort of the workers of England. The world has marvelled. It is the spirit of free men who give their all because they have real freedom.

"How does our strike record compare with that of England? In 1940, the strike record of England, Canada, and the United States is almost exactly the same, and in 1940 England and Canada were at war. In each of these three countries slightly more than 2 per cent of the workers were out on strike at some time during the year. The figures run closely alike: England, 2.3 per cent; Canada, 2.4 per cent; United States 2.3 per cent.

"Nowithstanding this fine record and these facts, reports indicate that Congress is about to penalize these honest, skilled, sincere American Federation of Labor workers through the enactment of anti-labor legislation. It seems inconceivable that Congress would take such action. Imagine, if you please, the state of mind which will be created among these loyal, devoted workers identified with the American Federation of Labor when they realize they have become the victims of anti-labor legislation! Why should Congress penalize millions of workers whose services have measured up to the highest government requirements because of the indefensible acts of some irresponsible leaders of a labor organization unaffiliated with the American Federation of Labor?

"The remedy for the cause which it is alleged underlies the action contemplated by Congress, cannot be found through the enactment of anti-labor legislation.

"In behalf of and in the name of the millions of men and women identified with the American Federation of Labor, I vigorously protest against the enactment of anti-labor and anti-strike legislation of any kind. The enactment of such legislation will cause widespread resentment among the membership of the American Federation of Labor and all their friends. I, therefore, earnestly appeal to you to vote against the enactment of proposed anti-labor legislation into law."

T-IRONS FOR SANACOUSTIC TILE ERECTED BY RICHMOND, VA. LATHERS

Lathers from Local Union 63, Richmond, Virginia, are shown erecting T-irons for sanacoustic tile on the Miller & Rhodes Department Store job, in that city.

Standing on the scaffold, l. to r.: J. G. Duggan, J. O. Crowe, Bert Mumaw, S. M. Wilton, plastering conractors, H. L. Butts, Jr., Charles Murray. Acoustical contractor on this job is Morton Northern & Co.

We are publishing this photo for the benefit of our members, who should endeavor to have their representatives and members of their local unions insist that this is nothing but light iron construction and rightfully belongs to the lather.

CHICAGO APPRENTICE LATHERS AT WORK

These pictures were taken at the Washburne Trade School, Chicago, Illinois, where apprentices from our Local Union 74 are taught the trade of lathing. Corner bead, pilaster, arch, and beam construction by apprentices are shown.

MEMBERS OF LOCAL 46, N. Y. C. WHO INSTALLED THE REINFORCING ON EAST RIVER ASHPHALT PLANT

The problem of housing machinery for the Borough of Manhattan, New York City East River Drive asphalt plant was solved with a parabolic concrete structure, designed around the machinery, with windows only where necessary to admit daylight for inspection of moving apparatus.

A conveyor belt running under the Drive carries materials for bringing the asphalt into the plant.

Wages are Compensation for Human Services; Not Prices

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, writing in the American Federationist, warns against wage freezing schemes and demands effective control of prices be placed in effect without delay.

"Wages, like all other forms of income, are not prices but compensation for free human labor. In a free country compensation for human services must continue to be based on contracts between those concerned—in the case of wages, by means of a contract determined by collective bargaining."

President Green urged the prompt enactment of price-control legislation on the ground that fast-rising prices would lead to inflation. He pointed out that during the last war inflation "stole away" the benefits of wage increases.

"Wartime inflation ended in business collapse, unemployment, bank failures and a farm debacle that shook the foundations of our economic structure," President Green wrote.

Asserting that the cost of living is already 7.5 per cent above the levels prevailing before the present war began and could be expected to rise at least 10 per cent more unless control of prices is made effective quickly, he said the increase "indicates a trend which our previous experience demonstrated to be disastrous."

While insisting upon the vast difference between price control and restrictions on wages, Mr. Green said price control is extremely important to labor because "unless we have effective price control the very basis of collective bargaining and business stability will be disrupted."

"Unless we have effective price control," he concluded, "defense will cost us billions more in debts than should be put upon the future and will force us into intolerable depression."

Action on price-control legislation is scheduled in the House of Representatives as soon as the Neutrality Act revision problem has been disposed of. Mr. Roosevelt and Administration leaders are reported firmly opposed to any ceiling on wages in such legislation.

"We realize the welfare of workers depends upon the maintenance of democratic institutions and that only when such institutions prevail throughout the world can we have real security and the freest opportunity for human progress," Mr. Green wrote.

"We pledge ourselves to this cause without reservation. The greatest bulwark which this country has against unfreedom at home or abroad is its free labor movement."

IS THE CLOSED SHOP DEMOCRATIC?

(St. Louis Labor Tribune)

Recently, Dr. George Gallup, the prominent poll-caster, assayed public opinion on the Closed Shop. His conclusions were that the public was opposed to the principle of a Closed Shop by a majority of six to one. They opined that it was "undemocratic."

This column does not pretend to know just what cross sections of our population Dr. Gallup's investigators plumbed to arrive at this bizarre conclusion. Baldly, we never have been solicited for an opinion at any time by a Gallup prober, nor do we know of anyone who ever voted in a Gallup Poll. But this digression is neither here nor there.

What amazes us is the bland finality of the majority of people interviewed by Dr. Gallup's proxies that the Closed Shop is "undemocratic." Let us submit this premise to a rational analysis.

Let us assume that ninety per cent of workers in a factory or an industry have banded together for the purpose of bargaining collectively. Over a period of months or years—usually through much travail and compromise—they obtain higher wages and better working conditions.

Let us assume that the ten per cent minority of workers in this factory or industry are opposed to joining the union. Yet this minority shares in the benefits which the majority have attained through their collective efforts. They demand all of the advantages but spurn all of the responsibilities. The tail, according to the conclusions of the six to one polled by Dr. Gallup, is more important than the dog. If the dog wants to wag the tail, he is interfering with the constitutional right of the tail.

Perhaps we are in error, but we have always labored under the impression that the majority will prevails in a democratic government, subject of course to inherent limitations. We always believed that democracy implied the greatest good for the greatest number. But according to the recent Gallup Poll taken on the Closed Shop issue, six out of seven matured citizens interviewed believe—or pretend to believe—that the majority of workers in a factory or an industry must jeopardize their own interests and job security to the interests of the minority. This is the very opposite of democracy.

Mind you we are not discussing a man's right to work. This right to employment is not inalienable. When the job seeker goes to work, he accepts the terms laid down by the employer. He can take them or leave them. However, other men who have worked for this employer over a period of years have certain rights to their jobs and they are entitled to a certain protection which faithful and constructive service to their employer entails. The only practical way they can protect their prior rights is through bargaining with the employer as a unit, and compelling other workmen to share in the responsibilities as well as the benefits which have accrued to this group unit This is not merely right reason, but fundamental justice.

We are afraid that the mean level of intelligence of the majority interviewed by the Gallup representatives was not very high. Certainly they must have a weird fixation of what democracy really means. Too many Americans confuse democracy with anarchy.

COX OF GEORGIA; SMITH OF VIRGINIA

The workingman must be repressed at all costs, seems to be the theme song of some of the so-called representatives of the people, elected to public offices, not by the common people in their districts, but by sinister sweatshop interests, which have found it quite profitable to continue the disfranchisement of the great majority of the voters.

"Labor," an official publication of the railroad workers, carried this editorial in a recent issue, which explains many things:

Two members of Congress are publicly and brazenly attempting to blackmail the President of the United States. Students of American history will find it difficult to discover a precedent for the conduct of Cox of Georgia and Smith of Virginia.

In speeches and interviews they proclaim that, at an hour when their country faces grave peril, they will "hold up all legislation" unless Mr. Roosevelt supports the kind of anti-labor laws they think should be on the statute books.

These sinister interests are able to elect Cox and Smith because they have disfranchised 80 per cent of the voters. Poll tax laws and crooked election systems are the instruments they use. Consider these figures:

Cox represents the Second Georgia District; Smith represents the Eighth Virginia District. In the election of 1940 the total vote in Cox's district was 3,369, and in Smith's district, 17,774. The total for both districts was 21,143, or an average of less than 11,000.

Let's take at random two Northern districts. Charles F. McLaughlin, Democrat, represents the Second District of Nebraska; Frederick C. Smith, Republican, represents the Eighth District of Ohio. In the election of 1940, the total vote in McLaughlin's district was 83,543, and in Smith's district, 75,578. The total was 159,121, or an average of more than 79,000 votes. That's seven times the average in districts represented by Cox and Smith.

Those figures reveal why Cox and Smith can afford to grossly libel American workers. The workers in their districts have small chance to repudiate them, because they are disfranchised by the damnable laws enacted by the sinister interests served by Mr. Cox and Mr. Smith.

PREPARE NOW TO SUSTAIN OUR FUTURE ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Hollywood, Fla.—Five million members of the American Federation of Labor have pledged themselves to aid the government in the successful completion of the national defense program, William Green, president of the Federation, told members of the Investment Bankers Association of America at the opening of its annual convention here.

"We are Americans first, and members of our union second," he declared.

Emphasizing throughout his address, which was broadcast over a nation-wide network of the Mutual system, the stake which labor and capital have in the preservation of the system of free enterprise, Mr. Green called for a united stand of capital, labor management and labor in support of the defense program.

The labor leader stressed the urgent need for preparatory steps to be taken now to cushion the tremendous and inevitable shock to our economic system which he said would follow the present emergency.

"No doubt the principle of free enterprise and private ownership in all free, democratic countries throughout the world will be called upon to meet a most severe test," he said.

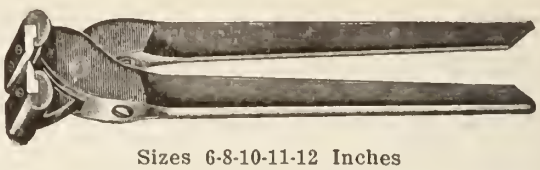

To prepare for the absorption of millions of workers now engaged in defense industries, as well as the release of those in actual military service, Mr. Green advocated that a survey be made and plans prepared for a huge public works program.

"All of this will call for the expenditure of large sums of money," he said. "All of this character of planning should be formulated and made ready so that the economic needs of the nation should be met in as large a way as possible. It will be far better for the nation to provide employment for the millions who will be forced out of defense production industries rather than to supply relief to unemployed and those dependent upon them as we were forced to do during the previous periods of economic distress."

Mr. Green warned that labor would suffer as much, if not more, than capital should some form of communism, fascism or naziism supplant our present economic system, and added:

"The chief menace to the preservation of free enterprise within a democracy is met when destructive economic changes take place. Long distressing periods of unemployment which cause widespread hunger and human distress, heavy losses of investments, deflation and forced liquidation of valuable assets tend to destroy public confidence in our so-called capitalistic system.

CURRIER BID PLOT

The Funke Company engaged in questionable business practices to the detriment not only of the gravel truckers, but to the owners of the pits as well. The Funke Builders Supply Company had agreed with its truckers on a weekly salary of $25.00 to be paid on the 10th of each month. In June, 1939, approximately 20 truckers joined Local 247. When the next pay day came, as had happened on several previous occasions, both Mr. Currier and Mr. Funke were missing. When Mr. Robert Mitchell, President of Local 247, finally reached Mr. Currier to protest the non-payment of the drivers, he was assured the matter would be investigated.

"When full restitution was not forthcoming, William R. Roe, Secretary-Treasurer of the Union, served notice, in accordance with Michigan law, on the Funke Builders Supply Company, the Currier Co. and the State Labor Board, of the union's intention to strike these concerns. Upon receipt of this notice, Mr. Funke disappeared from Detroit, and when Mr. Currier was reached, he claimed that only $1,000 was owed by him to Mr. Funke. This amount was far less than the total wage bill due the truckers. However, the men divided the $1,000, and since the Funke Company was dissolved, were left without jobs and with no means of securing the rest of their back wages.

"To the best of our knowledge, Mr. Currier made no effort to locate Mr. Funke and disclaimed any further responsibility other than the $1,000 which he said represented his debt to Mr. Funke."

HEALTH FOR DEFENSE

By Leonard Gross, Chairman

Industrial Hygiene Committee, National Council for Federal Health Security

Industrial accidents alone cost 1.5 billion man hours last year, if one counts deaths and permanent disabilities as cutting down the labor force according to values assigned by compensation tables. This is some thirty times "the cost" of strikes, and strikes may bring benefits in increased health and efficiency. Four days were directly lost as a result of work accidents for every day lost by strikes. (Bureau of Labor Statistics, Jan. 23, 1941.) The amount of time wasted, according to estimates by Congressman John M. McCormack (Congressional Record, April 2, 1941) would produce 15,000 large bombers, or 15,000—90,000 fighter planes, or 450 submarines, or 45 battleships (we have a dozen or so.)

It should not be forgotten that the rigorous enforcement of a good compensation act is a principal factor in producing accident and disease prevention measures—and hence in giving us some of those tens of thousands of potential tanks. In this respect we wish again to call your attention to the role of a good union Welfare Department and medical panel in enforcing the compensation laws.

Only a labor union takes the fullest interest in industrial hygiene; this is a matter of life and death to its members.

But compensation laws and industrial hygiene no matter how good, will never completely solve the defense health problem alone. Much disease, and many accidents arise from faulty nutrition and other causes outside the plant. Bills like that of Senator Wagner (or better still, like the proposed legislation of the National Council corresponding in detail to the AFL and CIO resolutions) are required to care for those 80 per cent of the people who get little attention, and the 40 per cent who get none.

Even sickness benefits alone, such as that proposed for the railway employees, might provide some money for doctors and proper food during illness. There is at present an unexpectedly large surplus in the unemployment reserve funds. If some of this 2 billion is not used for health purposes, it may go into lowering of contributions, perhaps by merit rating schemes.

Every accident and every disease whether occupational or otherwise which causes disability to any American and particularly a worker is to that extent a help to Hitler.

WASTED

(New Orleans Daily Jnl. of Com.)

A most assured and definite fact which no one can afford to overlook without eventually being compelled to pay the penalty for the price of his indifference is that "dollars cannot buy yesterday." It makes little difference whether the incident or act you may have overlooked or deliberately set aside, has been related to your business life or your home life—the fact is so for it is also written that "time and tide wait for no man." The little things left undone, the big ones too, are therefore gone. There are times when one may say "this can be done tomorrow" and with that day the task is outwardly performed just as satisfactorily. Yet the minutes of today were wasted and two days were required to perform that which could have been done in one. And there is no telling what tomorrow may bring which will necessitate all time without having to perform duties of a previous day. Those who have indulged in the habit of procrastinating have often found themselves wanting when an opportunity presented itself for a more fruitful undertaking.

It is most urgent therefore, that people, for their own good, do first things first and never put off 'till tomorrow what can and should be done today. For too many who have found themselves victims of such a "disease" tomorrow never comes for they lack the heart to tackle their problems and thus leave them continuously unsolved. There are those who contend that an individual can accomplish practically any reasonable endeavor he may have in mind if he will but set his course to that particular objective, work tirelessly in that direction and without taking the many detours which will always present themselves. There are others too who feel that determination is half the battle, that with it the various obstacles which may seem mammoth to others will eventually be overcome. And the average individual is probably fully aware of this for it may have happened to him many times but still he is not sufficiently possessed with initiative or ambition to work up that determination to the end that the objective will be a reality.

However, another important factor and one which is viewed by many as even more important than the others is that of perseverance. No things of greatness happen just overnight except in very few and isolated instances. Those who accomplish must persevere. They must have a determination and do first things first but they must also persevere. Without the latter they can too often destroy all the work or good resulting from the former. With these three as a nucleus many are the things which will come to those who practice their habits and who pursue their course diligently.

ORGANIZED LABOR'S PROBLEMS

From the Writings of Dr. Charles Stelzle

Trades unionism is passing through a critical period in its history. It will always be on the verge of a crisis, because it has to do with life. Life must mean growth, and growth means pain. But there are certain conditions in the industrial world which call for most careful thought on the part of trades union leaders. No little two by four propaganda method will meet the situation.

First, there is the enemy from without. Never before has there been made such a systematic effort to destroy organized labor. These efforts will fail to destroy organized labor. They will purge it so that it will become stronger and better, just as the Church was purged through the fierce opposition of its oppressors. But there are certain things within trades unionism which demand the attention of its truest friends.

Second, there is its very strength. The growth of trades unionism in recent years has been one of the most significant things of modern times. This growth has brought with it a great mass of enthusiastic fighters, who, at the same time, are uninformed as to the fundamental principles of their cause. These will endanger the movement if no effort is made to give their work intelligent direction. There must be better "team-work." Their attack must not be that of the mob but that of trained soldiers. Clearly, then, the leaders must see to it that the recruits shall have a course of training which will enable them to "give a reason for the hope that it within them."

Third, on account of the development of organized labor, there has come to be a specialization of industries even within its ranks, which has very naturally resulted in jurisdictional strife. Even mob enthusiasm is better than this, for the mob will receive sympathy from the neutral onlooker, but jurisdictional strife not only causes bitterness and hatred within, but disgust and ridicule without.

Fourth, organized labor must deal not only with the ignorance of its own members, but it must educate the general public. It is lamentable that even otherwise intelligent business and professional men are in absolute ignorance of the principles of organized labor. If the public does not know about trades unionism, it must be admitted that it is the fault of organized labor. It is not the business of the outsider to inform himself concerning trades unionism. It is the trades union's job to compel attention and to correctly inform the outsider.

These are some of the problems which confront organized labor today. That they will be adjusted in due time, there can be no doubt. But immediate attention to them will have many a year of struggle and a great deal of suffering and heart-ache.

BUY UNION LABEL GIFTS

I. M. Ornburn, Sec.-Treas.
Union Label Trades Department

The best defense for American labor standards is to declare "priorities" on Union Label goods and Union services. We must continue our all-out drive against unfair products. More goods are purchased during the Xmas shopping season than at any time during the year. It is urgent that all who are fighting for justice and humanity join the campaign to buy only American-made and Union Label Xmas gifts.

While we should always purchase Union Label goods and patronize Union services the Xmas shopping period is the best time to demonstrate to manufacturers and to merchandisers the true value of the Union Label market. Therefore, each year we ask all members of labor unions, their families and friends to buy Xmas gifts only from firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card and Service Button.

Many practical Union-made presents can be purchased. In these times, when we are making every effort for national defense, only useful and necessary articles should be purchased.

Your labor union is your best Santa Claus. There is no better way to show your loyalty to brother trade unionists than to make this a Merry Union Label Xmas!

PRIEST AND PICKET

Catholic Worker, N. Y. C.

Someone sent us a clipping about a priest and a picket. It happened on a cold, snowy day in Minneapolis. Lawrence Swenson, a union painter, was walking the picket line through the snow, his feet clad only in moccasins. The Rev. Edward Grzeskowiak, professor of science at Nazareth Hall Preparatory Seminary, St. Paul, came along. He was wearing overshoes which he removed and gave to the picket who "needed them more." Which work of mercy was worth more than 10 speeches on the Church's attitude towards the working man.

GUESTS AND DELEGATES ATTENDING ILLINOIS STATE COUNCIL OF LATHERS CONVENTION SEPTEMBER 13 AND 14, 1941, DANVILLE, ILLINOIS

BROTHER LATHER GETS CIVIL SERVICE APPOINTMENT

Albuquerque Local Union 238 is happy to announce the appointment of our brother lather, John R. (Jack) Churchill, as Assistant Apprenticeship Field Representative in the U. S. Department of Labor, Division of Labor Standards, Apprenticeship Section. He will work directly under the supervision of Edw. E. Goshen, Supervisor of Region No. 5, whose office is at Denver, Colo.

While the organized labor movement in New Mexico has donated one of its most active members to the United States Government to work in the Labor Department during this extreme crisis, we do not feel that we have entirely lost Brother Churchill. His office will be in Albuquerque, New Mexico and the entire State of Mexico will be his field.

For the past decade Brother Churchill has been very active in the organized labor movement, both locally and in the State and at the time of his appointment, held and administered the following offices: Sergeant-at-Arms and acting Business Agent of Local No. 238; President, Albuquerque Building and Construction Trades Council; Sergeant-at-Arms, Albuquerque Central Labor Union; and Secretary of New Mexico State Apprenticeship Council, all of which were strictly non-remunerative offices. At the 19th Annual Convention of the State Federation of Labor, held October 3, 4 and 5 in Albuquerque, he was unanimously elected Eleventh Vice-President.

Brother Churchill's thirty active years in the organized labor movement, the last seventeen of which were as a member of The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union, have given him a training that can be had only in the ranks of organized labor. They started with indentured apprenticeship —and he has been apprenticed in both the Barbers' and the Lathers' Unions—and continued on through active work in the organization to which he belongs.

Brother Churchill is a fearless fighter for the rights of Union Labor, to the extent that he has often wrongly been called a "radical," yet whenever a committee is appointed from the C. L. U. or B. T. C. calling for prudence or diplomacy, invariably he is called on to serve.

Thus another good Union man has laid down his tools and gone to work in the Department of Labor for our Government. He will help establish Apprenticeship Standards and set up Apprenticeship Training in all skilled crafts in a field where—quoting Churchill himself—"I am fifty years old. Soon I will be a has-been lather. I am not too old to do a day's work, but I feel that I can do more good in the Apprenticeship Section of the Department of Labor, for I will be assisting in the establishment of a national movement to make better mechanics."

To Brother Churchill go the best wishes of every Union man who knows him. Local Union 238 knows he will make good in his new work for he always gets the job done and does it well.

150th ANNIVERSARY OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS DECEMBER 15, 1941

Freedom of speech; freedom of press; freedom of religion; freedom of assembly; equal justice to all. A noble heritage and a sacred trust.

The American Bill of Rights was ratified on December 15, 1791. The Sesquicentennial Anniversary is celebrated throughout the Nation in accordance with a Joint Resolution of Congress and a Proclamation of the President.

—o—

We had to watch other nations lose their freedom to realize how much it meant to us. We learned how close it was to our hearts when the motto "Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite" was chipped from the pride of France.

—o—

If you suspect a man, don't employ him—if you employ him, don't suspect him.

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT AND INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Section 121 L. I. U. constitution provides that all decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

J. H. Summer, 33959 and L. H. York, 18049 vs. Local Union No. 131

Brothers Summer and York appealed against the action of Local Union No. 131 in placing a fine of $5.00 against each of them for alleged failure to observe Section 126 L. I. U. constitution, and which penalty is prescribed in Section 145 L. I. U. constitution. After carefully examining all of the evidence presented by both sides in this case, the General President found there was no proof submitted to show any intention upon the part of these brothers to deliberately evade or violate the law, and, believing the penalty unjust and unfair under the circumstances, he ordered the same rescinded.

—o—

Upon the request of Local Union No. 10 to the International Executive Council, to remove formerly approved additional fines of $100.00 each against Brothers Walter W. Gerke, 16790 and Gustave Miels, 8656, the Council granted this request. The brothers have straightened up with this local union and the report of solicitors' certificates granted them is published in this issue.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, God Almighty has chosen for his own ranks one of our older members, Brother Edward Albert Yoder, No. 489, who passed away on November 23, 1941, at the age of 65 years; and

WHEREAS, Brother Yoder was initiated in Local Union 49 on July 28, 1900 and maintained his good standing continuously, he is sure to be missed by a host of friends and brothers throughout our International; be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local Union 109 extend our deepest sympathy to the relatives of our deceased brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

Local Union No. 109,
H. S. Hyberger, Secretary.

WHEREAS, It was the will of God that an untimely surcease of earthly endeavors should be the lot of our fellow member, Brother Luther Lee Bryant, No. 36440; and

WHEREAS, Brother Bryant was loyal in his affiliations and had created a niche for himself in our local union and will be sadly missed; be it

RESOLVED, That our sympathy be extended to his survivors, in their hour of sorrow; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days, in respect to our departed brother, and these resolutions be published in our official journal.

Local Union 252,
Herbert Heater, Secretary.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our Brother Floyd Patterson, No. 7126, at the age of sixty-two years; and

WHEREAS, Brother Patterson was a member of Local Union 505 and at one time president of the local union, and will be greatly missed by our members; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local Union 505, extend our deepest sympathy to the relatives of our deceased brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication.

Local Union 505,
Ed. Patchett, Secretary.

CORRECTIONS

Withdrawal card issued to A. F. Wood, 33157, by Local 422, published in the November issue, was reported to headquarters by the secretary thru a misunderstanding. This record has therefore been cancelled.

Withdrawal card of J. E. C. Feaner, 36446, from Local 278, published in the June issue, was reported in error by the secretary and is hereby cancelled.

IN APPRECIATION

I have turned this money, contributed in response to his appeal, over to Brother Erland A. Clauson, No. 3627, and will say that he is very grateful for all donations and wishes me to thank all who have helped him. He is slowly recovering, but it will be a long time before he is up and around again. This is a list of donations to date:

The real satisfaction which praise can afford, is when what is repeated aloud agrees with the whispers of conscience, by showing us that we have not endeavored to deserve well in vain.—Johnson.

LOW-COST MEALS THAT WILL KEEP YOU HEALTHY

To get a balanced diet that will keep you strong and healthy, at minimum expense, Bureau of Home Economics experts at the Department of Agriculture have taken the good nutrition yardstick drawn up at the National Nutrition Conference last spring and translated its food values into weekly marketing lists in Consumers' Guide, publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division of the Department.

If you buy according to low-cost liberal plan, your menus would include the following quantities and kinds of foods:

Milk: Low-cost meal plan—3 or 4 cups a day for each child; 2 or 3 cups a day for each adult. Liberal meal plan—4 cups a day for each child; 3 or 4 cups a day for each adult.

Meat, Poultry, Fish: Low-cost meal plan—4 to 6 servings a week, often cooked with potatoes, beans, rice, bread crumbs, corn meal, other vegetables and cereals. Liberal meal plan—once a day; often twice.

Breads, Cereals: Low-cost meal plan—bread in some form, every meal; breakfast cereal, every day; rice, hominy, macaroni, and other cereal products 3 or 4 times a week. Liberal meal plan—as desired; a wide variety.

Potatoes, Sweet potatoes: Low-cost meal plan—usually twice a day. Liberal meal plan—5 or 6 times a week.

Vegetables: Low-cost meal plan—once a day; sometimes twice; include leafy, green and yellow varieties 5 or 6 times a week; use some raw. Liberal meal plan—2 or 3 servings a day; at least one should be leafy, green, or yellow.

Fruit: Low-cost meal plan—once a day; as often as you can, serve Vitamin C-rich fruits. Liberal meal plan—every meal; at least once a day, serve Vitamin C-rich varieties.

Dry Beans, Peas, Nuts: Low-cost meal plan—3 or 4 times a week. Liberal meal plan—about once a week.

Eggs: Amounts suggested for both meal plans include all eggs used in any form—cooked separately or cooked with other foods.

Fats, Oils: For both meal plans—count all fats and oils used in cooking and at table.

Sugars, Syrups: For both meal plans—use in moderation; don't let sweets spoil appetite for other foods; count very sweet desserts, molasses, syrups, honey, jellies, jams, sugars, candies, as sweets.

This marketing guide will give you safe wholesome meals, though they're somewhat limited in variety.

"Weddings are sometimes sad occasions," remarked a writer. Even the cake is often in tiers.

USING ANTI-FREEZE WITH MINIMUM WASTE

The following tips for using anti-freeze with minimum waste are suggested by automobile and chemical experts on the staff of the Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration:

1. Check fan and pump belts. The belts should be tight enough so that you cannot turn the fan with your finger without moving the belt. Excessively worn belts should be replaced.

2. Clean out rust scales from inside the radiator and motor block which cause the engine to overheat, flush cooling system before adding anti-freeze. Plain washing soda or other inexpensive flush is suitable. If you haven't flushed your cooling system for several seasons, the radiator and engine should be flushed separately by disconnecting the hose that joins the radiator with the motor. The same is true if you use "hard" water in the radiator, or if the drained water seems to be very rusty. To be sure flushing mixtures are thoroughly drained, flush clean water through radiator and draincocks on the motor block.

3. After flushing the cooling system, check it for leaks. Lifeless, over-aged hose connections which may easily develop leaks should be replaced, and leaky water pumps should be repaired, or replaced if necessary. Check the water pump particularly carefully, for the grease around it often hides leaks.

4. Check the level of the water in your radiator frequently after adding anti-freeze, and periodically thereafter. The level should always be above upper hose connection to allow circulation from the radiator to the motor. Filling the radiator above the neck means you are using more anti-freeze than necessary.

5. Watch engine heat-indicator for signs of overheating. If your engine overheats, find out why and have it fixed. Always check the strength of the anti-freeze after overheating.

6. Use adjustable type of radiator cover, so it can be opened and closed as the weather dictates. Completely closing up your radiator front causes engine overheating.

7. Avoid idling the engine for long periods. Since the cooling system is designed to operate efficiently while the car is in motion, idling the engine for a long period is apt to cause overheating—and also wastes gas.

8. Put the cooling system in order now, before cold weather catches up on you over night. Then anti-freeze can be added at a moment's notice. Don't put in anti-freeze until you need it. And don't use more than you need.

Paving blocks and paving mixtures, are also products of a substantial Kansas industry.

WIT AND HUMOR

Teacher (to bring out the idea of size)—Mention a difference between an elephant and a flea.

Tommy—Well, an elephant can have fleas, but a flea can't have elephants.

———o———

Magistrate—"You cannot drive now for two years, for you're a danger to pedestrians."

Defendant—"But your honor, my living depends on it."

Magistrate—"So does theirs."

———o———

A city girl was spending her summer vacation on her uncle's farm. The day of her arrival she went with him to see his herd of cows. The girl gazed with interest at the beasts, especially one that was chewing its cud.

Farmer: "Fine animal, that one."

Girl: "Yes, but doesn't it cost you a lot to keep her in chewing gum?"

———o———

Customer—I'd like to see some good second-hand cars.

Salesman—So would I.

———o———

"Now, Willie, you must let your brother have the sled half of the time."

"Yes, mother, I do. I have it going down the hill, and he has it going up."

———o———

Old lady, reading the newspaper: "Well, well, I never thought that firemen could be so childish."

"Why? What have they done?" asked her husband, with interest.

"It says here that after the flames died down the firemen played on the ruins for several hours."

———o———

Father—I don't see why you girls shouldn't hustle around like the rest of us and do things for yourselves! You could save me lots of money by making your own hats and gowns.

Eldest Daughter—I do all I can, dad; why, I've been making my own cigarettes since the first of January.

———o———

Nuwedd looked dazed and weary. His neighbor inquired the reason.

"My wife!" said Nuwedd. "She told me to take our old tomcat and lose it. So I put it in a basket and tramped in the country for about six miles." He paused for breath.

"Well," put in the neighbor, "did you lose it."

"Lose it!" gasped Nuwedd, "if I had not followed it I should never have found my way home."

Seargeant—Did you give the prisoner the third degree?

Policeman — Yes. We browbeat him, badgered him, and asked him every question we could think of. He merely dozed off, and said, "Yes, dear, you are perfectly right."

———o———

"Young Rose 'Awkins is goin' abaht sayin' you're in love with 'er 'Arry. Is that right?"

"Garn! Don't tike no notice of 'er. I might 'ave give 'er a clip or two over the ear, but that's all there is in it."

———o———

Barber—Well, my little man, how do you wish to have your hair cut?

Little Man—I'd like it cut just like my daddy's, and please don't forget to leave that little round hole on the top where his head comes through.

———o———

Friend—"So you're setting your boy up in the bakery business."

Man—"Yes, he's so keen for dough and such a swell loafer that I'm sure he'll rise in the business."

———o———

"Lady," said the policeman who had motioned her to stop, "how long do you expect to be out?"

"What do you mean by that question?" she demanded indignantly.

"Well," he replied sarcastically, "there are a couple of thousand other motorists who would like to use this street after you get through with it."

———o———

A tourist asked a Texas hotel manager what attractions the city offered.

"A helium plant," replied the hotel man; "only one of its kind in the world."

The tourist thanked him and said, "I hope it is in full bloom."

———o———

"If you are good, Jackie, I'll give you this nice, bright, new penny."

Jackie—"Haven't you got a dirty, old dime instead?"

———o———

A group of big oil men in Washington were telling hard luck stories one evening about government taxation.

"There is no telling where we will land by the time the tax bill is settled," said one. "Our status is as uncertain as that of an old Negro slave I once heard of. Somebody asked him whom he belonged to. 'I don't know, suh,' he replied. 'Old Marse, he's upstairs playin' pokah.'"

CHRISTMAS DAY MESSAGE, 1941

By John J. Buckley

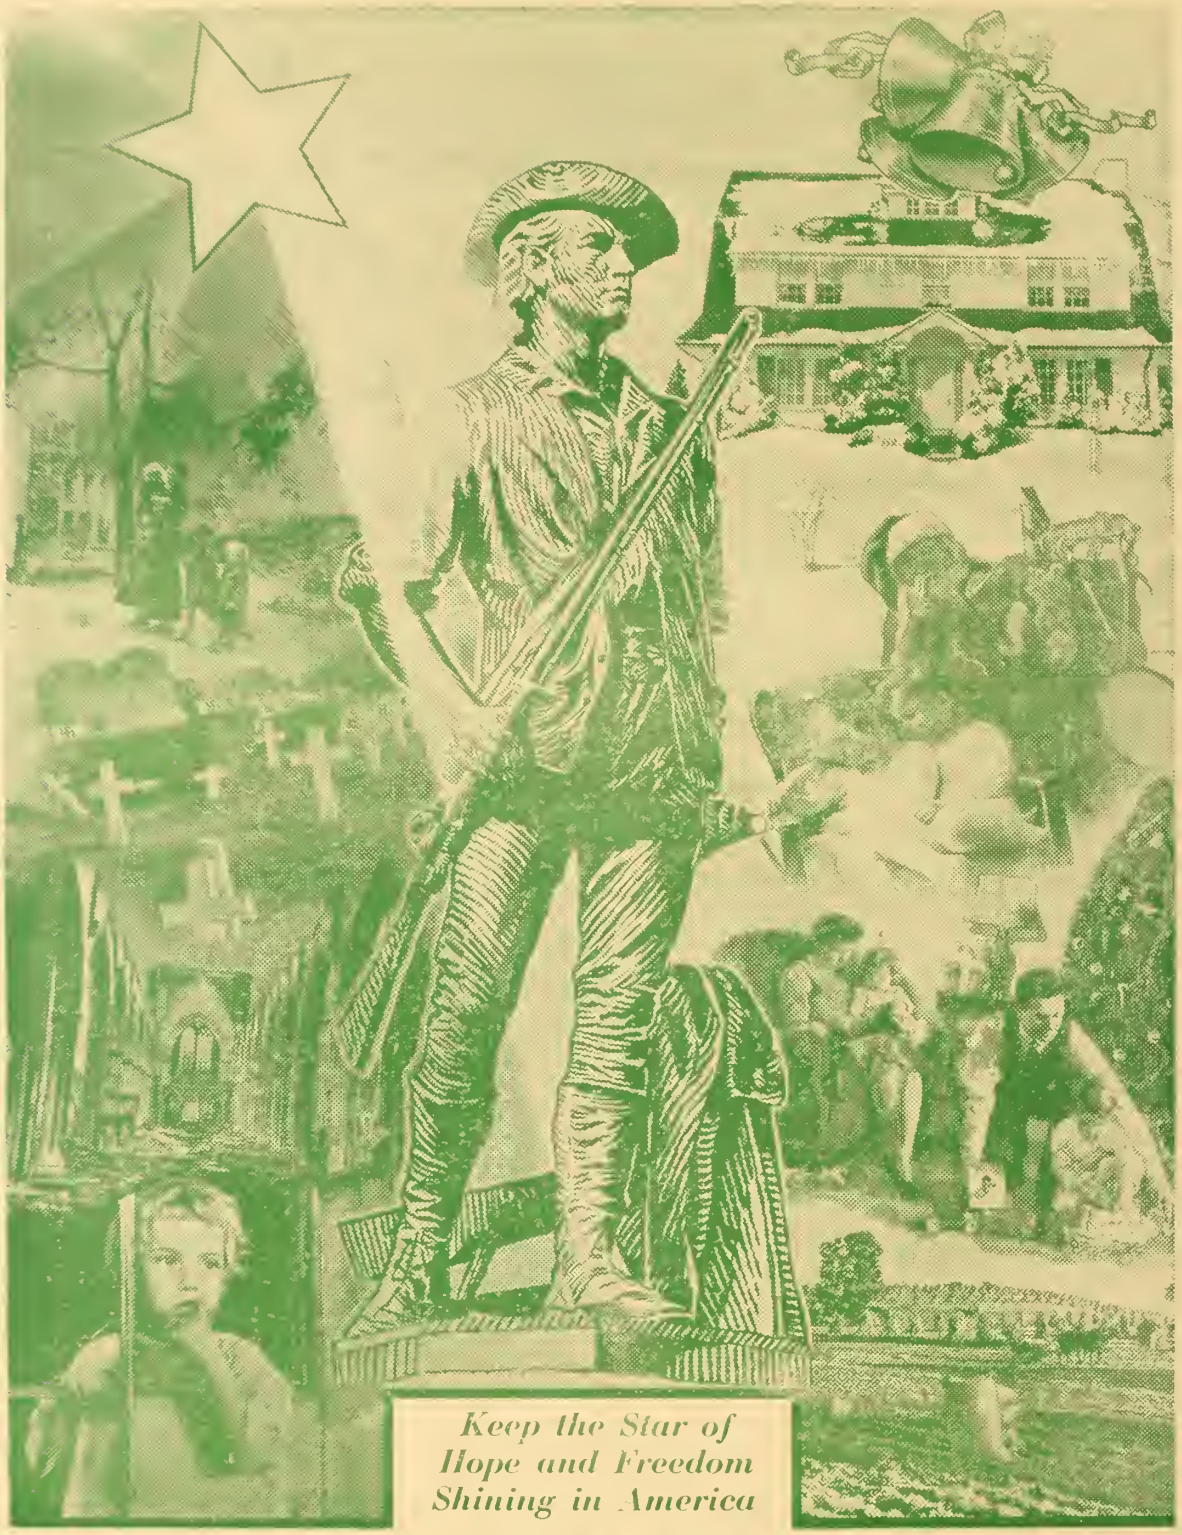

From out the horizon of the East
O'er all the worlds ill and dismay
May golden sun of Christmas feast
Be in all hearts, this holiday.
Wherever war has brought its gloom,
Wherever any mind is in despair,
Grant, Lord, Your helping, gracious Boon
To these dear ones—everywhere.

To know the joys and peace that thrill,
And friendship have no end or dearth,
That brings today "men of good will,"
In Bethlehem, where it had Birth,
The needed things of life to bring
And spiritual strength beyond all doubt.
The chaos of war's muttering
This Day of Peace, O Lord, blot out.

The cheerful voice, the songs of mirth
That once this world felt and knew
On this, Dear Lord, Thy Day of Birth,
In hearts and souls—again Renew,
That as we gather in Thy Name
And chant the old and ancient Song
The shepherds heard Angels proclaim
That first Christmas morn.

That as the chimes ring out on air,
The Christmas message ever bring
To all abroad and all at home
A peaceful Christmas offering.
For quietude of lands and home
And song of Peace o'er sob or moan
Thy Kingdom Come, Thy Will Be Done,
And evil days no longer run.

Be Thankful--Be Merry--Be Happy--Because You Live in America

BUY U. S. DEFENSE BONDS AND STAMPS

The following message has been received from the United States Government and we urge your wholehearted cooperation:

After the Axis attack, the President said: "The lives of our soldiers and sailors—the whole future of this Nation—depends upon the manner in which each and every one of us fulfills his obligation to our country."

As union members, we can take immediate practical steps to fulfill that obligation. We can increase our purchase of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. We can insist that voluntary payroll allotment plans be installed, wherever we have contracts. We can arrange that Defense Savings Stamps be sold in our union offices along with dues stamps. We must invest our dollars now in freedom to insure a victory for democracy.

VOL. XLII. JANUARY, 1942 No. 5

January 12, 1942

To Secretaries of All Our Local Unions

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am publishing a telegram received at headquarters from Mr. Ray C. Kirkpatrick, Special Assistant on Labor Relations, Federal Works Agency, Washington, D. C., which is self-explanatory:

WASHINGTON, D. C.,
JANUARY 9, 1942

TERRY FORD, SECRETARY
WOOD, WIRE & METAL LATHERS INT'L UNION
LATHERS BLDG.
CLEVELAND, OHIO

IN VIEW OF PENDING LEGISLATION WHICH WAS PASSED BY CONGRESS AND NOW IN CONFERENCE TO EXTEND DEFENSE PUBLIC WORKS WITH APPROPRIATION OF ONE HUNDRED FIFTY MILLION AND DEFENSE HOUSING WITH THREE HUNDRED MILLION IT IS ESSENTIAL THAT ALL AFFILIATED LOCALS IMMEDIATELY ADVISE THIS OFFICE OF ANY CHANGES IN RATES SINCE JULY 1, 1941 SUBSTANTIATING WHERE POSSIBLE WITH COPIES OF AGREEMENTS.

RAY C. KIRKPATRICK
SPECIAL ASSISTANT ON LABOR RELATIONS

Owing to the fact that this money has been appropriated for Defense Public Works and Defense Housing, it is therefore essential for each of our local unions to submit to Mr. Kirkpatrick their wage scales effective since July 1, 1941, with copies of agreements they may have in effect, in order that there will not be any difficulty in our members receiving the wage scale of their local union on any of this defense work.

Trusting this will be done without any delay, so that the wage scales of our local unions will be in Mr. Kirkpatrick's hands as soon as possible, I am, with best wishes,

Fraternally yours,
TERRY FORD,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Minutes of the International Executive Council Meeting Held at Cleveland, Ohio, December 15th to 19th, 1941 Inclusive

Monday Session, December 15, 1941.

Meeting called to order at 10 A. M. by First Vice President Harry J. Hagen. Members of your Executive Council present were:

First Vice President.....Harry J. Hagen
Second Vice President.....C. J. Haggerty
Third Vice President.....Joseph H. Duty
Fourth Vice President.....John P. Cook
Fifth Vice President.....Ora A. Kress
Sixth Vice President.....Sal Maso
Seventh Vice President.....John J. Langan
Eighth Vice President.....Thomas Priestly
Ninth Vice President.....Frank R. Smith
Tenth Vice President.....J. P. Boyd
Eleventh Vice President.....H. H. Fairbanks
Twelfth Vice President.....C. R. Nicholas

The first action of your council was to choose Second Vice President Haggerty as its Secretary.

Case No. 1—Appeal of C. J. Paige 27818 against the decision of the General President, which decision upheld fines totaling $100 placed by Local 7 for violation of Sections 177 and 145 International Constitution and Section 13 of the local by-laws.

Brother Paige was present in Cleveland in person and presented his side of the case to your Executive Council. This case was quite involved and your Executive Board spent the entire first day and the morning session of the second day on it, due to the voluminous material in the file.

After considering all the evidence presented, it was moved, seconded and carried that the decision of the General President be sustained.

Vice Presidents C. R. Nicholas and John J. Langan did not participate.

Meeting adjourned at 4:00 P. M.

Tuesday Morning Session, December 16, 1941.

Meeting called to order by Chairman Hagen at 10 o'clock.

Case No. 1 (Continued)—Action included in report on Monday session.

Meeting adjourned at 12:00 o'clock.

Tuesday Afternoon Session, December 16, 1941.

The meeting reconvened at 1:30 o'clock.

Case No. 2—Appeal of Local 308 from the decision of the General President, in which he found the action of the local in fining Joseph Rizzo, 19237, contractor, $108 for waiting time, not justifiable and therefore remitted the fine.

After carefully considering all the evidence presented in this case, it was moved, seconded and carried that the decision of the General President be sustained.

Case No. 3—Appeal of Local 72 against decision of the General President, which decision awarded Medfield, Massachusetts to Local 142 as its jurisdiction.

In addition to the large amount of material in the file, Brother Hubert Connor appeared in behalf of Local 72's appeal and Brother Frank Burke appeared in behalf of Local 142.

After considering all the evidence presented in this case, your Council felt that this matter could be adjudicated amicably between the representatives of the disputing locals which were present and a committee was appointed for the purpose of trying to conciliate this dispute.

Meeting adjourned at 4 o'clock.

Wednesday Morning Session, December 17, 1941.

Meeting called to order by Chairman Hagen at 10 o'clock.

Case No. 3 (Continued)—The committee of your Council, after interviewing the two disputing representatives in this case, reported that they had been unable to effect an adjustment. Your Council, therefore, took the following action:

It is the belief of your Executive Council that a peaceful and satisfactory adjustment still can be reached between the locals of the Boston, Massachusetts area regarding territorial jurisdiction for the formation and functioning of a Greater Boston Lathers' District Council and, in conformity with the provisions of the International Constitution, we instruct those locals to form such a district council.

We therefore decide that action in this case be held in abeyance pending the formation of a Greater Boston District Council and if, after the formation of such a council, a satisfactory agreement between the disputing parties is not arrived at within 90 days from this date, the provisions of the International Constitution, as contained in Section 4, shall be effective.

Vice President John P. Cook did not participate in the Council's decision.

Meeting recessed at 12:15 o'clock.

Wednesday Afternoon Session, December 17, 1941.

Meeting reconvened at 1:30 o'clock.

Case No. 4—Request of Local 451, Charlotte, North Carolina for approval of an additional assessment of $50 against C. T. Hallman 20102.

After reviewing all the evidence in this case, which was more than a year old due to the action of Mr. C. T. Hallman in taking legal action against the local and the International, it was moved, seconded and carried that the request of Local 451 to place an additional assessment of $50 against C. T. Hallman be approved.

Case No. 5—Request for contribution from Workers Defense League.

In considering this request, your Board felt that it was not familiar enough with the functions of the league or the personnel of its administrators and the request was therefore placed on the table.

Meeting adjourned at 4:30 o'clock.

Thursday Morning Session, December 18, 1941.

Meeting called to order by Chairman Hagen at 10 o'clock.

Case No. 6—Request for a contribution received from the American Federation of Labor on behalf of the National United Service Organizations (USO).

It was the unanimous opinion of your Executive Council that the United Service Organization is one very worthy of a contribution from our organization, but in view of the fact that the present quota of the USO has been oversubscribed, it was moved, seconded and carried that the General President be authorized to make a substantial contribution to the USO when and if this campaign is re-opened at some future date; and that your Council commend our local unions for the splendid cooperation and service which they have rendered in the initial campaign for funds by this organization; and we also recommend that our local unions perform the same service and contribute in a like manner when and if they are so requested by the leaders of this campaign at some future date.

Case No. 7—Allocations and priorities of materials during the national emergency.

While your Executive Council, in considering this subject matter, was very conscious of the extreme importance of the Government preserving materials needed for defense facilities and recognized that these facilities must have first call on all materials needed, your Council, however, does believe that there will be some materials left over, after the defense industries had been supplied, and we therefore urge the officers of the International and local unions to impress upon the administrators of the governmental agencies the need for intelligent allocation of these materials, so that large numbers of our members and other building tradesmen will not be needlessly disemployed, due to the impossibility of obtaining materials for the erection of buildings, when such materials are available and could be obtained if the proper intelligence were used in the allocation of same.

Your Council therefore submits the following procedure as one that will be constructive and beneficial to the construction industry and the Federal Government and, if followed, will redound to national interest during our present emergency:

Priorities covering critical materials will not work for residential or small commercial and industrial building because:—

(a) A great diversity of materials is required.
(b) These materials are required in great diversity but in trivial amounts for each job.
(c) All are standardized, handled by jobbers, and dealers who sell to contractors.
(d) This whole commerce involves such small markups that cost of paper work required in operation of priorities cannot be absorbed.

(c) Contractors involved very seldom have clerical forces and mostly work on construction work with their crews.

We recognize that building must be restricted, not only to conserve critical materials, but also manpower and other resources.

However, as set forth by many others, certain building and re-building must go on in the national interest.

We, therefore, recommend that—

(a) Allocation of such critical material as seems in the national interest.

(b) This allocation be reconciled with required building.

(c) This building be assigned by defense areas.

(d) Boards, similar to draft boards, composed of practical and experienced men, be set up and authorized to issue to applicants "Certificates of necessity" to those whose projects, no matter of what size, comply with rules as established.

(e) These "Certificates of necessity" be required by all communities as requisite for issuance of a permit.

We expect that this method will—

(a) Prevent an upward spiral of prices due to the present bootlegging of critical materials.

(b) Permit necessary building which is now completely stalled due to priority methods.

(c) Service the national interest by using existing methods of handling materials and fabricating them into needed buildings.

We further instruct all our local unions, district and state councils, to endeavor to put this plan into effect in their locality, in conjunction and cooperation with all other interested parties.

We also instruct our general officers to continue their efforts along these lines, in order that the least possible injury be worked upon our members.

Meeting recessed at 12:00 o'clock.

Thursday Afternoon Session, December 18, 1941.

Meeting reconvened at 1:30 o'clock.

Case No. 8—Pledge of loyal support to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Your Executive Council, knowing that the officers and members of the International and local unions were giving all-out loyal support to the Federal Government in its present defense against all war by the aggressor nations, felt that evidence should be shown of this support to our Chief Executive and Commander in Chief of our armed forces of our Nation and by unanimous vote drafted and sent the following message:

Cleveland, Ohio,
December 18, 1941.

The President,
Washington, D. C.
Sir:

We, the officers and members of the Executive Council of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union in session assembled, do hereby tender to you, as the Commander in Chief of our armed forces of this country, our wholehearted support and cooperation, to the end that our forces shall bring about a victorious termination of the war in which we are now engaged with the Imperial Government of Japan and other Axis Powers.

We also desire to assure you that we feel we are bespeaking the sentiments of the entire membership of our International Union in tendering our assurances of their full cooperation in the war to victory over the totalitarian forces that are now waging war against us.

Respectfully,

(s) WILLIAM J. McSORLEY,
General President.
(s) HARRY J. HAGEN,
Chairman, Executive Council.
(s) C. J. HAGGERTY,
Secretary, Executive Council.
(s) TERRY FORD,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Case No. 9—Instructions to purchase an additional $10,000 worth of Defense Bonds.

While your Executive Council realizes that we are not a large or wealthy organization, it is still their opinion that Defense Stamps and Savings Bonds should be purchased by our International and local unions wherever possible. It is therefore the unanimous action of your Executive Council that the General Secretary-Treasurer be instructed to purchase an additional $10,000 worth of Defense Savings Bonds; and we further urge all local unions and individual members to purchase Defense Savings Stamps or Bonds up to the limit of their capacity, in order to show our active support of the Federal Government in all of its defense campaign.

Case No. 10—The action and resolution adopted by the Building and Construction Trades Department setting forth the Labor policy for its affiliated International Unions and Local Councils.

Your Executive Council was fortunate enough to be in session at the time the Building and Construction Trades Department met in Washington, on December 15, and drafted and adopted the following resolution and covering letter:

Washington, D. C.,
December 15, 1941.

To Presidents of all National and International Unions and Secretaries of Local Building and Construction Trades Councils affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor:

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Greetings!

A meeting of the General Presidents of the National and International Unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor was held on Thursday, December 11, 1941, in the Executive Council Chamber, American Federation of Labor Building, Washington, D. C.

General Brehon Somervell, U. S. Army, and Admiral Ben Moreell, U. S. Navy, addressed the conference outlining briefly the responsibilities of the Construction Divisions of the Army and the Navy since the declaration of war by this country on Japan, Germany and Italy.

Admiral Moreell called to the attention of the conference assembled that there were in excess of 20,000 building and construction tradesmen now employed at Midway Island, Wake Island, Guam, Hawaii, Pearl Harbor and the Philippine Islands primarily in the construction of defenses in preparation for this war. Some of these islands, it is reported, have been captured. On Midway Island and Wake Island, it is reported that the construction workers have been armed and are now fighting side by side with the Marine Corps. So the war has come close to our people in the first engagement to the extent that civilian construction workers have voluntarily, not only given of their skill, but have actually participated in combat.

The enclosed resolution, which was passed and approved by the Executive Council of the Department and the conference of General Presidents means:

(a) That there shall be no strikes for any reason whatsoever on defense construction projects;

(b) That rules and regulations with reference to practice and custom be waived when necessary to make possible the employment of men of trades who have had general construction experience, rather than to take inexperienced men in the construction field; and to suspend temporarily for the emergency the apprentice time serving regulations to permit qualified apprentices to do journeymen's work;

(c) That since it has been reported that on present projects it is desired that two or three shift employment be instituted seven days per week, that every effort should be made to supply adequate numbers of skilled workmen to fulfill the requirements of the Army, Navy, or other Government Agencies engaged in defense work;

(d) And that in order to effectuate the foregoing without exception and to faithfully adhere to the declared purpose of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, that there shall be no disruption of production in our industry essential to the national defense, and that the right to strike shall not be resorted to, but shall be deferred and that all labor disputes shall be settled by conciliation and arbitration machinery established by the Government and the Building and Construction Trades Department.

The Stabilization Agreement referred to in the enclosed resolution may be found on pages 101-103 of the Proceedings of the Thirty-fifth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department. A copy was also mailed you under date of August 1, 1941.

Fraternally submitted,

(s) JOHN P. COYNE, President.

A. F. of L. Building,
Washington, D. C.,
December 11, 1941.

At a meeting of the General Presidents of the National and International Unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor on the above date, all present listened to General Brehon Somervell, U. S. Army and Admiral Ben Moreell, U. S. Navy, address those assembled on the problems that will confront our Government in this war with Japan, Germany any Italy, and adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, many members of organizations affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department are now in the armed services and more will be called upon to bear arms in defense of our country; and

WHEREAS, no one is able to tell how close this conflict will come to the civilian population of this country and to what extent the institutions which we have built up after many years of sacrifice and labor will be affected; and

WHEREAS, this crisis confronts and affects every person in every walk of life in this great country of ours; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that we, of the organizations affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, do hereby solemnly pledge that we will dedicate ourselves to do everything possible in the direction of aid in the defense of our country, and that we pledge to the Commander in Chief our most sincere support for all-out aid in resisting the forces of those nations who have declared war against the United States of America; and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, that each International Union affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department notify each of their subordinate local unions to encourage every man to exert every possible effort to assist in increasing the productive capacity of our industry, and to forego conveniences and comforts if necessary, that each individual may be guided to fit himself into that line of activity that would best serve this common purpose; and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, that any disputes or misunderstandings that may arise on any war emergency projects shall be settled in an orderly manner under the provisions of the Stabilization Agreement for the building and construction industry without any stoppage of work; and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, that there shall be no action on our part, which would in any way interfere with the production of equipment and supplies for our armed forces or prevent the prosecution of this war to a speedy and successful conclusion.

(s) JOHN P. COYNE, President.
(s) L. P. LINDELOF, WJG, First Vice President.
(s) R. J. GRAY, Second Vice President.
(s) WILLIAM J. McSORLEY, Third Vice President.
(s) DANIEL J. TOBIN, Fourth Vice President.
(s) WM. L. HUTCHESON, Fifth Vice President.
(s) ROBERT BYRON, Sixth Vice President.
(s) GEORGE MASTERTON, Seventh Vice President.
(s) ED. J. BROWN, Eighth Vice President.
(s) HERBERT RIVERS, Secretary-Treasurer.

Your Executive Council, by unanimous action, pledges its full support to the Building and Construction Trades Department by approving the resolution and urging upon our affiliated local unions the necessity for their observance of this policy during the period of national emergency. Your Executive Council feels that their approval of the Building and Construction Trades Department action is in effect a requirement of each and every member of the International to comply with the statements and policies as set forth in the above resolution.

Meeting adjourned at 4:30 o'clock.

Friday Session, December 19, 1941.

Meeting called to order by Chairman Hagen at 10:00 A. M.

Case No. 11—Declaration of war Labor policy by the officers of the American Federation of Labor and the officers of all affiliated National and International Unions in conference at Washington, D. C., December 15, 1941.

Your Executive Council very carefully considered the above declaration of war Labor policy by the officers of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated National and International Unions and by unanimous action endorsed ad approved that declaration and statement.

Your Council takes this opportunity to commend these officers of the American Federation of Labor for this very comprehensive and clear-cut statement and for their recognition and stating their attitude to our form of government in such an intelligent, forthright manner. Your Council recommends that every member of our International Union very carefully read and digest this statement and be guided by its purport and intent:

We, the officers of the American Federation of Labor and of National and International Unions in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, assembled this 16th day of December, 1941, have carefully, thoughtfully and patriotically considered the war emergency into which our Nation and its people have been plunged and as well the declaration of principles and of policies submitted by the Executive Council and as adopted and approved by it yesterday, December 15, 1941.

We, unhesitatingly and unequivocally, place ourselves in full accord with the principles, policies and procedures outlined by the Executive Council.

As citizens, as workers, as trade unionists of a free land, we declare the overshadowing issue in the present crisis is the safeguarding of the priceless heritage of freedom, of liberty and the preservation of democracy. The United States is now at war with the Axis Powers testing whether democracy will endure or tyranny and despotism will triumph—whether men and races shall be free or be enslaved.

The issue is squarely and starkly set before the American people, whether the forces of Hitlerism and of despotism, both in the East and the West, or the forces of democracy and freedom are to survive. We dare not, we must not delude ourselves. This is a life and death struggle. We are, in very truth, fighting for possession of all we hold dear. Everything that we have, our possessions, our resources, our manpower—must be coordinated, not only to defeat the world conspiracy to enslave all peoples to the dream and will of a few irresponsible despots but to insure our liberties, to restore the freedoms of all peoples of the world and to lay the foundations for a real and enduring peace among the nations of the world.

Labor's stake in this struggle is clear, definite and fundamental. Wherever despotism and dictatorship threaten free governments, the very foundations of the labor movement are challenged. Labor dare not blind itself to the significance of this crucial hour. Labor cannot remain silent in the face of the existing danger, not only to itself but to everything to which the free trade union movement is devoted—aye—the very right of organization and of freedom of the individual.

In this crisis the American Federation of Labor representing more than five million wage earners, with federated branches in every state, with hundreds of central labor bodies in many of our cities and with thousands upon thousands of local unions spread throughout the land, hereby re-affirms its loyalty to the principles underlying our Government and pledges to the President of the United States, to the Congress and to the people of America its undivided support for the most vigorous and rigorous prosecution of this war until final victory is ours.

We declare that in this crisis the one fundamental need is for unity of action. Disunity means destruction. The successful prosecution of the war requires that all of the energies of all our people, regardless of race, color or creed be concentrated to a common purpose. We, therefore, call upon management of American industries and the leaders of Government to join in a program of cooperative action to make our Nation, not only the mighty arsenal of world democracy, but as well a source of hope, of encouragement and of assurance to the enslaved peoples everywhere. We call upon industry to share with us the added responsibilities entailed in maintaining peaceful and cooperative relations. We urge that the leaders of industry join with us in keeping the fires of industry burning and alive and help keep secure the pillars of freedom and of democracy.

We regret sincerely and are deeply concerned with the destructive rivalry in organization that has beset the American labor field for the past few years. We hold all such rivalries and jurisdictional conflicts have no place in an emergency such as faces America and the world today. We, therefore, renew our offer of unity in the labor movement and for the common defense of our Nation against mortal danger. We hope our call to this end may not be in vain.

We too call upon the National Labor Relations Board to desist from the formulation or enforcement of any policy, procedure or decision that may create dissension or intensify existing differences and conflicts in the household of organized labor.

We likewise urge that those in governmental positions of authority in this moment of national peril forego their unjustified attacks upon trade union organizations and their legitimate functions.

We declare that the right of wage earners to collective bargaining and to function freely and fully in the legitimate sphere designed for them is a fundamental condition which gives opportunity for economic freedom and social advancement. These rights and opportunities must not be impaired. While we reject repressive labor legislation and insist upon the preservation of the essential democratic right of workers to cease work, collectively as a last and final resort, we nevertheless pledge ourselves to forego the exercise of this right during the war emergency and to prefer submission of pending differences with employers to approved facilities and processes for voluntary mediation, conciliation and arbitration. We most heartily endorse the "no-strike" policy voluntarily assumed by all divisions and character of Labor as announced by the Executive Council. Labor needs no restrictions upon the right to strike. When to cease production is to strike at the very heart of the Nation, Labor will produce, and produce without interruption.

We commend the Executive Council for its recommendation that there be created a War Labor Board similar to that which functioned so successfully during the last world war. We believe the general principles then enunciated for the guidance of this Board should be made the policy of this hour, namely, that neither Labor nor management should take advantage of such an agency to prosecute either's advantages at the expense of the other's, that industrial relations be preserved and that every stoppage of work essential to adequate national defense be avoided and averted. In this regard we hold that the work and service of all our people are inextricably interwoven and involved whether engaged directly in war or defense work or whether applied to the necessities, safety, comfort or convenience of our civilian population. Total war today is no longer confined to the military forces of the land but embraces as well the civilian population —young and old—men, women and children alike.

Experience has demonstrated that protective labor legislation and hour standards are for the purpose of conserving workers in order to make possible sustained maximum producing power. They are the safeguards to national well-being. In war emergencies there may be temporary need for abolishing some standards or for modifying special standards for special industries. All such modifications and changes, however, should be the result of proven need and should be approved in advance by representatives of the workers. The same is true of protective labor and employment standards established through collective bargaining and trade union agreements.

To assure an uninterrupted flow of production and the maximum of defense effort, organized labor should be accorded by Government adequate and effective representation of its own choosing in all defense planning and execution. The validity of such participation by Labor in all our emergency efforts and undertakings is fully justified and its efficiency is demonstrated beyond peradventure of doubt in the experience of the British Government policy. Then, too, our experience in the last world war confirms the soundness of this policy. American organized labor is anxious to contribute all its efforts in all directions for the achievement of our country's impregnable defense and for a speedy and complete victory for the forces of humanity over brutality, of freedom and democracy over tyranny and despotism.

We declare ourselves fully and completely in accord with the several recommendations of the Executive Council and as embraced in its statement. We pledge ourselves individually and collectively, promptly and fully, to enforce these policies and procedures without hesitation or evasion and to take such further actions as time and experience indicate essential to our Nation's triumphant victory.

In addition to calling upon untiring uninterrupted activities of our members to produce an overabundance of the supplies and equipment essential to a total war and in providing adequately for necessities and comforts of our civilian population, we are mindful that many of our members, and members of their families have been and will be called to the military service of our land. We pledge to them every possible aid and a full measure of devotion. It shall be our purpose not alone to sustain the military forces of our land but as well to safeguard the interests of our civilian population and hold secure the liberties and freedom of all our people in this greatest of all emergencies.

We further pledge ourselves to bring these declarations of policies and procedures to the attention of our respective local unions and general membership with direction that the principles and practices herein declared for and made imperative by the necessities of the occasion, be fully and immediately complied with without hesitation or equivocation.

Inspired by these ideals of humanity, of liberty and justice and as herein declared a fundamental national policy, we call upon the working men and women of all America—indeed upon all lovers of humanity and of freedom to unite in unanimous support of the president of our Nation and its Allies for the prosecution of total war and for the perpetuity and preservation of democracy, here and throughout the world.

In addition to the above printed documents, your council, after reading and carefully digesting the statement which was issued by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in meeting assembled December 7, 1941, feels that this statement should be read and digested by not only every member of our International Union, but also every citizen of this Nation. We therefore print in full this said statement for the benefit of our membership and suggest that they show this to as many of their friends as possible and call this to their attention, so that they may know and understand the position of the American Federation of Labor and its component International Unions and Departments, as the actions of the American Federation of Labor, bearing upon our present state of war:

At a specially called meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, a careful appraisal of the situation which was created by the recent infamous and treacherous action of the Japanese Government was made. Each member in attendance at the meeting was moved by feelings of righteous indignation and a determination to compel the Government of Japan to pay in full measure for the dastardly attack upon our Government on the morning of December 7, 1941.

The attack made by the Japanese Government was, in our opinion, part of a plan previously agreed upon by the Axis Powers. The secrecy, trickery and treachery employed by the Japanese Government in launching it is characteristic of action heretofore taken by the totalitarian nations.

The declaration of war made against the United States by Hitler and Mussolini was a logical sequence to the understanding which prevailed among the Axis Powers.

Now our Nation is involved in war. We face these realities and facts with a solemn and unchangeable determination that Japan and her Allies must be defeated at any cost. Neither time, circumstances, difficulties or disappointments must interfere with the achievement of this purpose.

The devastating tyranny which threatens freedom in all lands has now struck at our symbols of freedom and liberty. The seriousness of this danger was made clear and convincing when the Axis group launched a sudden and deadly assault upon our fortifications and our dependencies at the moment when their peace envoys were conferring with representatives of our Government. Good faith, honest dealing, frankness, honesty and integrity are words that were never included in the Japanese code of procedure. They know not the meaning of these terms because only trickery, deception, dishonesty and treachery influence and inspire them in actions which they take.

The blow struck at Pearl Harbor and our islands in the Pacific has resounded throughout our Nation as a call to service. Nothing that has ever happened has served better to unite all classes of people in America, both in spirit and in purpose.

We are now at war—not only against Japan but against all the Axis Powers. No group of our people can indulge in speculations as to what the future course of our Nation must be. We have been forced to make a momentous decision. We have chosen our course and there can be no turning back. We must drive through, crush defeat and subdue our enemies —those who have declared war against us. The preservation of our common heritage of our freedom, liberty and democracy —all those things which are as precious as life itself—is at stake. Our free institutions must be preserved. Our liberties must be protected. In the race between totalitarianism and freedom, democracy must win.

The call of the hour is for service and sacrifice. Labor has much at stake, perhaps more than any other group which is included in our social, national and political life. It is thoroughly conscious of the issues which hang in the balance. Speaking, as we do, out of an understanding of the heart and mind of Labor, we can assure the Nation that labor is ready and willing to render exalted service. The value of that service will compare with the kind rendered by our heroes in the air, on the battlefield and on the high seas.

The first line of war service is in the factories, the mills, the mines and the transportation system of the Nation. These workers serving in the important field of production and transportation must not falter in their devotion and service to our Nation. They must measure up to the high standard of excellency established by the skill, genius, training and service of American Labor. Success in the air, on the battlefield or on the high seas is impossible without an adequate supply of war material of all kinds. The instrumentalities of war must be produced by the workers of our Nation. They must be supplied to the Army and the Navy in full measure.

The Executive Council profoundly declares that no worker must ever shirk his duty or withhold from the Government a full measure of service. Our pledge to give, to work and to sacrifice, will be redeemed just in proportion as our workers give their all, constantly, continuously and without interruption to the people of our own Nation and to the cause of democracy throughout the world.

In this crucial hour, fraught with grave consequences, the Executive Council call upon the members of the American Federation of Labor to reach new heights of production and to exemplify in daily service their devotion to our Government and their determination to defeat tyranny, despotism and treachery throughout the world. We must place Americanism above and beyond every other consideration. ..

It is the considered opinion of the Executive Council that this objective can be reached through full and complete compliance with the following stipulations:

1. That a "no-strike" policy shall be applied in all war and defense material production industries. This means that all workers employed in war and defense material industries should voluntarily relinquish the exercise of the right to strike during the continuation of the existing state of war except where mediation, conciliation or arbitration is refused by employers.
2. That a national agency similar to the War Labor Board which functioned during the World War, be created by executive order for the purpose of dealing promptly with grievances, differences and complaints which may arise between employers and employes. Existing labor stabilization agreements or understandings and their administration shall in no way be interfered with or be impaired.
3. That through the utilization of such agency mediation, conciliation and voluntary arbitration be substituted for strikes and lockouts in all war and defense production industries.
4. That the mediation and conciliation service of the Government be strengthened and, if necessary, increased so that it may be made quickly available for use in the settlement of grievances and disputes which may arise.
5. That due regard for the health, safety and welfare of workers must be accorded them if and when they are called upon to work overtime or in plants which may be placed upon a double shift or continuous working time basis. In all such situations the standard 40-hour work-week shall be maintanied and protected as a basis for wages paid and the standard rule for overtime pay religiously observed.

No one can adequately appraise the value of the service or the extent of said service which the membership of the American Federation of Labor is in a position to render to the Government. We offer it freely and without reservation. No citizen of the Republic shall give less. This character of service has been given by the members of the American Federation of Labor during the period since the national emergency was declared.

Liberty, freedom and democracy are principles which are very near and dear to the heart of every working man and woman. They understand and know, without a shadow of doubt, that if tyranny and totalitarianism win free democratic trade unions, democracy and freedom pass out. Life under regimentation, as it exists among laboring people of totalitarian nations, would mean very little to American Workers who from the birth of the Republic to the present time have been permitted to enjoy liberty, freedom and democracy. We cherish fondly within our hearts and lives these priceless blessings guaranteed under the Bill of Rights adopted 150 years ago today. In order to protect them and to defend them we offer our service and our lives to our Government.

Case No. 12.—Need for compliance with Section 113 International Constitution.

It was brought to the attention of your Executive Council, through various complaints, that in some parts of this country our local unions have not been properly caring for the work within the jurisdiction of the International Union, by failing to supply sufficient men to perform the work as required.

Your Council feels that this condition is abhorrent to the International and its affiliated locals and can not be tolerated. It is more important now than ever before that we care for the work coming within the jurisdiction of our International. Your Council feels that our industry will suffer considerably due to lack of certain materials, and the elimination by governmental agencies of certain types of building construction, which will necessarily mean disemployment of numbers of our members in many cities of this nation.

We therefore call attention of our affiliated unions to Section 113 of our International Constitution and urge that they all be governed thereby, to the end, wherever work is available in any locality in this country and additional men may be needed, that local secretaries and business agents should not any longer let this work stand, when so many of our unemployed members could be placed on these jobs, with resulting benefits to themselves and our industry.

Your Council therefore urges very strongly that all local secretaries comply with Section 113, by notifying the International headquarters any time they believe additional men will be needed in their jurisdiction.

Case No. 13.

Your Executive Council was honored by the appearance of President John E. Rooney of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers International Association, in answer to an invitation from your Council.

Your Council was well pleased with the constructive statements and cooperative attitude of President Rooney, who discussed with your Council the present serious situation confronting all building trades unions.

Your Council feels that our International Organization has enjoyed the friendship of the officers and members of the OP&CFIA and feel that it is important that nothing be allowed to interfere in the future with the continuation of this harmonious relationship.

It was therefore the action of your Council that the General President be instructed to continue his harmonious relationship with the OP&CFIA and to confer with President Rooney and his members and official family of the OP&CFIA, to the end that a complete understanding be reached between our two International organizations, through the consummation of a written agreement.

Case No. 14.—Amended withdrawal card service plan for the protection of the continuous good standing of members serving the military forces of the United States or Canada.

Your Executive Council considered several suggestions made in the light of our present war status and agree the continuous good standing record of any member, who enters the military service of the United States or Canada, is entitled to such protection.

In view of the fact that men serving in the military forces are protected by the Government under the War Risk Insurance Plan, your Council feels that there is no need for further funeral benefits protection by the International Union of a member while in such military service. Therefore, your Council has adopted the following plan to cover this condition:

All members entering the military service of either the United States or Canada shall be granted a Military Service Withdrawal Card, to be obtained from the General Office on a special form, without cost; and, upon depositing such withdrawal card within 90 days after his discharge from the service, he shall immediately be restored his unbroken record of good standing, including the time in service and thereafter shall be entitled to all accrued Internation benefits.

There being no further business, therefore the Council meeting adjourned at 3:30 p. m.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted,

HARRY J. HAGEN, First Vice-President, Chairman.

C. J. HAGGERTY, Second Vice-President, Secretary.

AIR DUCT OF METAL LATH AND PLASTER

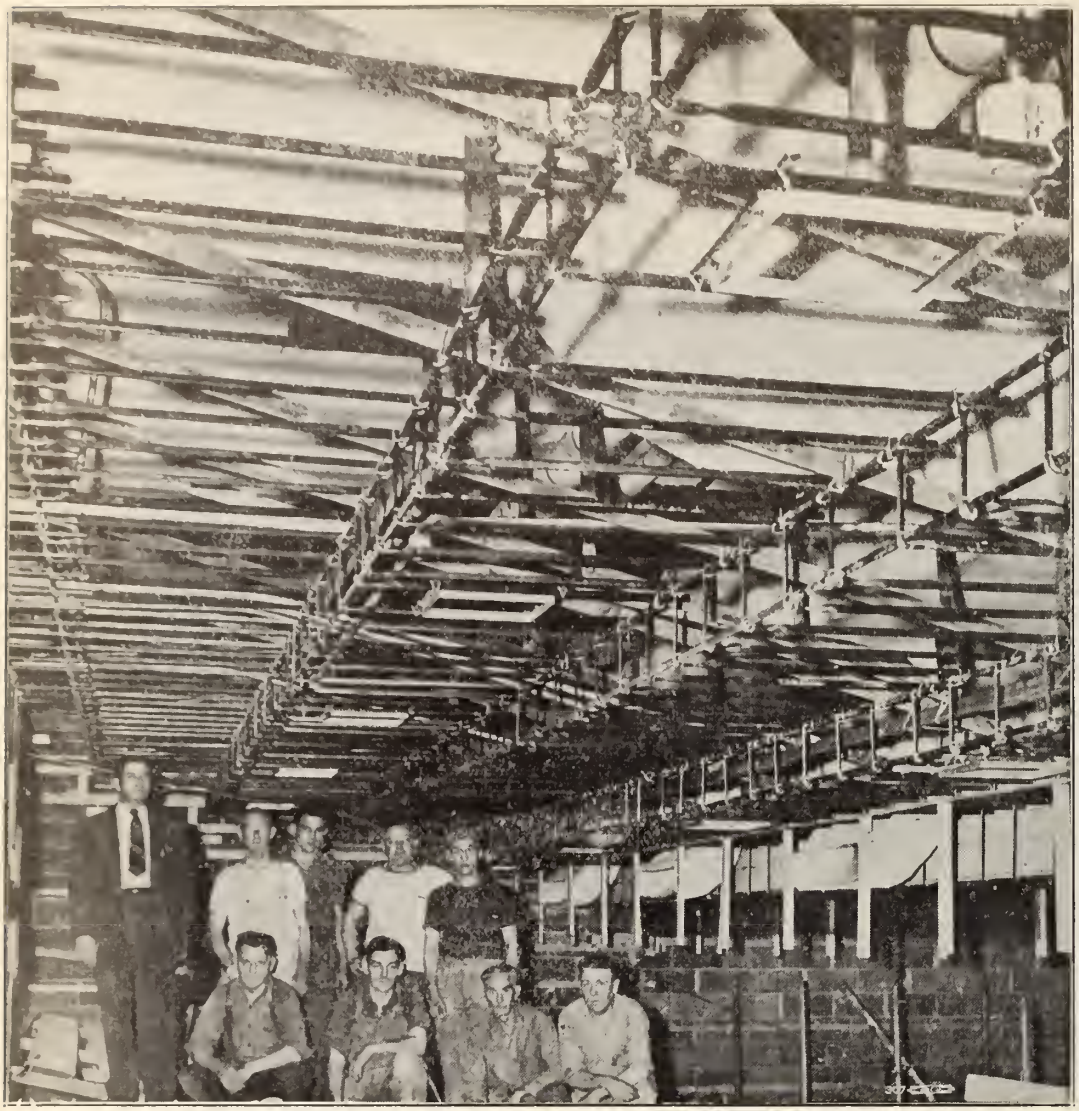

—Courtesy Harry J. Hagen.

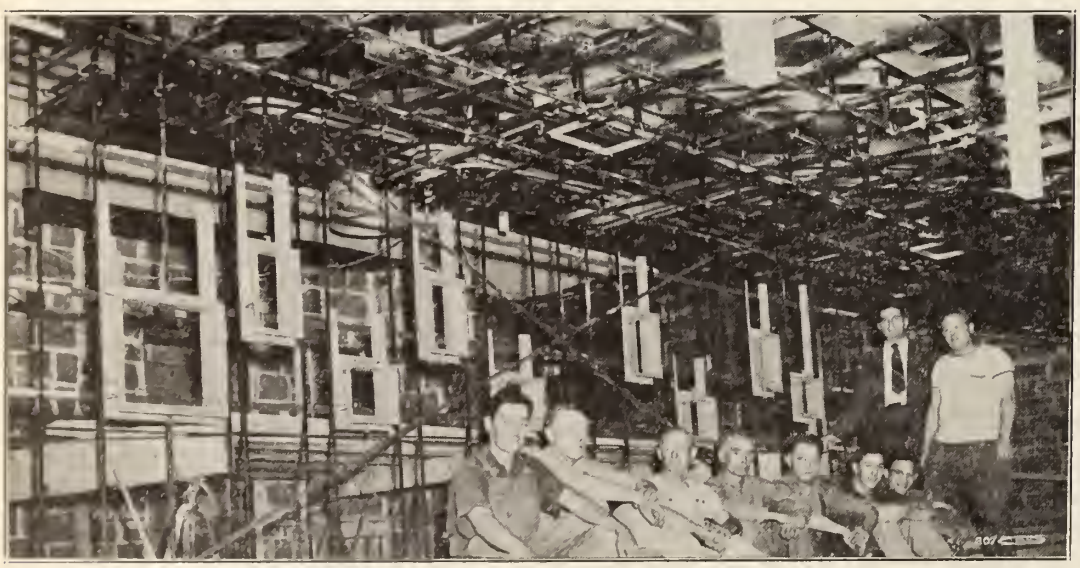

This illustration should have accompanied canopy installation photos published November issue.

EXPLANATION

The above metal lath and cement plaster duct illustration should have accompanied illustrations of metal lath and cement plaster canopy which appeared in the November issue of The Lather, in order to more clearly illustrate the purpose of the canopy, its location, construction, etc., but lack of space prevented its inclusion.

The canopy illustrated in the November Lather was built in the kitchen basement of an up-to-date tavern in St. Louis, where steaks, etc., were served on the floor above—being sent there from the kitchen by means of a dumb waiter. The canopy was attached to the first-floor concrete slab by tying a channel runner to re-inforcing rods embedded in floor slab and shoeing furring channels into runner. The ceiling line of canopy was directed toward ventilator in top of basement wall, thru which smoke, fumes, etc., were drawn thru the wall into the basement next door and thru the above illustrated duct by means of a powerful exhaust fan at rear of building, where the smoke and fumes were expelled. Sheet metal ducts are prohibited in this type work but metal lath and cement pass fire inspection. The duct was also slightly inclined from the source toward the exit, in order to facilitate smoke and fume expulsion.

Members of our Local Union 72, Boston, Mass., are shown on this job where they erected hung ceilings and placed frames on the fluorescent lighting systems in these ceilings and walls.

Erection of this frame was awarded to members of our International Union in a decision rendered on this job. We are publishing these photos so that members of our various local unions will endeavor to secure the erection of these frames in all localities.

LOCAL 185 BUYS DEFENSE BONDS

Local Union 185, Wichita, Kansas, informs headquarters that their local union has shown its patriotism by investing $444.00 in United States Defense Savings Bonds. These will mature in twelve years and will bring them a profit of $166.00 at maturity. The local union will then have six hundred dollars for four hundred forty-four dollars invested at this time.

We hope all of our local unions will follow the patriotic example set by our Local 185 and purchase Defense Savings Bonds to the fullest extent of their treasury.

We would also request our other local unions to notify headquarters the amount of U. S. Defense Savings Bonds they purchased.

IN APPRECIATION

UNCLE SAM HITS FAKES ABOUT STRIKES

(Labor)

As America goes into the most serious war in its history, what is the situation on the labor front? Let official figures from O. P. M., the Labor Department and the Federal Reserve Board answer that question.

There isn't a serious strike on the horizon. Furthermore, the government's figures completely expose the cruel hoax, circulated by crooked columnists and utterly unscrupulous newspaper publishers, that "labor has been hamstringing defense."

An analysis of the reports released by these three great government agencies shows that during the entire period covered by the defense program strikes have not affected more than a fraction of one per cent of the men and women who were laboring to produce the weapons needed to defeat Hitler. Most of the time the figure was two-tenths of one per cent.

Furthermore, the Federal Reserve Board's tabulations demonstrate that all industrial output has gone up 45 per cent since this emergency started; that it is now 53 per cent above the peak year of 1929, and 290 per cent higher than the depression low of 1932.

The showing is even more impressive in the field of durable goods where defense orders are concentrated. Here production is now 63 per cent ahead of the 1929 high.

Putting it another way, the workers, starting from "scratch," have turned out 750,000,000 man-days of labor in defense industries with the result that there has been a flow of planes, tanks, ships and other supplies far ahead of all schedules.

Out of that vast total of working time, losses due to strikes "significantly" affecting defense have totaled only 2,527,000 mandays, or about one-third of one per cent, according to O. P. M. compilations.

Government officials testify that this showing is "one of the most remarkable in the nation's history." It is even more than that. So far as we know, nothing like it has ever been recorded in any democracy at the beginning of a great war.

It is probably too much to hope that men like Smith of Virginia and Cox of Georgia will be influenced by these figures, or that the newspapers of the land will give them the prominence they deserve. Apparently they are not interested in the truth about the American labor movement.

LABOR is placing the figures before its readers confident that they will give them the widest possible circulation among their friends and neighbors and through such other channels as may be open to them.

ARTHUR DAVID YODER

Born September 27, 1883 Died January 2, 1942

After a long illness, Brother Arthur David Yoder passed away January 2, 1942, in Chicago.

At the turn of the century, Brother Yoder, then just entering manhood, joined our International Union thru our Local Union 49, Pueblo, Colorado. The date was July 28, 1900. For eight years he traveled around in various parts of the country, from New York to California, then decided to try his luck in Chicago. Brother Yoder transferred into our Chicago Local Union 74, August 14, 1908, where he maintained his membership in our International Union up to the time of his death.

He served Local 74 as business agent for several terms and from time to time represented this local union as delegate to various state and central bodies and at our International conventions.

Our September 1920 Convention elected Brother Yoder Fourth Vice President of our International Union.

Then at our September 1923 Convention he was elected General Secretary-Treasurer of our International Union and re-elected at our September 1926 Convention, which office Brother Yoder held until our September 1929 Convention.

It was during his incumbency as General Secretary-Treasurer of our International Union that the Lathers Building, housing our International Office, was built. As a resident official of our International Union, naturally a great deal of the responsibility for this tremendous undertaking fell upon Brother Yoder's shoulders. He worked diligently and untiringly with the building committee and his enthusiasm was a great factor in bringing into fulfillment a long dreamed of International Headquarters of our own. No one was prouder than he when our building was dedicated December 15, 1924. It can truly be said that the Lathers Building is in effect a monument to Brother Yoder's memory.

Brother Yoder was one of the most sincere and conscientious men. The great stamina of the man was also revealed during his long illness. Despite a great handicap which would have deterred many another from making public contacts, Brother Yoder attended local meetings and functions almost to the very end.

We pay tribute to a noble character.

WIT AND HUMOR

Two little boys had misbehaved in school, and as a punishment the teacher told them they would have to stay late, and that each must write his name 100 times. On hearing this, one of them burst into tears.

"'Taint fair," he cried. "His name is Lee, and mine's Kastenbaumenstein."

———o———

"Call that a kind man?" said an actor, speaking of an absent acquaintance, "a man who is away from his family, and never sends them a dollar! Call that kindness?"

"Yes, unremitting kindness," said his friend.

Teacher (in geography lesson)—"Now, can anybody tell me where we find mangoes?"

Knowing Little Boy—"Yes, miss, it's wherever woman goes."

———o———

She was trying to telephone a dry cleaning establishment, but she got a wrong number which connected her with the apartment of a young man about town.

"Will you please send back my dress," she said, impatiently. "I left it at your place last Friday, and I want it sent to me."

"My dear madam," stammered the young man. "Would you mind telling me what you wore home?"

HOW WILL YOU HAVE YOUR APPLES?

Since reports to the Consumer Division of the Office of Price Administration indicate that a good apple crop is on the market this year, Miss Harriet Elliott, chief of the Division and Associate Administrator of OPA suggests that consumers take advantage of this fact. This will not only mean a good variety of fruits for your family, but a good job of conservation, since it will prevent any waste of this fine crop.

Some of the many varieties of apples are on the market all the year round. You will find some kinds are definitely eating apples, some best for baking, while most of them are good for general cooking purposes. It is recommended that you learn the names of a number of the more common varieties of apples so that you can call for them that way. These include the Delicious, a mild apple for eating only, Winesaps and Rome Beauties of sharper flavor for eating and cooking, the Olddenberg and McIntosh for baking, and the fine Stayman Winesap for all purposes. Take a few of several kinds home and try them out in various ways. Then when you want apples again, you will know the kind to ask for.

For eating and baking, you should choose apples of good color and shape, mature but not too ripe. For general cooking, apples that are less ripe, that are not so well shaped or colored, are quite practical and economical. When serving apples raw as dessert or salad, keep the peel on. That will retain the apple's important supply of vitamin C.

Government grading indicates that the best-sized apples for family use are those packed 113 to 138 to the crate. Many packers use the Agricultural Marketing Service grading. Stamps showing the grade appear on the crate. "U. S. Fancy" means the finest apples packed; "U. S. No. 1" slightly lower quality but excellent fruit; "U. S. Commercial," less carefully selected for shape and color, very good for cooking; "U. S. Early," immature, but good cooking grade, and "U. S. Utility," second grade, off in shape and color with some blemishes, but entirely satisfactory for cooking if carefully prepared.

It is good consumer practice to buy as large a quantity as you can safely store. Too hot or too cold storage space may cause loss from spoilage that will offset any saving from quantity buying. If you and some friends or neighbors would buy your apples together, you might get the better price that comes from such buying, and cut down the risk in individual storing.

There are a few "don'ts" to remember in buying apples. Don't get them too immature if you want to store them, since they will shrivel. Test the flesh for soft spots, because such spots are danger signals of decay. If you find apples late in the winter or early in the spring with brown spots, that means "scald" resulting from gases escaping during storage. If these spots are soft, the apples are not good buys. Likewise, don't buy fruit that is too irregular in shape, since it may waste in cutting.

We are told that a good cook may use up a whole barrel of apples and never repeat a recipe once. Baked apples, pared apples cooked whole in cinnamon syrup, apple sauce for meat meals, spiced apples in relishes, tart apples in salads, apples cooked in combination with other foods, and finally that thoroughly American dessert, apple pie, are but a few of the ways in which you can use this versatile fruit. A little leaflet called "Apple Recipes" which may be obtained from the Office of Information of the U. S. Department of Agriculture will help you become a top-flight apple cook as well as a real conservationist in using one of our good crops.

AFL WILL STOP AT NOTHING TO HELP AMERICA WIN WAR, GREEN PLEDGES

Washington, D. C.—President William Green pledged to the nation that the five million members of the American Federation of Labor have enlisted for the duration of the war on the industrial front and will let nothing stand in the way of complete victory for America over the Axis powers.

Mr. Green's patriotic declaration was broadcast over the Mutual System as part of a symposium from leaders of labor, industry and government entitled "United America Looks Ahead To 1942." The text of Mr. Green's address follows:

"I speak here tonight for five million American working men and women whose sons and brothers and loved ones are fighting on America's battle fronts for the defense of our country and our way of life.

"These workers are not called upon to bear arms themselves—they are making them. They are building the ships, tanks, airplanes and guns that America must have to defeat the forces of barbarism which are trying to destroy us. They are producing all the implements of war necessary to equip our Army and Navy and our air fleets.

"In a very important sense, these workers are fighting for America. They are fighting on the industrial front. Their skill, their strength and their devoted service are just as essential to victory as the fighting ability of our armed forces.

"I am proud to be able to say to you that the great army of workers represented by the American Federation of Labor is unmatched anywhere in the world today. With high hearts and willing hands they approach the tasks of the New Year resolutely determined that nothing shall stand in the way of complete victory for America in this war.

"Our men and women know this is a war of free human beings against slavery. It is labor's war. It is America's war.

"They have but one thought and one resolution in mind—that this war must be won as quickly as possible.

"To that end the members of the American Federation of Labor will work to the limit of their endurance. They will produce the materials of war as the workers of no other nation have ever produced. They will cheerfully make every sacrifice the Government calls upon them to make.

"American labor and American industry are now marching hand in hand with the Government to speed victory by assuring all-out, uninterrupted defense production. All sides have agreed that there shall be no strikes or lockouts for the duration of the war and that such disputes as may arise will be settled by peaceful means without stopping the wheels of production.

"This is a great step forward and it demonstrates the willingness of labor and industry to do everything possible for the advancement of America's cause. Inspired by a single purpose, bound together by a single loyalty and proud above all to be Americans, we can face the common foe united and unconquerable."

ALBERT F. BALDWIN

Charter Member Local Union 72, died December 31, 1941. Brother Baldwin was an old-timer and formerly served Local 72 as president, business agent and delegate to their Building and Construction Trades Council.

To these who are cleansed of base Desire, Sorrow and Lust and Shame—
Gods for they knew the hearts of men, men for they stooped to Fame,
Borne on the breath that men call Death, my brother's spirit came.

He scarce had need to doff his pride or slough the dross of Earth—
E'en as he trod that day to God so walked he from his birth,
In simpleness and gentleness and honour and clean mirth.

So cup to lip in fellowship they gave him welcome high
And made him place at the banquet board—the Strong Men ranged thereby,
Who had done his work and held his peace and had no fear to die.

Beyond the loom of the last lone star, through open darkness hurled,
Further than rebel comet dared or hiving star-swarm swirled,
Sits he with those that praise our God for that they served His world.—Rudyard Kipling.

By John J. Buckley

And thus we in this world he left
Who knew of his merit and worth
Though in his absence are sore bereft,
A lord's Promise is brought forth:
That out of the shadows a blessed rift
Heaven's Doorway is opened o'er
In Eternal Life his soul not drift
With God's Peace—for ever more.

Where all treasured knowledge and wisdom sprout
From a Fountain that never dries;
And Grace sufficient within and without
To a soul that lives, not dies,
Eternal Word that brought us Light
In the Power that wrough all life in Thee
From this darkened day and weary night
The lights of Heaven, our brother see.

Decisions of the General President and International Executive Council

Section 121 L. I. U. constitution provides that: All decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short, concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

—o—

Hyman Cohen, 36004 and Abraham Finkelstein, 33088 vs. Local No. 6

Brothers Cohen and Finkelstein appealed against the action of Local No. 6 in placing a fine of $100.00 against each of them for some alleged violation of the law and threatening to stop the job in question. The General President, after carefully examining all of the evidence presented, found that these fines were both illegal and unfair, and therefore ordered them rescinded.

—o—

Francis Nowey, 29721 and Joseph Andreoni, 17606 vs. Local No. 78

Brothers Nowey and Andreoni appealed against the action of Local No. 78 in placing fines against each of them in the sum of $10.00, on the charge of violating that portion of the local union's bylaws pertaining to stewards. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented, found the action of the local union in the matter of these fines illegal, unfair, and unjust, and therefore ordered them rescinded.

J. M. Minshull, 17227 vs. Local No. 233

Brother Minshull appealed against the action of Local 233 in placing a fine of $25.00 against him, on the charge of working against the rules governing the list system. The General President, after carefully examining all of the evidence presented by both sides in this case, found the fine illegally placed and unfair, under the circumstances. He therefore ordered it rescinded.

—o—

A. R. Gilbert, 37909 vs. Local No. 306

Brother Gilbert appealed against the action of this local union in placing a fine of $25.00 against him on the charge of soliciting work contrary to minutes and working agreement. This fine was found to have been illegally levied and unfair to the appellant; the General President therefore ordered it rescinded.

—o—

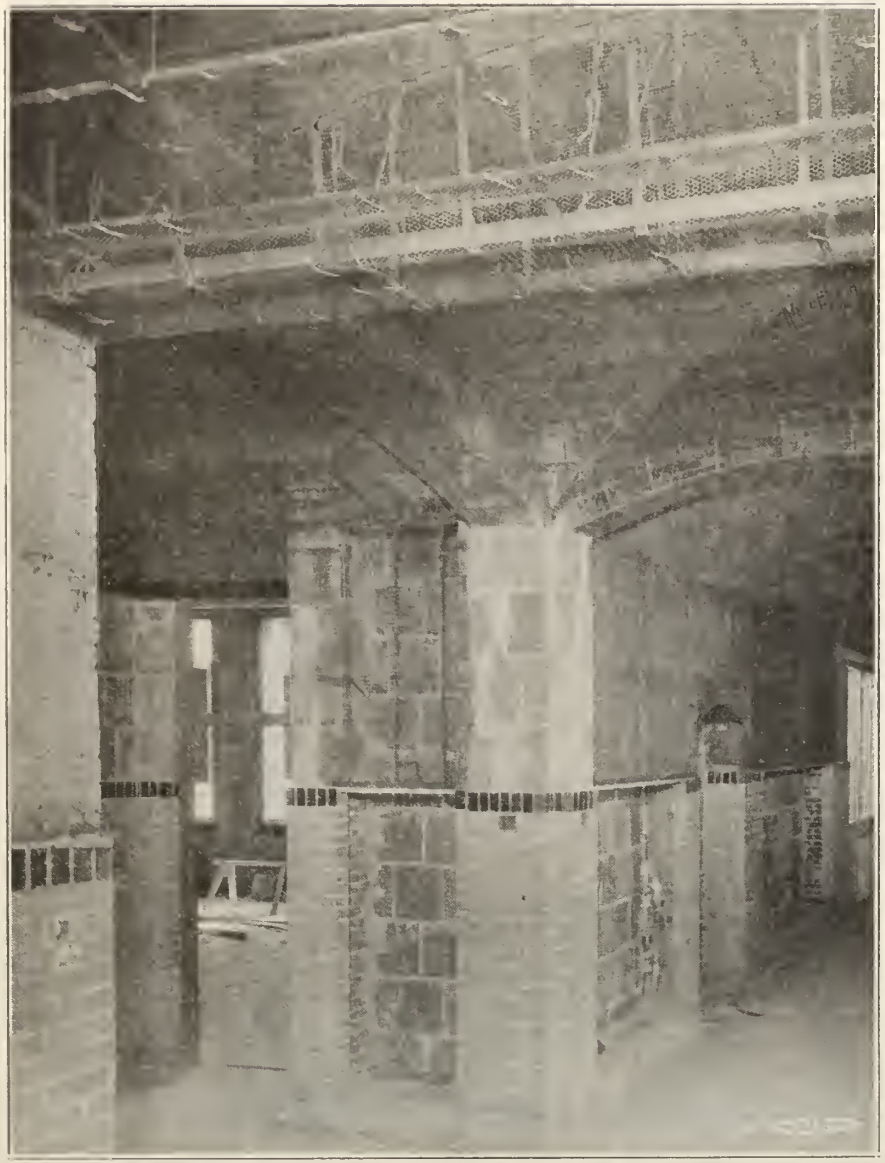

Upon receiving a recommendation from the General President that the International Union donate the sum of $500.00 toward the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the General Executive Council acted favorably upon this recommendation. A check in this amount, made payable to the Foundation, was therefore sent by the General Secretary-Treasurer to President William Green of the A. F. of L., for presentation to President Franklin D. Roosevelt on his sixtieth birthday.

NO WAGE CEILING IN PRICE CONTROL LAW

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor scored a major legislative victory when Congress passed and the President signed a price control bill free of any wage ceilings.

In signing the measure, President Roosevelt declared that when coupled with adequate taxation, rationing and a proper savings program it would go far toward checking inflation.

The life of every person in the land will be vitally affected by the new law.

It vests in a single administrator sweeping authority to prevent profiteering by fixing maximum prices for all commodities and controlling rents.

The President clearly indicated his intention of appointing Leon Henderson to this all-important job. Henderson has been functioning as price administrator under emergency powers.

It will be Henderson's major task to see to it that consumers who are required to do with less because of war shortages are not mercilessly gouged by profiteers.

He will also have to prevent price mark-ups on vital materials which the Government must purchase in huge quantities for war production.

Reactionary newspapers sought to make it appear that the new law is worthless because it makes no attempt to regulate wages, but the facts disprove these contentions.

The American Federation of Labor has repeatedly demonstrated that higher wages represent only a minor proportion of the increased costs of production and that increased productivity of workers more than makes up for such wage boosts as industry has been forced to yield.

From the beginning the American Federation of Labor took the lead in advocating enactment of a price control bill as a protection for the nation's wage earners against runaway prices. It was shown that each jump in the cost of living amounted to a pay cut for workers since their pay envelope dollar would buy less.

At the same time, the Federation bitterly fought all moves to place wages under Federal regulation or control on these grounds:

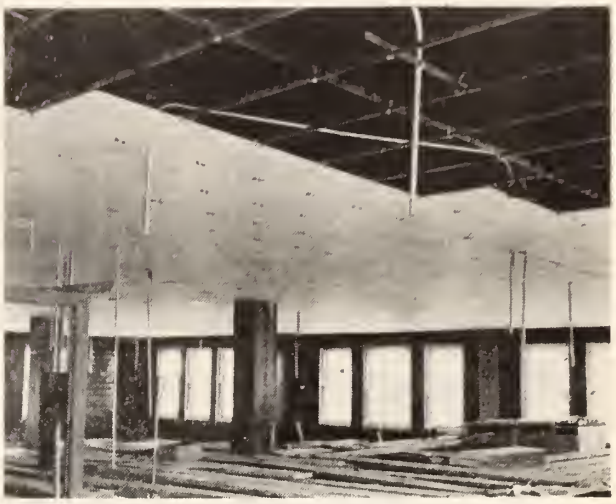

1—The labor of human beings, as existing law recognizes, is not a commodity or article of commerce.

2—Wage increases do not materially affect production costs.

3—Pay envelopes still have a long way to go to catch up with increased living costs.

In signing the new law, the President made it clear that he is far from satisfied with provisions regulating prices of farm products. * * * * Amendments may have to be adopted to guarantee farmers a fair return but to prevent steeper prices for the necessities of life.

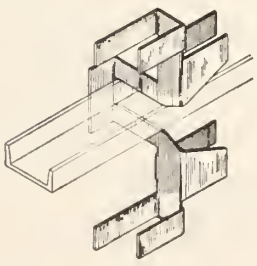

Here's How You Can Save 425 Pounds of Steel in a 100-Yd. Fireproof Ceiling!

Suspended Ceiling of Anchor Lath and Anchor Clips Represents Big Saving in Metal and Time!

STEEL is hard to get! Uncle Sam needs it for certain work that can't be done by any other material. So it's up to every one of us to make other materials do wherever possible—to save all the steel we can—and YOU can save 425 pounds of steel in a 100-yard fireproof ceiling by using Anchor Gypsum Lath and Anchor Clips!

Such a fireproof ceiling—made of metal lath—requires 802.5 pounds of steel all told. But you can build a suspended ceiling of Anchor Gypsum Lath—the same number of square yards—using only 377.5 pounds of steel, when you employ the Anchor Clip method. Hangers and tie-wire are not included in these figures, since they are the same for both types of construction.

Only one kind of clip is used—the Anchor "C" Clip. And the total time required for the suspended Anchor ceiling is considerably less than for conventional metal lath construction. Write for complete facts!

COMFORTABLE HOUSING FOR DEFENSE WORKERS

Defense workers, vitally important to our country's war effort, receive the least consideration, when the question of housing them arises. They are housed in flimsily constructed wallboard shacks, which are a menace to their health and safety.

In winter, the cold air blows thru the sieve-like walls, requiring a maximum outlay for fuel. In the summer, the hot rays of the sun beat down, making this drywall type structure a hothouse and an ideal breeding spot for vermin and insects. That these are carriers of disease is an acknowledged fact. Once infested, it is practically impossible to keep such a building in sanitary condition. The discomfort of sleeping in such a structure, with resultant inefficiency on the job the next day, is obvious.

Fire resistance of any board structure is practically nil and the occupants of such a dwelling are likewise constantly exposed to this hazard.

Lath and plaster construction can not be excelled for soundness. A dwelling constructed with lath and plaster provides the greatest measure of safety, comfort and health to its occupants. Lath and plaster construction can be erected as quickly as wooden frames with siding and wallboard, which have to be painted periodically to keep them in condition, aside from other sundry expenses which this unsubstantial type of structure invites.

Safe and sanitary housing for our defense workers is essential to their health and welfare and to sustain their morale and efficiency.

PIONEER HONORED — FIFTY YEARS A LATHER

Local Union 102 paid tribute to one of its oldest members, in point of membership and as a lather, in commending Brother Frank W. Wells, treasurer, which position he has held for thirty years.

Born in Middletown, N. Y., in 1873, he started lathing at the age of 13, working for his father, Oliver W. Wells, who later became a member of the L. I. U., in Suffern, N. Y.

Frank married in 1892 and came to Newark, where he joined a union called the Lathers Union No. 1 of Newark. The charter was issued by the State of New Jersey. He moved to Westfield, N. J., holding his membership in Newark until the night Local 102 received its charter, after which he took his travel card and placed it in Local 85, Elizabeth, N. J.

Soon after, and thru Frank's efforts, Local 106, Plainfield, N. J., was chartered. He received his membership No. 2061 thru this local union and became its treasurer. He representend the Plainfield local union at our Pittsburgh Convention in 1902 and at our 1906 Toronto Convention. Later, return-

GREEN BLASTS FAKE VINSON CHARGES

Washington, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor sent to all members of Congress a thorough, factual refutation of that portion of the Vinson Committee's report which charged trade unions had profited from the national defense program.

Mr. Green punctured the accusations made in the report by citing the following facts which he said were available to the committee but deliberately ignored by it:

1—That the $10,679,000 increase in the assets of 117 unions with a membership of 6,085,000 workers over the 18-month period from Oct. 1, 1939, to March 31, 1941, as reported by the Vinson Committee, represents only 9.7 cents per member per month. (The figure is 12.6 cents per member per month for the AFL unions covered.)

2—That the great bulk of union assets are funds held in reserve for union members and paid out to them from time to time under various benefit systems, including unemployment insurance, death, disability, health, retirement and other benefits.

3—That in the 14-year period from 1927 to 1940 inclusive, extending over the years of depression and recovery, AFL unions paid to their members a total of $450,000,000 in unemployment, sickness, disability, old age and death benefits, thus relieving the nation and its communities of a heavy relief burden.

4—That union funds are not used for profit-making or to engage in any business enterprise but belong to the union members and are collected and expended at their direction and in their behalf.

5—That recent increases in union assets can be accounted for as follows:

(a) Increases in union membership (the AFL gained 500,000 members during the period covered by the Vinson Committee.)

(b) Because of widespread re-employment, union members previously jobless were able to renew dues payments and many of them paid up arrears in order to re-establish eligibility for benefits.

(c) Because of the no-strike policy of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated unions there was a sharp decrease in the number of strikes and in the length of their duration, thus considerably cutting down disbursements for strike benefits.

Mr. Green declared that far from seeking to profit from the defense program AFL building trades and metal trades unions have endeavored to help the Government in every way possible and have transported at their own expense hundreds of thousands of mechanics and skilled workers from their home communities to the site of defense projects where their services were urgently needed.

Mr. Green said:

"The committee's conclusion that the American trade unions have sought to benefit from the defense program to the detriment of the public interest is utterly without foundation or substantiation."

TWO FRONTS

(Federationist)

The United States must fight on two fronts.

First, there is the military front. American soldiers, sailors and airmen are fighting and dying in the Pacific. They are living up to the highest traditions of this nation's military history. They must be given the finest battle equipment in the world, and they must be given it in lavish quantity. All the resources of this nation, human and material alike, must be used to that end.

Second, there is the home front. We have said, time and again, that we are fighting to defend and perpetuate freedom. That is true. But the defense of freedom at home, as on the war front, demands more than lip service. It demands straight thinking from all. It demands a people who will look squarely at the facts, no matter how unpleasant they may be. It demands the kind of national toughness that knows precisely what we are fighting for, and that will permit nothing to stand in the way of victory on the home front no less than the military front.

We will, of necessity, however, reluctantly, accept a large measure of economic dictatorship during the war. Whether that dictatorship ends when the war ends, will depend upon the resolution and the understanding of the American people. The future of this country and this kind of government is in the balance. The people will decide which way the scales are tipped.

There is nothing dramatic about these statements. They are simply homely truths. The winning of this war—and the winning of the peace that follows—will depend on how well the American people understand them.

* * * *

We fight for freedom, then. And we must fight for it all the way—fight for it here in America, no less than in the broad reaches of the oceans and the lands beyond.

FRANK WELLS HONORED

ing to Local 102, he became treasurer of this local and is still holding the money for Local 102.

Frank held his fiftieth wedding anniversary on January 24, 1942, and is still in good health, working part of the time on the metal, which he took up some twenty-eight years ago.

Frank was secretary-treasurer of the first State Council in New Jersey, which later took in Local 46 and other New York locals, to become known as the Metropolitan District Council.

Needy members were given baskets, filled with all good things to eat (and drink), by Local Union 6, Queens County, N. Y., at Christmastime. Appearing in this photo, reading from right to left: Frank Ingrassia, Vice President Local 6; William Cohen, President and Business Manager of Local 6; Nathan Wasserman, Secretary-Treasurer, Local 6; Joseph Marino, (in uniform) apprentice of Local 6; Dom. Aronna, Business Agent for the Bricklayers Local 41; Sol Rubinoff and Victor Lynn, members of Local 6.

AMERICAN TEAMSTERS RIDE BURMA ROAD

Washington, D. C.—Seventeen hundred American teamsters are riding the Burma Road, keeping the lifeline of liberty open to the gallant defenders of China and daily defying death from Japanese bombers.

This was revealed by Richard J. Beamish, member of the Pennsylvania Utility Commission, who said these union workers volunteered to give up their comparatively safe jobs at home at the call of the Government to take up the dangerous duty of keeping supplies rolling to China.

The men are working under the leadership of Clarence Bowman, a former Philadelphia truck driver. Beamish said American teamsters were needed for the job because they were tough enough to keep going under punishing conditions.

The Japanese raiding planes are exacting a heavy toll of death on the Burma Road, but the trucks driven by American teamsters are still rolling in steady procession. More teamsters are on the way to the Orient to take the place of their comrades who have fallen and still more are ready to go and do their bit toward smashing the Japs.

CORRECTIONS

William Hill, 28732, became automatically suspended 8/15/41 thru no fault of his own, therefore this suspension and subsequent reinstatement of 12/30/41 thru Local 50 (published in the January issue), have been cancelled.

Publication of a withdrawal card by Local 244 for J. B. Palmeri, 20957, in the December issue, occurred thru a misunderstanding. He stands automatically suspended as of 11/15/41.

LINCOLN THE PHILOSOPHER

Friends, I have thought about this matter a great deal, have weighed the question well from all corners, and am thoroughly convinced the time has come when it should be uttered; and if it must be that I must go down because of this speech, then let me go down linked to truth—die in the advocacy of what is right and just.

This nation can not live on injustice. A house divided against itself can not stand, I say again and again.

Upon the subject of education, not presuming to dictate any plan or system respecting it, I can only say that I view it as the most important subject which we as a people, can be engaged in.

No man is good enough to govern another man, without that other's consent.

In law it is good policy to never plead what you need not, lest you oblige yourself to prove what you cannot.

My early life is perfectly characterized by a single line from Gray's Elegy: "The short and simple annals of the poor."

The Lord must love the common people—that's why he made so many of them.

I am not ashamed to confess that twenty-five years ago I was a hired laborer, mauling rails, at work on a flat boat—just what might happen to any poor man's son.

When you have an elephant on hand and he wants to run away, better let him run.

I don't know anything about money. I never had enough of my own to fret me.

You can't put a long sword in a short scabbard.

When you can't remove an obstacle plow around it.

A PETITION

O Thou from whom to be turned away is to fall, to whom to be turned is to rise, and in whom to abide is to stand fast forever; grant us in all our duties thy help; in all our perplexities they guidance; in all our dangers thy protection; and in all our sorrows thy peace. Amen.

—John Hunter, Federal Council Bulletin.

A comedian stopped a newsboy who was vigorously plying his trade. "I say, sonny, d'you want a new job?" he asked.

"Don't mind, sir; what is it?" replied the boy.

"Well, my manager is looking for a lad like you to play the fool."

"Oh, he is, is he? What's his idea—to fire you or to keep two of us?"

An oral examination was in progress. The professor picked upon a dumb-looking character for his first questions.

"Who signed the Magna Charta?"

No answer.

"Who was Bonny Prince Charlie?"

No answer.

"Where were you on Monday?"

"Drinking a beer with a friend of mine."

"How do you expect to pass this course if you drink beer when you should be in class?"

"I don't sir. I only came in to fix the electric heater."

—o—

Boss: "Are you going anywhere special on Sunday evening?"

Typist (expectantly smiling): "Oh no, sir."

Boss: "Then for goodness sake make an effort to be in at nine o'clock on Monday morning."

Policeman (after the collision)—You saw this lady driving toward you. Why didn't you give her half the road?

Motorist—I was going to as soon as I could discover which half she wanted.

—o—

Stranger: "For such a large city you seem to have solved your traffic problem. Why, I've been able to park my car anywhere."

Cop: "That's easily explained, sir. The city passed a law which permits only cars fully paid for to be left standing on the streets."

"Cheer up, old man! Why don't you drown your sorrow?"

"She's stronger than I am, and besides, it would be murder."

Hubby: "Yeh, that's why I want you to wear your hair differently."

"What had you to say?"

"Thanks."

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN CALORIES AND VITAMINS

"Vitamins" and "calories" both refer to food values, but are you sure what each term means? The Consumers' Counsel Division brings you these definitions from Bureau of Home Economics experts in the Department of Agriculture.

Vitamins are extremely potent chemical compounds essential to health and growth, occurring in minute quantities in natural foods. Scientists working with foods have discovered many different vitamins, each of which is important to the body. Some foods contain noticeable amounts of only one vitamin; others are rich in several. You should eat sufficient amounts of all vitamin-rich foods to get the vitamins you need.

On the other hand, calories are units of measurement of the fuel or energy value of foods. "High calorie" foods are foods that the body uses as fuel to give energy for muscular work. Starches, sweets, and fats are "high calorie" foods.

Unless you're trying to reduce and therefore avoiding the high calorie foods that make fat when you're not active enough to use up all the energy they furnish, you don't have to bother much about calories, nutritionists say. If you get the right amount of milk, eggs, green leafy vegetables and yellow fleshed fruits and vegetables to get the vitamins you need for health, you'll get enough calories for ordinary activities, too.

PRIORITY RULING AFFECTS DENTURES

A priority ruling by the War Production Board limits the amount of mercury available for coloring dental plates to about one-eighth the amount available last year. Dentists say this means that in most cases they will not be able to repair broken dental plates nor make new ones from dental rubber for the duration.

LOUIS M. BERRY 18425

Local 46 is anxious to contact Bro. Berry immediately, as he must soon appear in court to prove damages and personal injury sustained in a recent auto accident. When last seen he was driving a 1937 Packard, with New Jersey license plates HF-77-V. Both doors on the driver's side of his car are dented, as a result of the accident, in which he suffered head injuries. His home address is 52—66th St., West New York, N. J. He left town to look for work and no one has heard of him since.

THE FIGHTING RACE

The bravery and valor of Colin P. Kelly, Jr. off Luzon, December 9, parallels that of "Kelly and Burke and Shea" unforgetably chronicled under this title by Joseph I. C. Clarke. We are indebted to Bro. Joseph Gaffney of Local 46 for very appropriately submitting this poem for publication in this issue.

"Read out the names!" and Burke sat back,
And Kelly dropped his head.
While Shea—they call him Scholar Jack—
Went down the list of the dead.
Officers, seamen, gunners, marines,
The crews of the gig and yawl,
The bearded man and the lad in his teens,
Carpenters, coal-passers—all.
Then knocking the ashes from out his pipe,
Said Burke in an off-hand way:
"We're all in that dead man's list, by Cripe!
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's to the Maine, and I'm sorry for Spain,"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

"Wherever there's Kellys there's trouble," said Burke.
"Wherever fighting's the game,
Or a spice of danger in grown man's work,"
Said Kelly, "you'll find my name."
"And do we fall short," said Burke, getting mad,
"When it's touch-and-go for life?"
Said Shea, "It's thirty-odd years, bedad,
Since I charged to drum and fife
Up Marye's Heights, and my old canteen
Stopped a rebel ball on its way;
There were blossoms of blood on our sprigs ofgreen—
Kelly and Burke and Shea—
And the dead didn't brag." "Well, here's to the flag!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.
"I wish 'twas in Ireland, for there's the place,"
Said Burke, "that we'd die by right,
In the cradle of our soldier race,
After one good stand-up fight.
My grandfather fell on Vinegar Hill,
And fighting was not his trade;
But his rusty pike's in the cabin still,
With Hessian blood on the blade."
"Aye, aye," said Kelly, "the pikes were great
When the word was 'clear the way!'
We were thick on the roll in ninety-eight—
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's to the pike and the sword and the like!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

And Shea, the scholar, with rising joy,
Said, "We were at Ramillies;
We left our bones at Fontenoy
And up in the Pyrenees;
Before Dunkirk, on Landen's plain,
Cremona, Lille and Ghent;
We're all over Austria, France and Spain,
Wherever they pitched a tent.
We've died for England from Waterloo
To Egypt and Dargai;
And still there's enough for a corps or crew,
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's to the good honest fighting-blood!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

"Oh, the fighting races don't die out,
If they seldom die in bed,
For love is first in their hearts, no doubt,"
Said Burke; then Kelly said:
"When Michael, the Irish Archangel, stands,
The Angel with the sword,
And the battle-dead from a hundred lands
Are ranged in one big horde,
Our line, that of Gabriel's trumpet waits,
Will stretch three deep that day,
From Jehoshaphat to the Golden Gates—
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's thank God for the race and the sod!"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea.

All Federal Housing Agencies Merged Into Newly Created NHA

The National Housing Agency has been created by executive order of President Roosevelt, in order to "speed up the production of war housing immediately." All house-building and house-financing agencies of the Federal Government will function under this newly created agency.

The NHA will handle the construction of war housing (formerly scattered among several agencies), slum clearance (formerly under the USHA), mortgage-insurance (formerly under FHA), and will supervise the lending activities of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, formerly RFC subsidiaries.

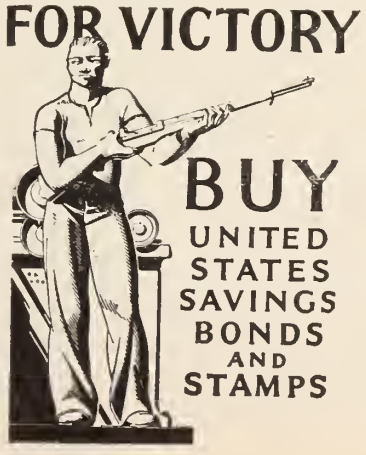

In all, sixteen federal housing agencies were merged into the National Housing Agency to handle the country's defense housing program. NHA head is John B. Blandford, Jr., former assistant budget director. Mr. Blandford was educated as a mechanical engineer. He served the TVA as coordinator and later general manager, from 1933 to 1939. Earlier, he held municipal administrative jobs in Cincinnati, Newark and Petersburg, Va.

Three divisions will comprise the newly formed National Housing Agency: The Federal Works Agency remains unchanged and forms one division. The Federal Home Loan Bank Administration forms a second division and takes in the lending groups. The entire job of building housing, war or slum clearance, with public funds, is under the third division, the Federal Public Housing Authority.

Leon Keyserling is acting administrator of the Federal Public Housing Authority (which is built around the former USHA). All war housing, except that actually located on army or navy reservations, will be handled by the FPHA.

Former real estate operator Charles A. Palmer, who headed the former Division of Defense Housing Co-ordination, and who has been sharply criticized by labor for holding up housing construction, has been relieved of his administrative office and has been sent to England to study housing experience there for NHA.

In the past, real estate operators have been very reluctant to promote any but their own private interests and thus maintained a housing shortage to enable them to raise rents. Housing for defense workers is sadly lacking in many defense production areas and it is understood that the War Production Board will shortly approve the construction of some 200,000 privately-financed and 150,000 publicly financed defense housing units. Real estate operators have been warned that unless they get behind defense housing, the Government will be forced to take over the entire program.

Many Lather Apprentices Are Being Trained In U. S. Under Federal Committee Standards

By John R. (Jack) Churchill

Apprenticeship Field Representative U. S. Department of Labor

THE lathing trade has been far from neglected in the U. S. Department of Labor's country-wide campaign to establish apprentice training programs under Federal Committee on Apprenticeship standards, records show. The progress hasn't been startling, it is true, but signal successes have been scored.

The Apprenticeship Section's files reveal that there are ten programs devoted to the training of lather apprentices and three programs for plasterer and lather apprentices. In areas where only a few journeymen lathers and plasterers are found, joint apprentice training programs are set up for convenient administration. Each apprentice, of course, is taught his particular trade.

Six of the ten lather programs are in California. In addition, Long Beach has a joint lather and plasterer program. The California venture is an excellent illustration of how apprenticeship under Federal Committee standards catches on and spreads. The programs are all cut to fit an approved local pattern.

In the course of drawing up the type of local apprenticeship program which would meet with the approval of those involved, union men and contractors from a wide area became interested. As a result, apprentice lathers in Alameda, Contra Costa, Sacramento, Yolo, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties and in Bakersfield, Los Angeles and San Francisco, are being trained under conditions which will guarantee them to be top-notch lather journeymen when they have completed their apprenticeship.

Federal Committee approved apprentice training programs for lathers are also in operation in Paterson, N. J.; Toledo, Ohio; Seattle, Washington; and Albuquerque, New Mexico. And, besides Long Beach, California, lathers are being trained with plasterers under dual arrangements at Detroit, Michigan, and Houston, Texas.

Systems for training apprentices under Federal Committee standards have several fundamental features, most important of which is joint labor and management participation. Programs are not only planned by local committees made up of an equal number of labor and contractor representatives but are also administered by such committees. The chief function of the apprenticeship field staff is to render advisory and technical assistance to unions and contractors jointly formulating training programs.

Other fundamental principles are inserted in the written program of a detailed description of the processes to be learned by each apprentice; wages to be paid him at stated intervals during the period of apprenticeship; and provision for giving the apprentice necessary related text-book and black-board instruction.

The apprentice lather learning his trade under one of these programs will know every angle of his business—furring, spot welding, outside wiring, wood lathing, corner beads, sheetrock and sheetex work, door trim, channel iron construction, cornice work, lay-out, and all the tricks of the trade a lather should know. A lather graduating from such an apprenticeship will be an A-1 craftsman, the equal of the best anywhere in the country.

The urgent demands of war industries for all types of inplant training assistance require that every apprenticeship field man give first call to these problems, for fear that failure to help a war plant to train the workers it needs properly, may stymie an important war production.

However, apprenticeship field men are always pleased to assist in developing apprenticeship programs in other fields. Unions and contractors are invited to call upon the nearest apprenticeship field office at any time. At present there are 60 field offices scattered throughout the 48 states.

My own office in the City Hall, at Albuquerque, New Mexico, has been set up within the past few months. As a member of Albuquerque Local Union 238 for a good many years. I am interested in seeing all lather apprentices in the country trained under Federal Committee Standards. All union members agree that every future journeyman should know the lathing trade backward and forward; that every new journeyman should be a master mechanic with out a peer in craftsmanship. Training under apprenticeships set up with help of the Apprenticeship Staff of the U. S. Department of Labor will guarantee such master lather workers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: John R. (Jack) Churchill, a brother lather and for many years a member of Local 238, recently joined the U. S. Department of Labor's growing apprenticeship field staff. As secretary of the New Mexico State Apprenticeship Council, he helped in March, 1940 to draft Lathers Apprenticeship Standards for the City of Albuquerque. Brother Churchill is working out of Albuquerque under the direction of Edward E. Goshen, Supervisor of Apprenticeship Region Five. Mr. Goshen's offices are in Denver, Colorado.

PACIFIC COAST ANTI-LABOR GROUP BANNED

Four notorious anti-labor organizations on the Pacific Coast, which have for years warred on unions with the aid of huge "slush funds" contributed by Tory employers were found guilty of lawbreaking by the National Labor Relations Board.

They are: Southern Californians, Inc., the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, the Neutral Thousands and the Employes' Advisory Service, all of which operated chiefly in and around Los Angeles, as part of a bosses' plot to keep the region "open shop" by "hook or crook."

All four put forward the claim that they were "civic" groups and, therefore, not covered by the Wagner Act. The board riddled this argument, declaring they were mere "blinds" for anti-union employers and subject to the law just like other bosses. It ordered them to end their illegal activities.

The board found that Southern Californians was the top agency of the labor haters. It carried on most of the propaganda against unions and likewise financed the other three organizations to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' role, the board said, was that of a strikebreaking agency and operator of a "scab" employment service. The Neutral Thousands, also known as "T. N. T.," sponsored formation of "company unions," disguised as "independents." Actual work of organizing the "dummies" was done by a subsidiary, the Employes' Advisory Service.

Anti-labor conspiracies of these organizations and the vast "war chests" that financed them were brought to light in an investigation of unfair labor practice charges filed against four Los Angeles tent and awning manufacturers by A. F. of L. and C. I. O. unions. These manufacturers made use of the "services" offered by the anti-labor groups to keep out bona fide unions. They were likewise ordered by the board to stop their law violations.

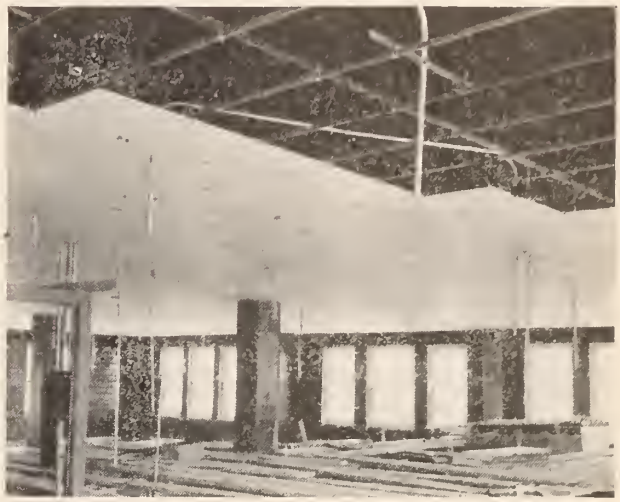

"T. N. T." and "M. & M." collaborated closely in the under-cover drive, the board's report revealed. "M. & M." formed trade associations of employers, who were united to maintain the so-called "open shop."

"Direct strikebreaking service was also made available to M. & M. members," the board asserted. "In addition, M. & M. maintained a free employment service for placement of non-union (scab) employes, particularly at strikebound plants."

The "open shop" policy advocated by the four organizations was called by the board a camouflage "designed to cover a deliberate anti-union policy."

Under the board's order, all the "dummy" unions established by the four organizations are knocked out.

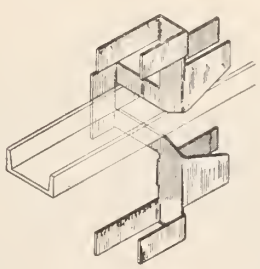

Here's How You Can Save 425 Pounds of Steel in a 100-Yd. Fireproof Ceiling!

Suspended Ceiling of Anchor Lath and Anchor Clips Represents Big Saving in Metal and Time!

STEEL is hard to get! Uncle Sam needs it for certain work that can't be done by any other material. So it's up to every one of us to make other materials do wherever possible—to save all the steel we can—and YOU can save 425 pounds of steel in a 100-yard fireproof ceiling by using Anchor Gypsum Lath and Anchor Clips!

Such a fireproof ceiling—made of metal lath—requires 802.5 pounds of steel all told. But you can build a suspended ceiling of Anchor Gypsum Lath—the same number of square yards—using only 377.5 pounds of steel, when you employ the Anchor Clip method. Hangers and tie-wire are not included in these figures, since they are the same for both types of construction.

Only one kind of clip is used—the Anchor "C" Clip. And the total time required for the suspended Anchor ceiling is considerably less than for conventional metal lath construction. Write for complete facts!

ST. LOUIS LATHERS RED CROSS BLOOD DONORS

HARRY J. HAGEN IS DOWN BUT NOT OUT

Above is a typical daily scene enacted at the Red Cross Blood Bank headquarters, Tenth and Olive St. It shows some of the members of the Lathers' District Council receiving the customary lunch supplied to blood donors after the transfusion. This blood is furnished to the men in our fighting forces, and is transfused to them right on the battlefield when necessary. Some of the unionists who gave a transfusion are shown above. Left to right: Ray McDonald smilingly saying to the nurse: "Thank you, I think I'll take another of those delicious sandwiches." Peering over the nurse's head is Bryan Fredrickson who is looking our camera right in the eye. Standing next to Fredrickson is John Filkey. Seated in front of him are Ray Knapp and Thomas Fredrickson munching on sandwiches and undecided whether it would be polite to take a second helping from the hospitable nurse with the tray. Standing behind them in shirt sleeves is Council President George Stroup being fed by Business Agent Harry J. Hagen whose grin indicates that "poor George can't take it." Standing next to Hagen is Walter Moore. The little Jack Horner in the right hand corner is smiling James Ahearn, who had just finished a big glass of milk. Seated, blowing on his coffee, but not too loudly, is Donald Saville; while the young fellow next to him staring at the little birdie is Francis Ahearn. The shy gentleman studiously inspecting his "Java grounds" for Japs is Harry Miller, Jr.; while one of the Lathers' veterans, Harry Baldwin, is getting ready to take that second cup of coffee from the nurse. Seated in the foreground is Vernon Price wondering what the boys say when they see this photographic proof that he actually drinks milk. Others present were out of the camera's focus.

This photo was snapped at Red Cross Hdqt. February 28. Harry J. Hagen, business agent of the Lathers District Council, was the first one of the Lathers' Union members who was put on the operating table, and gave a pint of blood. The process is being watched by Lathers' president, George Stroup, while Maury E. Rubin, editor Labor Tribune, to the left of the pleasant and efficient Red Cross nurse, is pointing to the instrument resembling a tourniquet attached to Brother Hagen's arm and telling the nurse that in 1928, after Hagen had given a quart of blood to a fellow union member for transfusion, the brother promptly passed away; which is responsible for the smiles all around.

Local 73 Members Donate To Red Cross Blood Bank

"I'm too old to fight, but I can help my country in other ways," said George Stroup, president of the Lathers' District Council, who was a Marine in the last war, as he donated a pint of his blood to the Red Cross Blood Bank, February 28th. This was the concensus of the other 30 Lathers' officers and members present, most of whom had actively served in the last war, like Harry Baldwin, Ray McDonald, Frank Ahearn, Don Saville and others.

"Donating blood for transfusions, it seems is not new to members of the Lathers unions here," said Ray McDonald; "They have been doing it for some years, and have a regular list of donors who come to the rescue of brother members and their families when such aid is requested," Frank Ahearn added.

Incidentally the Lathers present had a lot of fun ribbing Bus. Agent Harry Hagen who was the first to go through the routine. One lather reminded Hagen that several years ago a lather to whom he (Hagen) had donated a quart of blood died shortly after the transfusion. Another suggested that the doctor take a pint from Hagen's other arm so as to balance and not to "weaken" him. Hagen agreed, and said that each leg also should be tapped. One lather asked Hagen what they should do with his corpse, just in case. Hagen replied to give it to a packing house for hamburger, as it ought to be just as edible as the horsemeat some butchers have been selling as hamburger. He said he ought to be popular with Bill Medart's unfair restaurant customers. One lather present said that Hagen and most of those present had shed much more blood in union battles than the pint they were donating for a most constructive purpose. The Lathers were treated to sandwiches and refreshments in the Red Cross lunch room. Hagen observed that hungry lathers hereafter would know where to go to get a good meal, and properly pay for it out of their hide. President Stroup said he hoped other unions would emulate the example of the Lathers.

Chicago AFL Workers Lead In Civilian Defense

Chicago, Ill.—"Remember Pearl Harbor! Expect the unexpected and be prepared for any emergency!"

With those words, 20,000 AFL workers began the task of organizing the defense system that will protect the lives and property of Chicagoans in America's war crisis.

These key figures in Chicago's defense were the men and women sworn in by Mayor Edward J. Kelly, civilian defense co-ordinator, in thrilling ceremonies in the Chicago Stadium.

They were the janitors, the janitresses, the elevator operators, the school engineers, the apartment building workers, members of the Building Service Employes' International Union, called together by their president, William L. McFetridge, for a huge civilian defense rally.

Before they were certified as assistant organizers for civilian defense by Mayor Kelly, the building workers heard a dramatic speech by the city's chief executive in which he declared:

"America is at war. We're all soldiers now!

"There are no more Italians, no more Germans, no more Lithuanians, no more Rumanians, no more anything except Americans. We are all united for one cause and that unity will be the foundation of a greater democracy after this war is over."

Following the mayor's speech the audience arose and repeated after him the pledge of allegiance for civilian defense workers. Afterward they were given certificates designating their roles in the civilian defense program.

McFetridge, in a brief address, told his union:

"It is highly essential that we, who have in our hands the lives, protection and comfort of the people in Chicago's homes and buildings, do everything we can guard the nation in every respect.

"We must be alert for possible sabotage, we must supply the needs of our workers, soldiers and sailors, and we must protect their wives and children, and we must do all we can to aid the government in conserving metals, papers and all other materials needed for national defense."

Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor, declared:

"In this great emergency, unless prevented by the withdrawal of their rights and liberties, the workers of America, east, west, north and south, will prove beyond all doubt that in strength and courage and loyalty in the places of production behind the lines, they are as steadfast as those who risk their lives in the front ranks."

Daniel D. Carmell, counsel for the Chicago and state federations of labor, said the meeting was the first of its kind to be held anywhere in the nation.

BLOOD, SWEAT, AND PRIVATION

By Lloyd M. Cosgrove

Workers Education Bureau of America

THE soldier gives his blood; the civilian gives his sweat; both of them, together with their families, undergo privation. That is the price—the exceedingly high price—of victory.

In some respects, the third portion of this price is the most aggravating, for it falls not only upon soldiers and adult civilians but upon their families as well. The despotisms, under the lash of their masters, are paying all three portions without stint. The democracies must out-bid them or accept defeat. Defeat would not lessen the payment, of course, especially with regard to privation. Ask Poland. Ask France. Ask Hitler (Mein Kampf, p. 334): "Power alone is always the master of weakness and forces it into its service or else breaks it."

The nature of the present struggle is not unlike one that was carried on twenty-four hundred years ago. Pray God, its outcome may be different. In Greece there was flourishing a glorious civilization which centered in Athens, the most democratic and enlightened city in all the world at that time. In another part of Greece was Sparta, a city that worshipped brute force and envied the reputation and influence of Athens, even though it could by no means emulate its achievements in anything but war. Its jealousy made it attack Athens, and from 431 B. C. to 404 B. C. the two were locked in the deadly Peloponnesian War. In the latter year, the military despotism overcame the democracy and, thenceforth, Greece was a battleground between rival despots.

The great democracies of today offer peace and order and beauty to the world. This, however, will not of itself give them the power to exist. To paraphrase the words of the Great Emancipator: "We are now engaged in a great world war, testing whether these nations, or any nations so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure." The times are those of blood, sweat, and privation.

It is sweat and privation that are called for on the part of the civilian. So far as the American civilian is concerned, the following five propositions seem valid:

(1) He will not starve. It is the British civilian that is threatened with starvation unless the sea-lanes can be kept open. It is the civilian in the unfortunate lands that have fallen under the black pall of Germany that is experiencing starvation. The American civilian will doubtless have to forego many of the luxuries to which he has been accustomed, but his health will be none the worse for this and in any case he will not starve. Canada and the United States constitute the most important food-producing area in the world. The Ukraine, for which Hitler threw away the lives of hundreds of thousands of his vassals, is but a small patch compared with it. In addition to fighting for democracy and being the arsenal of democracy, it is also our happy function to be the bread-basket of democracy. We shall fulfill that function if we and our allies can keep the sea-lanes open or even partially open, and we shall by no means starve ourselves. Starvation can come about in America only if one of our great cities, such as San Francisco or New York, is cut off by an invading force of the enemy. This is unlikely. A year ago we would have said it was "impossible," but that word is being used with ever increasing caution.

(2) The American civilian will, of course, miss some of the things that have hitherto been imported. In the case of rubber, this will, for the present, be a genuine hardship. We are an inventive and adaptive people, however, and will without great difficulty learn to go without or will discover substitutes that are as good or even better. Our pioneer ancestors could not get sugar, so they tapped the maple trees and obtained a product which today is valued far more highly than ordinary sugar. Our young ladies will no longer be able to obtain silk hosiery but they will look quite as fair in hosiery made of cotton.

(3) The American civilian will hear frequently of government expenditures surpassing those that have ever before been made by this or any other nation. Already, we have appropriated more for war purposes than we appropriated during our entire participation in the first World War. Britain and America together have spent more in this war than was spent by all the nations taking part in the first World War. As the debt mounts, the question naturally arises: How, if ever, will it be paid? This is a post-war problem. Our present job is to win the war.

(4) The American civilian will pay taxes, both direct and indirect, on a scale of which he never before dreamed. While doing so, three consoling thoughts may well come to him: (a) He is helping to provide the boys at the front with what they need. (b) He is paying taxes that, because they cut down the purchasing power of himself and his fellow civilians, are staving off inflation. Inflation would reduce his purchasing power more ruthlessly than the taxes do. (c) After the taxes are deducted, the remaining purchasing power of the average American will exceed that of the average person in any other land.

(5) The American civilian, although consuming less of non-essentials than he did before the war began, will work far harder and produce far more goods. Not more than half of the aggregate production can be for civilian use, so the total for civilian use will be considerably less than it was before the war. More production, less consumption—these are necessary of the American civilian in the times in

FACING THE FACTS

With Philip Pearl

If anyone tries to tell you that labor is not making any real sacrifices in this war and is, in fact, getting rich and fat out of the war production program, we wouldn't blame you for getting sore.

That's what the newspapers have been trying to tell all of us in this country day in and day out and we don't mind saying that we are hot under the collar about it.

The outrageous lengths to which the newspapers are resorting in their efforts to smear labor, while going all-out in their tearful defense of big business, violates all principles of American fair play.

There are any number of factual answers available to such lying propaganda. One of the best we have seen, covering any specific situation, appears in a front-page editorial of the Seafarers Log, official organs of the Atlantic and Gulf District of the Seafarers' International Union of North America. Here it is, in full:

An Open Letter

"To All Shipowners,

"Gentlemen:

"You have lost several ships during this past month. They have been sent plunging to the bottom of the Atlantic with great holes torn in their sides by enemy torpedoes.

"When you balance your books at the end of the year, you'll find that your profit sheet won't be as long as it might have been—if these ships had not gone down.

"But we can't squeeze out any tears for you. Not when we count our dead. Fifty-seven of our Brothers went down with those ships. Fifty-seven families have been robbed of their fathers or husbands or sons. The way we figure things, our loss is greater than yours.

"NOT ONE of our Brothers had so much as an air-rifle with which to protect himself against the enemy raiders. NOT ONE of our Brothers was protected by the new-style life belts (such as the British merchant seamen have). NOT ONE SIU man was able to climb out of the icy waters onto a life raft, because the ships were not equipped with these rafts.

"And why in hell weren't they?

"Congress passed a bill to arm merchant ships long before this country got into the war. The Maritime Commission announced last November that the ships would be armed with anti-sub guns and anti-aircraft guns just as rapidly as they hit port.

"This has not been done!

The Rafts Weren't There

"The City of Atlanta went to the bottom in five minutes. The Venore went down in seven minutes. Even granting that the life boats were in good condition, it is next to impossible to get the crew off in that length of time. Moreover, if the ship is listing to port, the starboard boats are useless. And if the ship is listing to starboard, the port boats are useless. On the Atlanta the crew was able to launch only one boat and that one was crushed and sucked under by the sinking ship. A couple of life rafts aboard these ships would have saved many lives.

"But the rafts weren't there!

"This war is a month old now. For 30 days the seamen have been sailing the ships without the protection to which they are entitled—protection which has been promised repeatedly by both the Government and you.

"A gun and a life raft is little enough to ask for—don't you think? Then what's the stall?

"Are priorities holding things up? Or could it be that you hate to shell out for the cost?

"Whatever the reason, we say to you with all earnestness, things must change! The men who sail the ships must have the very minimum protection of anti-sub guns and life rafts.

"Very truly yours,

"THE MEN WHO SAIL YOUR SHIPS."

Surely, if the newspapers wished to be of some constructive use to the nation in time of war, they could enlist their services in the cause of "the men who sail the ships" and other victims of carelessness and negligence on the part of profit-hungry employers!

BLOOD, SWEAT, AND PRIVATION

which we live. There will be much sweat and something of privation in this, but the civilian will not regard his sacrifice as great when he compares it with that made by the men who face the machine guns.

War has always called for blood and privation. This one calls for these in great quantity. This war also calls for sweat in a proportionate degree that was never before equalled. Blood, sweat, privation! These constitute the price of victory.

LABOR ASSAILERS COOK OWN GOOSE

The House of Representatives performed a healthy operation for labor and the nation by amputating the gangrenous Smith Amendment from the War Powers Bill.

From now on the labor haters on Capitol Hill will be on the spot. Every measure they introduce will be immediately suspected. Their poisonous propaganda has been exposed and they will have a tougher time trying to put over any more fast ones.

But will that stop the legislative assaults upon labor? We doubt it. Too many powerful interests see in the nation's war emergency a golden opportunity to crush organized labor and deprive it of its hard-won rights. They will not give up the fight too easily.

So we find it necessary to make these warning predictions to those who are looking forward to "Der Tag" when American labor is humbled:

On the very same day that the wages of American workers are frozen by law, the profits of industry and capital will be abolished by law.

On the very same day that workers are deprived by law of the right to strike, the right to own and manage private property will be denied; free speech will be ended in America and the free press will be a thing of the past.

Surely no American wants that to happen! Surely America does not have to kill democracy in order to win a war for democracy!

It does not need to happen if we can achieve true national unity, if each group will respect the rights of others, if those who try to take advantage of the war to seek selfish gains at the expense of labor will only realize they are cooking their own goose by such methods.

Let's put a stop to sniping! Let us remember that Americans cannot win this war by fighting each other! Let us concentrate our energies on fighting the real and common enemies of all Americans! That is the only way to win this war!

IN APPRECIATION

Local 309 also gratefully acknowledges Local 14's contribution of $2.00 on behalf of Brother Erland A. Clauson, No. 3627, which brings total to $98.25 turned over to the brother. Earlier reports on contributions to this brother's appeal were published in the December and January issues.

TAX LOOPHOLES BENEFIT RICH ONLY

Tax injustices have permitted some to escape their fair share of tax payments and bore down too harshly on other taxpayers in the past, Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the Treasury Department, informed the Cleveland City Club in his address before their forum.

"In wartime, when we are drafting young men to fight and risk their lives for their country, any special privilege for a few becomes inexcusable," he remarked and cited four loopholes by which a few thousand rich men are able to cheat the government out of nearly $1,000,000,000 in taxes yearly:

Tax-exempt Securities—Wealthy taxpayers have invested their money in State and municipal securities which are tax-exempt, and which cost the Treasury at present tax rates, about $200,000,000 a year.

Community Property Laws—Nine out of forty-eight states have laws which allow a wife, when her husband has a salary of $10,000, to make a separate return on $5,000 of this salary and the husband on the other $5,000. This has cost the Treasury on the basis of existing rates, approximately $55,000,000 a year.

Separate Returns for Husband and Wife—Under the present law, if a husband and wife both have investment income, each pays a tax on the separate income. Because the income tax rates are progressive—that is, because the higher the income, the greater the rate of tax—a family in which both husband and wife have investment income pays less tax, in many instances, than a family having the same amount of income all of which is received either by the husband or the wife. The use of separate tax returns for the investment income of husband and wife costs the Treasury, on the basis of present rates, about $260,000,000 a year.

Percentage Depletion—If you use a machine in your business and that machine can be expected to last for ten years, you are permitted to deduct one-tenth of the cost of this machine each year for ten years. Owners of mine and oil wells, however, under the so-called percentage depletion provision of the income tax laws, are allowed to deduct not only a percentage of the cost of their wells and mines each year until the entire cost has been made good, but also to deduct an arbitrary percentage of their income indefinitely. Thus an oil company, which may long ago have recovered tax free many times the cost of the wells which it is operating, is still permitted a deduction of 27½ per cent of the gross income from those very same wells. This allowance of percentage depletion costs the Treasury on the basis of existing rates at least $80,000,000 a year.

Needless to say, these are only suggested reforms and really only scratch the surface of needed tax reforms, and will never be enacted into law without long and frequent prodding from labor.

ONCE MORE, A FEDERAL SALES TAX

(The Union, Bradford, Pa.)

The Treasury asks Congress to enact a federal sales tax. At first, the Treasury wished a tax on wages to be collected by the employer. The workers protested, and even many of the employers didn't like it. Collecting the tax would be too much trouble, they said. The opposition was so strong the Treasury experts looked around for a substitute. They hit on the sales tax. They say they want to halt inflation. That's the scarecrow they always drag out when they seek to add to the burdens of American workers. According to these experts, the greatest danger to the Republic is an increase in the buying power of the masses of our people.

They don't appear to worry about the waste and extravangance of the rich and the super-rich who at this minute, in every section of the country, are squandering money like drunken sailors.

Of course this talk about inflation is 90 per cent camouflage. Profiteers are responsible for inflation. Up to date the government hasn't "cracked down" on profiteers.

The sales tax is the child of the U. S. Department of Commerce and the interests it represents. It is a scheme to pick the pockets of the poor while safeguarding the swollen incomes of the "favored few."

In matters of taxation, the only safe yardstick is "ability to pay." The sales tax ignores that principle and goes to the other extreme. It hits those least able to pay.

WELL, WHY NOT?

(The Bridgemans Magazine)

During Senate debate on the bill giving property owners free insurance up to $15,000 for damage done by war, Senator La Follette said that Congress might as well face the "next logical step"—free insurance for the man doing the fighting.

"I merely wish to point out," he remarked, "that if we are to accept the principle that damages sustained to property through war, up to $15,000 are to be shared equally by payments in restitution from the United States Treasury without any contributory premiums, we ought to be prepared to take the next logical step—and I do not see how we can escape it—and that is to provide insurance to the men in the armed services, many of whom are under fire, without expecting a premium from them."

Why should men who are risking their lives for the nation have to pay insurance premiums as they do now for Government war risk insurance?

MY COUNTRY 'TIS OF THEE

(A Modern Version and Revision)

By John J. Buckley

Dear Land, our full pledged fealty,
America, we give to thee,
Thy cause and aim—
That through God's Grace and Might
Ever by day and night
For Justice, truths, liberty, our boys shall fight—
Thy Eternal Promises and Your Name.

The spawn of evil and those who deny,
Scorn, mock, jeer Thee and would crucify
Thy Flock and Faith—
As Gideon's hosts of old—
Thy Cross and Banner uphold.
Grant courage us, Lord; be alert and bold
These to subjugate.

Lord, hear your children in our prayer!
Before Thy Eternal Throne we need not despair—
Our faith comes from Thee.
Strengthen us and bless our endower
For America again the peaceful hour
To smite evil forces, their power,
Hold fast our liberty.

We boast not, neither do we seek
Lands, power or empire, but bespeak
Protection for our land that the oppressed and weak
Shall, as always, find a refuge and haven.
Guard, keep our homes, and our dear land;
Direct us with Thy Almighty Hand;
Bless us and Thou command;
In our hearts Thy Name engrave.

—o—

MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN

Many and sharp the numerous ills
  Inwoven with our frame;
More pointed still, we make ourselves
  Regret, remorse and shame;
And man, whose heaven-erected face
  The smiles of love adorn,
Man's inhumanity to man,
  Makes countless thousands mourn.

—Robert Burns.

CROSSES

By Sister Miriam

Scorned, spurred, and mocked I've been,
  Derided and defied,
And I have been betrayed by one
  For whom I would have died.

One cross I thought so bitter
  No greater could befall,
Until I learned they suffer most
  Who have no cross at all.

—o—

It were better to be of no church, than to be bitter for any.—William Penn.

—o—

The hoary head is a crown of glory if it be found in the way of righteousness.—Bible.

WONDER WHAT A FRENCHMAN THINKS ABOUT?

TWO YEARS AGO a Frenchman was as free as you are. Today what does he think——as he humbly steps into the gutter to let his conquerors swagger past,

—as he works 53 hours a week for 30 hours' pay,

—as he sees all trade unions outlawed and all the "rights" for which he sacrificed his country trampled by his foreign masters,

—as he sees his wife go hungry and his children face a lifetime of serfdom.

What does that Frenchman—soldier, workman, politician or businessman—think today? Probably it's something like this—"I wish I had been less greedy for myself and more anxious for my country; I wish I had realized you can't beat off a determined invader by a quarreling, disunited people at home; I wish I had been willing to give in on some of my rights to other Frenchmen instead of giving up all of them to a foreigner: I wish I had realized other Frenchmen had rights, too; I wish I had known that patriotism is work, not talk, giving, not getting."

And if that Frenchman could read our newspapers today, showing pressure groups each demanding things be done for them instead of for our country, wouldn't he say to American business men, politicians, soldiers and workmen: "If you knew the horrible penalty your action is bound to bring, you'd bury your differences now before they bury you; you'll work for your country as you never worked before, and wait for your private ambitions until your country is safe. Look at me . . . I worked too little and too late."—Warner & Swasey Advertisement.

"As long as this war lasts, there cannot and there will not be any fundamental differences among Americans. Every single one of us is fighting for the same cause. Each and every one of us is fighting against the same enemy. Until that enemy is crushed, Americans will stand shoulder to shoulder united in a patriotic spirit that transcends all other considerations.

SEND WASTEPAPER AND METAL SCRAPS TO WAR

The discarded metal gadgets in your attic, that old pair of rubbers, your cast-off clothes and worn-out towels, newspapers, and boxes, and wrapping paper, all must go to war this spring to furnish the sinews for our war machines. Make your contribution to your local Salvage-for-Victory campaign, urges Consumers' Guide, publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture, by looking around your house and grounds, gathering up the metals, rubber, paper, and rags you no longer use. Then this is what you should do with them:

Flatten out all cartons and boxes and keep them dry and clean. Pile newspapers separately.

Keep rags, metals, rubber, separately in cartons or bags if possible.

When you have a 5-foot pile of newspapers, call for a pick-up truck. Have small scrap of other kinds collected at the same time.

If you want to sell your scrap, look in the classified directory under "Junk" or the names of dealers.

If you want to donate your scrap, call a charity that helps make its living by collecting and selling scrap.

If you have some question about useful scrap that you want answered, call your local Salvage Committee. The telephone number should be listed in your local paper. These committees are organized by the Office of Civilian Defense. Your Salvage Committee can find out from charity organizations whether junk dealers are offering you fair prices.

Rural Salvage Campaigns can get help from the U. S. Department of Agriculture Defense Board member who sits on your State Salvage Committee.

HOW TO REMOVE SHINE FROM YOUR TROUSERS

Wool trousers and skirts that shine may still have plenty of good wear left in them that you can't afford to waste these days. Textile experts in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, says the Consumers' Counsel Division, say there's nothing you can do to take the shine out permanently but here is what you can do to reduce it temporarily.

Sponge the material right side up on an ironing board with a solution of vinegar and water—2 tablespoons of vinegar to a quart of water. You can substitute 1 tablespoon of ammonia to a quart of water for the vinegar solution, if you prefer.

Cover the shiny part with a dry wool cloth. Then put over it a heavy pressing cloth soaked in the vinegar and water solution and wrung out as dry as possible. Iron with a fairly hot iron, letting plenty of steam saturate the material. The idea is to bring up the nap of the wool a little so it won't shine.

PROTECTED PROVIDING—

(New Orleans Daily Journal of Commerce)

If your automobile bumps a cow on a Florida highway, you are protected from liability—that is, if you are killed.

A statute enacted at a recent session of the Sunshine State legislature provides that when a motor vehicle collides with any animal at large on a public highway and the motor vehicle operator dies as a result of the collision, the owner of such animal shall have no cause of action on account of any injuries to or the death of such animal against the estate of the deceased operator. Otherwise, the law provides that owners of Florida livestock have cause for legal action when an automobile wins a bout with livestock on the road.

This should serve as warning to motorists who may have occasion to travel in that direction so that they will be doubly cautious and not go pushing livestock around though the animals may be indifferent about moving aside and giving the vehicle chance to pass.

. . . . WILL WIN THE WAR

(Building Trades Union Press)

It appears that the advertising agencies and not our generals are running this war.

Look at the ads in any newspaper and you will find that gum drops, mink coats, pantie girdles, and perfumes will win the war.

For instance, the bedding industry, in a full-page ad in the New York Times informs us that it is "producing sleeping equipment for the increasing needs of national defense. . . . America has acquired the habit of sleeping better than any other people. It is a habit not to be discouraged. . ."

So snoring will crush the Axis? And we thought guns and tanks would.

YOU CAN BE OF USE TO UNCLE SAM

"If your income is medium sized, and your taxes hurt, remember there are a lot of people who have had too little for a long while, and it may be your turn to go without a few things you would like.

"If you are an employer, absorb all the increased costs you can. . . . Have confidence in the readiness of the government to do its best to make right any real injustices resulting from its regulations. But don't ask for favors unless you really need them."

Soaps are made basically of fats and alkalis, to which are added borax and fillers such as pumice for scouring. Today there is a domestic shortage of the basic ingredients. Many must come from the East Indies, from South America, and from Europe and shipping facilities are limited. Thus, conservation of soap becomes imperative.

WIT AND

Pat, a truck driver, stopped suddenly on the highway. The car behind crashed into the truck and its owner sued the Irishman.

"Why didn't you hold out your hand?" the judge asked Pat.

"Well," he said, indignantly, "if he couldn't see the truck, how in hivin's name could he see my hand?"

One of the crew of a big British liner chanced to pick up a menu card and seeing at the top, "Table d'hote," turned to his pal and inquired: "What does this 'ere mean, Joe?"

"Well," said Joe, "It's like this. Them swells in the s'loon have some soup, a bit of fish, a bit of this, a bit of that, and a bit of summat else, and calls it 'table dottie.'

"We have 'table dottie,' only we mixes it all together and calls it Irish stew."

Some officers were discussing an Irishman, a private in their regiment, whom, it was alleged, no one could frighten.

One decided he would try to "put the wind up" Patrick.

Arraying himself in all the fearful and awesome habiliments of His Satanic Majesty, he stealthily approached Pat when the latter was on sentry duty.

In response to the challenge: "Who goes there?" he answered in sepulchral tones: "The Devil."

"Pass. Devil." replied the sentry. "You know where to go!"

———o———

"What did you do last summer?"

"I worked in Des Moines."

"Coal or iron?"

———o———

Pat: "Hey, Mike, what's up there?"

Mike: "That's an aeroplane. How would you like to be up in one?"

Pat: "I'd soóner be up in one than up without one."

"And phwat wuz the last card I dealt ye, O'Rourke?"

"'Twuz a spade, Flaherty."

"Oi knew it was. Oi saw ye spit on yer hands befure ye picked it up."

Three tramps had boiled a chicken and were arguing how to divide it. One suggested they should toss a coin. "Head," called Sam. "Tail," called Tom. "I'll take what's left," said Pat.

An Irishman saw a coat outside a pawnbroker's, priced $10, and thought he would buy it. He took it inside to the pawnbroker. "How much is this worth?" he asked, innocently.

"Not more than $5," the pawnbroker replied.

"I'll take it," said the Irishman.

"Take it?" gasped the pawnbroker. "I thought you had come here to sell it."

Pat was sick in a hospital ward with bronchitis. The doctor inquired: "Do you raise anything when you cough?" Pat looked puzzled, but shook his head. The doctor passed on down the ward. On his return Pat beckoned to him, and said: "Doctor I've been thinking and every time I coughs I raises me left leg."

He was a man of peace, and when he came upon two youths fighting in a back street he pushed through the crowd and persuaded the combatants to desist.

"Let me beg you, my good fellows," he said, "to settle your dispute by arbitration. Each of you choose half-a-dozen friends to arbitrate."

Having seen the twelve arbitrators selected to the satisfaction of both sides the man of peace went on his way.

Half an hour later he returned, and was horrified to find the whole street fighting.

"Good gracious, what's the matter now?" he asked.

"Sure, sorr," was the reply, "the arbitrators are at work!"

In a certain Irish village there is a cottage with a door which must be raised a little to be opened, and for this purpose a hatchet is used. One night a knock came at the door and a youngster was sent to see who was there.

"Who is it?" inquired the boy.

"It's me," said the voice outside.

The youngster, recognizing the voice, shouted back, "It's Mrs. Murphy; get the hatchet."

Mrs. Murphy didn't wait.

HUMOR

The priest was writing the certificate at a christening, and paused in an endeavor to recall the date. He appealed to the mother. "Let me see, this is the nineteenth, isn't it?"

"The nineteenth, bejabers, yer riv-rence must be losin' yer mind. This is only my elivinth."

Doctor: "Good morning, Mrs. Kelly! Did you take your husband's temperature, as I told you?"

Mrs. Kelly: "Yes, Doctor, I borrowed a barometer and placed it on his chest; it said 'very dry,' so I bought him a pint of beer and he's gone back to work."

Pat went to a restaurant on Friday. Without looking at the bill of fare, he said:

"Have yez any whale?"

"No," said the waiter in surprise.

"Have yez any purpoise or shark?"

"No."

"Then," said Pat, "bring me a dish of corn beef and cabbage. 'Tis sure I asked for fish."

The well-to-do lady was showing her new maid through the upstairs rooms. Finally, they came to a staircase leading down to the garden.

"Now, Mary," she said, stepping on the landing, "when you wish to pass down to the garden, go down this way."

At that moment she slipped, and with a great bumping noise she was precipitated to the bottom.

"Good gracious, mum!" gasped the maid, staring down from above. "Are ye hurt?"

"No; it's nothing," came the reply, as the dishevelled mistress rose to her feet.

"Then ye've got it down foine, mum!" declared the girl. "But if that's the way I've got to go down, the job's too strenuous for me!"

An Irish bricklayer was on the top of the partly built house, and shouted to the foreman that he could not find his way down to the ground.

"You fool—come down the way you went up," shouted the foreman.

"Not on yer loife, I came up head first," the Irishman yelled back.

Two Irishmen roomed in an eight-story apartment on the top floor and could not sleep on Sunday morning, as the sun would shine in the windows and wake them up. They bought some black paint and painted the windows, and lay down to sleep.

When they woke, they realized they would be late for work, as it was seven-fifteen. They rushed to their jobs and the foreman looked at them in bewilderment.

Pat said: "Faith, and what's the matter, boss? We're only 20 minutes late."

The Foreman: "Twenty minutes? Where were you Monday and Tuesday?"

———o———

"Pat, did you steal farmer Brown's pig, and if so, what did you do with it?"

"Killed it an' ate it, your honor."

"Pat," said the lawyer, "when you are brought face to face with this farmer and his pig on the judgment day, what will you say when he accuses you of this theft?"

"Did you say the pig would be there, your riverince?"

"Yes."

"Well, thin, Oi'll say: 'Mr. Brown, there's yer pig.'"

An Indian Rajah of fabulous wealth accidentally fell overboard the ship on his way to England, and was saved by an Irishman, a mighty swimmer, who jumped to his rescue.

"What can I do to pay you for saving my life? You have only to ask," said the Rajah.

"Oh," said the Irishman, modestly, "when you come to Dublin you can buy me some golf clubs, and I'll keep them to remember you by."

"Thanks," said the Rajah. "I will."

Two months later they met in Dublin, and the Rajah at once brought up the subject of the golf clubs. "I'm awfully sorry," he said, "and you must think me very ungrateful, but I'm really in terrible trouble. I couldn't buy the Portmarnock Golf Club for love nor money, but my secretary is now bargaining for the purchase of the Dollymount Club, the Hermitage Club, and one or two others. In the meantime I've purchased a big plot of land near Wicklow, and will have a golf club laid out there with all speed."

AFL WORKERS FOUGHT BRAVELY ON GUAM AND WAKE ISLANDS

Washington, D. C. Labor will have special cause to remember Pearl Harbor because on the fateful morning of Dec. 7, when the treacherous Japanese rained sudden destruction from the skies on that Hawaiian base, thousands of courageous American Federation of Labor workers ignored danger, stayed on the job, and fought like heroes against the enemy.

This was attested to in an official report by the Navy Department which gave details for the first time of the bravery and exploits of the building trades and metal trades workers stationed at Pearl Harbor during the murderous raid.

But the glow of pride which all American Federation of Labor members felt on learning this news was tempered with grief over the fate of some 1,500 other workers who apparently were captured by the Japs after having fought side by side with the U. S. Marines for tortured days and nights on the lonely islands of Guam and Wake.

The Japanese paid an unwitting tribute to the fighting qualities of the workers at Wake Island when they claimed they had captured 1,400 American soldiers and maries on the island. The Navy insisted, however, that there were only 400 marines stationed on the island and the others captured must have been civilian workers. They fought so bravely that the Japs mistook them for soldiers.

In its official report on the Pearl Harbor raid, the Navy said that one crew of workmen, engaged in unloading anti-aircraft guns from a flatcar alongside a ship that had been overhauled, stuck to their work during the raid. The job that normally would take many hours was accomplished while the raid was in progress. The battery officer of the ship said several of the workers volunteered to help load the guns during the firing.

A comment of one officer in describing the heroism of these men said:

"Six men did work in two hours that ordinarily would take twenty men a day and a half."

Another officer described the scene at the main entrance of the Navy Yard.

"It was about 8 o'clock, during the earliest stage of the first attack," he said.

"Japanese planes were strafing and bombing Hickman Field (adjoining the Pearl Harbor area). I noticed a large crowd of yard employes going through the gate. One of the attacking planes, off from the rest, was shot down in flames in the yard area—in full view of all these people. Their cheers could be heard above the drone of the motors and machine-gun fire."

Soon after the Japanese bombing started, a call for all yard workmen was broadcast over Honolulu radio station.

"During the second attack, about 11 o'clock, the streets in the Navy Yard were thick with incoming yard workmen, all hurrying to their jobs," the officer said.

"Instead of running to cover, they ran to their jobs. Lots of them were shaking their fists in the air."

Other instances of courageous action by civilian and naval personnel of the Fourteenth Naval District were cited in a report from the commanding officer of the Kaneohe Bay Naval Air Station on Windward Oahu.

"The station, located on the opposite side of the island from Pearl Harbor, was also subjected to Japanese air attack shortly before 8 a. m.," the report said.

"All of the civilians displayed extreme gallantry in their disregard of personal danger, and their attempts to help salvage aircraft and put out fires was commendable," the officer said. "They voluntarily undertook to repair electrical lines and water mains and the utilities of the station were out of commission only a short while."

MEDALS FOR WORKERS AND UNIONS ASKED

Washington, D. C.—Distinguished service medals for workers doing an exceptional job in producing defense materials are provided in legislation offered by Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers (Rep., Mass.).

Awards may be made to individuals or unions where "excellent performance" is rendered, in the same way that awards are made to soldiers and sailors who distinguished themselves in actual combat. In support of her proposal, Mrs. Rogers said:

"Every one of us knows that the war cannot be won with men alone, no matter how brave and gallant they are. We know that it must be won with the materials of war.

"We know that there is no drama—there is often agony of spirit and mind—during the sweat of production. Much of the production is extremely difficult, and is performed under very trying conditions. I think Congress should provide a distinguished service labor cross, that we may during this great emergency express our deep appreciation to those who make possible the materials essential to the winning of the war.

"It has been proposed that industry provide celluloid buttons for workers who render unusual service, but this is not sufficient. The mere commonness of these buttons makes them valueless. There ought to be an award of real distinction. It could go to a union, or to an individual, and should carry real honor on the basis of outstanding service to the nation."

Our Flag—It Still Waves

By John J. Buckley

In the dim dawning's light
And in twilight's last view
O'er the invader's war thrust
Stripes and stars were yet gleaming.
McArthur, his brave valiant army and crew
In liberty's cause gave no ground or weakness revealing
For our cause is just. In thee, Lord, is our trust
Thrice armed through Thee in Thy Divine Secureness,
That our Flag be not humbled in defeat in the dust.
From our Nation all homes united in prayer
Against paganism and tyranny keep from its despair,
Dear Lord, everywhere.

In the annals of all time accoladed so fine
These heroes of ours that have kept us a free Nation
Neither laurels nor praise nor brow bedecked boys
Can add to their heroism, the world's estimation.
Though outnumbered in force, they knew only one course:
That Liberty and Freedom from this world should not perish,
For they fought early and late for Thee, Lord and Thy Faith
Committed to us, Lord, to love, serve, honor and cherish.
Our slogan shall be, Dear Lord, "may it all be for Thee."
Guard, protect, strengthen our boys, is our fervent plea.

Lord, Thou hast signally blessed
Our dear land in war's afflictions or distress
And out of Thy Bounty hast kept us a free Nation;
That when evils of tyranny of state, rulers, or force
Seek to subjugate our dear land
In paganism, in its situation
Thou hast strengthened us, brought Victory through Trust,
Through Thy Grace, Holy Spirit, to hold fast Our Faith
And have prostrated Kingdoms, their evils and power,
Beneath us again, Lord, these evil times; and Endower
And all Honor, Glory, Praise be Thine each day and hour
For victory To Thee for all time and Eternity,
Lord of all the universe, Thy Creation.

TO ALL LOCAL UNIONS,
DISTRICT AND STATE COUNCILS

April 6, 1942.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am herewith enclosing copy of the answer of the Administrator of the Federal Works Agency to our group protest which was made by your International officers and by our membership generally against the bulletin sent out by the agency and which was known as Bulletin No. 488, and which had for its purpose the eliminating or omitting of all lathing and plastering on war construction work.

I am also enclosing your copy of Press Release No. 494 which was sent out by the Federal Works Agency after our protest had been made.

I desire to take this opportunity of thanking the officers and members of your local union for their prompt aid and assistance in this matter.

I am with best wishes

Fraternally yours,

WM. J. McSORLEY,
General President.

FEDERAL WORKS AGENCY
Office of The Administrator
Washington, D. C.

Mr. William J. McSorley
General President
Lathers International Union,
Lathers Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

March 31, 1942.

Dear Mr. McSorley:

We are glad to have your view regarding the omission of lathing and plaster on certain war public works structures and to take this opportunity to clarify our position. Your protest, like many others which have come to us, was based in substantial part upon a misapprehension of the character and extent of our practice in this regard and perhaps even a misapprehension of our purpose.

As to our purpose, certainly we do not intend to, nor will we, strip war public works structures down to a point which will impair their safety or usefulness. Nor will we allow such structures to be built without plaster and lath where there is sufficient justification for the use of plaster and lath. Within these limits, we will do our utmost to preserve and even increase employment.

Where the plastering is unessential so far as the war period is concerned and especially where the plasters can be used on more urgent work, there will be no plastering done on the works structures.

In no sense will the plastering restriction be a total prohibition. The restriction will apply only to temporary projects which are wholly Federally constructed. On non-Federal or locally sponsored projects there is almost certain to be lathing and plastering in most instances. On strictly Federal projects each construction job will be judged by its purpose and utility, its contribution to the war effort, and the resources that can be made available for it without hampering any other part of the war effort. Where it is appropriate, lathing and plastering will be given every consideration initially. It will even be considered as a possible alternative after the initial determination. For example, where plans are drawn to provide for plaster board, plaster and lath may be accepted as an alternative where it does not interfere with the employment of workers at more vital tasks nor materially increase the use of materials and the cost. Again, gunnite on metal lath against back forms will be considered as an alternative for block curtain walls.

Essentially the mandatory omission of plaster will apply only to buildings of mobilization type. These are buildings of temporary character. Examples are a substantial number of temporary schools which almost certainly will be occupied only during the war and which will be adequate and safe without plaster for the war period. If they should be needed after the war, they may be plastered then. In the same category are a few hospitals and nurses' homes which likewise will be of temporary character.

In buildings of this temporary type, the omission of plaster is not in any sense new. For many months, it has applied to a multitude of war structures such as cantonments. Here plastering was not necessary and its use would only result in delay and unwarranted increase in materials or cost.

One other important factor should not be overlooked. Even where laths and plaster are omitted, much other work is likely to remain for the lathers and plasterers to do. I may cite cement finishing of floors and stuccoing on outer walls.

When all these facts and the needs of the war are given full weight, we are confident that your members and other craftsmen will realize that they are not being subjected to any avoidable injury—if they are injured at all. We are sure they will recognize too, that if any reduction of employment results, it will be only that made necessary by an all-out war effort.

We hope you will acquaint your local officers and your members with these assurances and with this request for their wholehearted support and cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) BAIRD SNYDER,
Acting Administrator.

FEDERAL WORKS AGENCY
Office of Information

April 1, 1942.
Release No. 494.

Assistant Federal Works Administrator Baird Snyder, acting for Administrator Philip B. Fleming, today urged plasterers' and Lathers' Unions to give wholehearted support to the FWA simplified plan for construction of war public works. The unions had protested certain features of the plan as a possible threat to the employment of their members.

In asking their cooperation, Mr. Snyder gave the unions full assurance that all possible measures, consistent with the all-out war effort, would be taken to preserve the jobs and even increase the employment of plasterers and lathers.

Omission of plaster and lath from war public works will be confined to selected projects of temporary character which are wholly Federally constructed, he said.

Essentially, the mandatory omission of plaster will apply only to buildings of mobilization type, such as temporary schools and a few hospitals and nurses' homes of a temporary character to be built by the Federal Government, Mr. Snyder pointed out in letters to heads of the unions.

"On non-Federal or locally sponsored projects there is almost certain to be lathing and plastering in most instances," Mr. Snyder said.

He added that "even where lathing and plastering has been omitted, much other work is likely to remain for the lathers and plasterers to do. I may cite cement finishing of floors and stuccoing on outer walls."

"In addition," said Mr. Snyder, "lathing and plastering will be considered where it is appropriate, as an alternative for other materials."

Mr. Snyder's letters were addressed to William J. McSorley, General President, Lathers International Union; John E. Rooney, General President, Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers International Union; and Harry Bates, General President, Bricklayers and Plasterers International Union. The text of the letters follows:

"We are glad to have your views regarding the omission of lathing and plaster on certain war public works structures and to take the opportunity to clarify our position. Your protest, like many others which have come to us, was based in substantial part upon a misapprehension of the character and extent of our practice in this regard and perhaps even a misapprehension of our purpose.

ST. LOUIS PROTEST MEETING AGAINST ELIMINATING LATHING AND PLASTERING FROM WAR CONSTRUCTION

Above are some of the lathing and plastering contractors and union officials and material men who met to protest an order by Administrator Philip Fleming who ordered all lathing and plastering work to be discontinued on war public works construction. Among those present in the first row are, reading from left to right: Wm. Moore, secy. Plasterers Local No. 3; Louis Ellis, business agent East St. Louis Plasterers Local No. 90; Vincent J. Lee, international vice-president Plasterers; Wm. Anderson, business agent Plasterers Local No. 3; John J. Church, secy. Building & Construction Trades Council; Leo Havey, business agent Bricklayers Local No. 1; Maury E. Rubin, managing editor Labor Tribune; and Harry J. Hagen, international vice-president Lathers Union. Behind them are the rest of the 150 other union representatives and plastering and lathing contractors and material men who attended the protest meeting. Courtesy St. Louis Labor Tribune.

General President McSorley in his letter of March 25 urged all our local unions and members to protest the release of Bulletin 488, issued by the Federal Works Agency, which was an order to eliminate all lathing and plastering from construction under the war public works construction program—a program inaugurated in order to provide jobs for unemployed building tradesmen.

Immediately on receiving this letter, the St. Louis Labor Tribune reports, our First Vice President Harry J. Hagen got busy with Vincent J. Lee, Vice President of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International Association, who had received a similar letter from his International President, and had the 800 members of their respective organizations in St. Louis send telegrams to Mr. Philip B. Fleming, FWA Administrator, and to their senators and congressmen in Washington, requesting that this bulletin be rescinded or modified, in order to allow lathers and plasterers to work on jobs constructed under this program.

They also urged labor officials and unions in nearby states to take similar action. Lathing and Plastering Contractors and representatives of producing and distributing companies of products used by lathers and plasterers were notified immediately and a special meeting was held at the Lathers headquarters, Delmar and Taylor Ave. After the meeting adjourned each of the more than 150 persons present sent telegrams to Mr. Fleming and their two Senators and three Congressmen from St. Louis requesting Bulletin 488 be rescinded or modified.

The meeting was supervised by Lee, Hagen, Wm. Anderson, Bus. Agt. and Wm. Moore Sec. Treas. Plasterers Local No. 3. Among other labor officials present were John J. Church, Secretary Building & Construction Trades Council, Leo Havey, Bus. Agt. Bricklayers and Plasterers Local Union No. 1, Louis Ellis, Bus. Agt. East St. Louis Plasterers Local 190 and other labor officials from Greater St. Louis.

The announced objective of Bulletin 488 was to make lathers, Plasterers and allied workers available for other defense work. However, Bulletin 488 could have served no useful purpose in our war efforts because most lathers and plasterers have spent the best years of their lives in acquiring and working at their trades and possess no other particular skills that can be used advantageously in war work, said Hagen. Consequently thousands of these skilled mechanics all over the country would have remained unemployed and as a consequence their families would have suffered.

Arbitrary rulings like these by officials in Washington, who in most cases know little about the industries they are in a position to destroy by a scratch of the pen, are responsible for the storm of protest against official bungling, by taxpayers.

Lathers and Plasterers have secured very little employment on Defense Plants. To illustrate . . . on the Small Arms Plant in St. Louis, over one hundred million dollars was expended for construction, yet the lathing and plastering contract amounted to only a few thousand dollars. Tradesmen of these crafts worked only on one of the several hundred buildings erected, namely, the Administration building. On many similar large projects no lathers or plasterers were used at all. Wall boards have been substituted in thousands of government sponsored projects for lath and plaster which eliminates this type of worker. Such materials are neither fireproof, verminproof or sanitary as are lath and plaster. As a result disintegration will set in within a few years and such buildings will need modernization with lath and plaster, at additional cost to the government or purchasers of the homes. This substitution for lath and plaster and the practical elimination of lathers and plasterers on defense work has caused serious unemployment among these tradesmen and it is unfair and unjust to select this industry for experimental purposes.

Lee urged that Buletin 488 be rescinded or modified immediately in order to give employment to the thousands of mechanics in the above trades who have been looking forward to the war public works program as a future source of employment. This is especially true of this industry as plaster is a non-vital war product and the metal lath specified under the above program was an infinitesimal amount of the job.

Bulletin 488 has already been rescinded and replaced by Bulletin 494, as a result of prompt concerted action by lathers and plasterers, not alone in St. Louis but in other localities. We are, however, publishing an account of the discussion at this meeting, conducted by St. Louis lathers and plasterers, as it will enlighten many of our members on several phases of our trade in relation to the present crisis, of which they may have been unaware and also bring home to many of them that they can accomplish a great deal by acting immediately on any requests they receive from our International office.

The full text of Bulletin 494, released by the Federal Works Agency, replacing Bulletin 488, is published on pages 2 and 3, together with explanatory letter from Acting Administrator Baird Snyder of the Federal Works Agency to General President McSorley, and the latter's communication to all our local unions and district and state councils.

AFL Labor Doing Its Share For Ultimate and Complete Victory

Detroit.—George Meany, secretary treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, March 12, said that "nothing is really important to any of us these days except ultimate and complete victory for our nation" and urged genuine and indestructible unity of the American people as a condition essential to the achievement of that victory.

"Let us remember that the worker of today in this modern war is actually a soldier in overalls," Mr. Meany said. "Let us remember that production must go on without stoppage, without delay, at a faster and ever faster pace.

"Let us remember that America's workers are carrying the responsibility of producing not only for our people but for the liberty-loving people of all the world. Let us remember that it depends on how well we do our job as to what kind of world this is going to be for many generations to come."

A member also of the National War Labor Board and of President Roosevelt's six-man A. F. of L. - C. I. O. combined Labor War Board, Secretary Meany emphasized that peak production of the articles needed for winning the war requires the maintenance of high morale among American wage earners and condemned the "foolish or vicious men" who are currently indulging in unwarranted "sniping" at labor.

"Anyone who attempts for selfish purposes to impair the morale for the American worker is guilty of an act of treason," he said.

Pointing out that American labor in the last two years has written a patriotic record which is unexcelled anywhere in the world, "and I include Great Britain in this statement," Mr. Meany said there is no excuse whatsoever for the activities of those who are seeking to use the national crisis to shackle workers with restrictive laws and to erase existing protective labor legislation from the statute books.

"It is in the nation's interest that workers on whom we depend for victory should work under conditions conducive to their health and the health and welfare of their families," he asserted. "Break down the worker's conditions and you break down his morale and deal a body blow to his productive capacity."

Mr. Meany urged the immediate employment of new workers and the addition of new shifts in war factories as the way to attain peak production, rather than by the device of compelling the same workers to put in ten or twelve hours a day at their jobs.

"Talk of a labor shortage is poppycock," Mr. Meany said. "We still have millions unemployed. Let us put them to work on this vital victory program."

In his address, which was heard by a capacity audience, Mr. Meany referred to the subject of unity in labor's ranks. He expressed the earnest hope that differences between the A. F. of L. and the CIO might be speedily adjusted under the spur of "the spirit of unity engendered among labor men by our nation's needs."

"It is pertinent to refer to the unity of purpose that has been achieved in the ranks of labor on the all-important question of complete all-out production for victory," he said. "Labor has shown that it is intelligent enough and patriotic enough to realize that this is the time to put factional differences aside for the nation's welfare. In my opinion there has never been a sound trade union reason for a divided labor movement. There is no sound reason for division today. Let us hope that the spirit of unity engendered among labor men by our nation's needs in this time of national emergency will lead to a speedy adjustment of the differences which now keep us apart. The A. F. of L. is ready. Our peace committee is still intact and waiting for a word from the C. I. O. for a resumption of meetings designed to bring about a single united movement, which we need now and surely will need more than ever after this war is over."

A.F.L. LABOR DOING ITS SHARE

The full text of Mr. Meany's address is as follows:

Under ordinary circumstances on an occasion of this kind it would be proper to discuss those things that we as trade unionists have in common—labor's problems in the organizational field, in the economic field, in the legislative field.

We would want to discuss the progress being made in extending the benefits of trade unionism to more and more workers in fields hitherto untouched.

We would want to talk about wage increases, work-hour reductions and about legal protection for workers in industry through enactment of wise and just laws.

In short, we would want as workers to talk exclusively about those things that have to do with raising the standards of life and of work of the people we represent.

But as Americans we must at this time think of the only thing that really counts today. All of labor's problems, both past and present, pale into insignificance before the one great problem of today for all Americans—rich and poor, banker and shop-keeper, employer and employe—what can we as individuals or groups do to bring complete and final victory for our country and its allies?

Everything that we are, everything that we have, everything we hold dear must now be subordinate to one single and overwhelming purpose—the triumph of free men everywhere over the forces of hate and destruction, those forces which would, through military domination, impose a system of slavery on workers the world over.

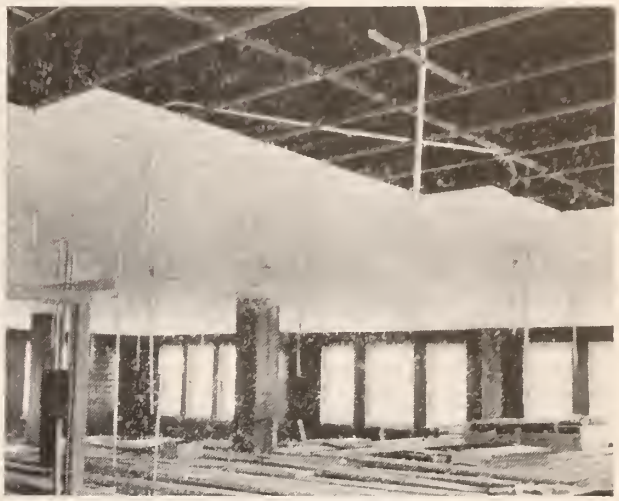

American labor, as represented by the American Federation of Labor, has had no illusions about this war and what was at stake from the very outset. Our organization long ago called attention again and again to the threat to our country and its institutions that was evident in the moves of Hitler and the Japanese military clique against the free peoples of Europe and Asia.

Despite labor's warnings repeated year after year from 1933 on, it was not until June of 1940 that a majority of our people realized that the United States of America was high on the list of Hitler's intended victims, and it was not until December 7th of last year that there was developed (overnight perhaps) in this country a final conviction that Japan was determined to collaborate in bringing about our elimination as a world power.

Labor knew in 1933, labor knew in 1940 and labor knows

Here's How You Can Save 425 Pounds of Steel in a 100-Yd. Fireproof Ceiling!

Suspended Ceiling of Anchor Lath and Anchor Clips Represents Big Saving in Metal and Time!

STEEL is hard to get! Uncle Sam needs it for certain work that can't be done by any other material. So it's up to every one of us to make other materials do wherever possible—to save all the steel we can—and YOU can save 425 pounds of steel in a 100-yard fireproof ceiling by using Anchor Gypsum Lath and Anchor Clips!

Such a fireproof ceiling—made of metal lath—requires 802.5 pounds of steel all told. But you can build a suspended ceiling of Anchor Gypsum Lath—the same number of square yards—using only 377.5 pounds of steel, when you employ the Anchor Clip method. Hangers and tie-wire are not included in these figures, since they are the same for both types of construction.

Only one kind of clip is used—the Anchor "C" Clip. And the total time required for the suspended Anchor ceiling is considerably less than for conventional metal lath construction. Write for complete facts!

Apprentice Training at Washburne Trade School

(Also note photos on opposite page.)
Courtesy Washburne Trade School.

The members of Lathers Local No. 74, Chicago, Illinois, realizing as early as 1928 the need of special training in metal lathing for their apprentices, made arrangements for sending them to the Washburne Trade School to acquire this training. Through the cooperation of Philip L. McNamee, the Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Charge of Vocational Education, and the officials of Local No. 74, the training program has been successful. Thomas Regan, a member of Local 74, was selected as the instructor. A few years later he passed away. Elmer Johnson, also a member of Local 74, became the new instructor, taught apprentices for ten years, and was then promoted to shop superintendent of the Washburne Trade School.

The lather apprentices are required to attend school one eight-hour day each week during their entire apprenticeship.

Since 1928 many new items have entered into our trade, including welding. Welding is now being taught as a regular part of the apprentice training. There is also an evening class for journeymen.

Many other building trades apprentices attend the Washburne Trade School. Among the students will be found plumbers, electricians, carpenters, steam fitters, plasterers, painters, and sheet metal workers. The school program coordinates the instruction of these apprentices by projects demanding the work of several trades.

At present, a model theatre is being built in the plastering shop. Construction was started on the theatre by metal lath apprentices, the electrical apprentices will wire it for indirect lighting, the plastering apprentices will do the plastering, and the painter apprentices will complete the work. This type of work gives the apprentice school working conditions similar to those on the job. Therefore, during the apprenticeship at the Washburne Trade School, an apprentice comes in contact with the apprentices in the other trades with whom he will work when he becomes a journeyman.

A social program is also carried on by the school. During a year's time an apprentice may take part in interdepartment sports such as softball and bowling. In the spring there is an apprentice dance which is run entirely by the apprentices. They select the orchestra and ballroom, and provide the entertainment with an apprentice glee club. All of these activities help in making an apprentice a good citizen as well as a good mechanic.

The present crisis may tend to hamper the apprentice program in the building trades as it did in the last war. Steps are being taken to prevent this happening. A pre-apprenticeship course may help the lather apprentices. Some of the trades have already established such a course. A pre-apprentice will attend school every day for six months before being sent to work for a contractor. He would be a much better mechanic because of the basic training he would receive in those six months and would be able to earn his wages immediately.

Many of our apprentices are entering the Army and Navy. Apprentices entering the service are urged to send their military addresses back to the school. Copies of the bi-weekly newspaper are sent to all who can be contacted. There is a column set aside for letters and messages sent in by these boys, and a prize is given for the best letter received. By this method the school is in constant touch with the boys in the service.

Many requests for school records are being supplied to assist in securing advanced standing. Every day the Washburne Trade School receives letters asking for information concerning the courses of study. The history of the school has just been presented in a book titled "The Washburne Trade School" by Dr. John A. Lapp. Dr. Lapp is a labor arbitrator working on the National Rural Electrification Board. He was a member of the first Federal Board for Vocational Education. This book gives a complete course outline for apprentice courses and will be of great assistance to apprentice committees working on the organization and establishment of apprentice programs.

AUDITORIUM CONSTRUCTION

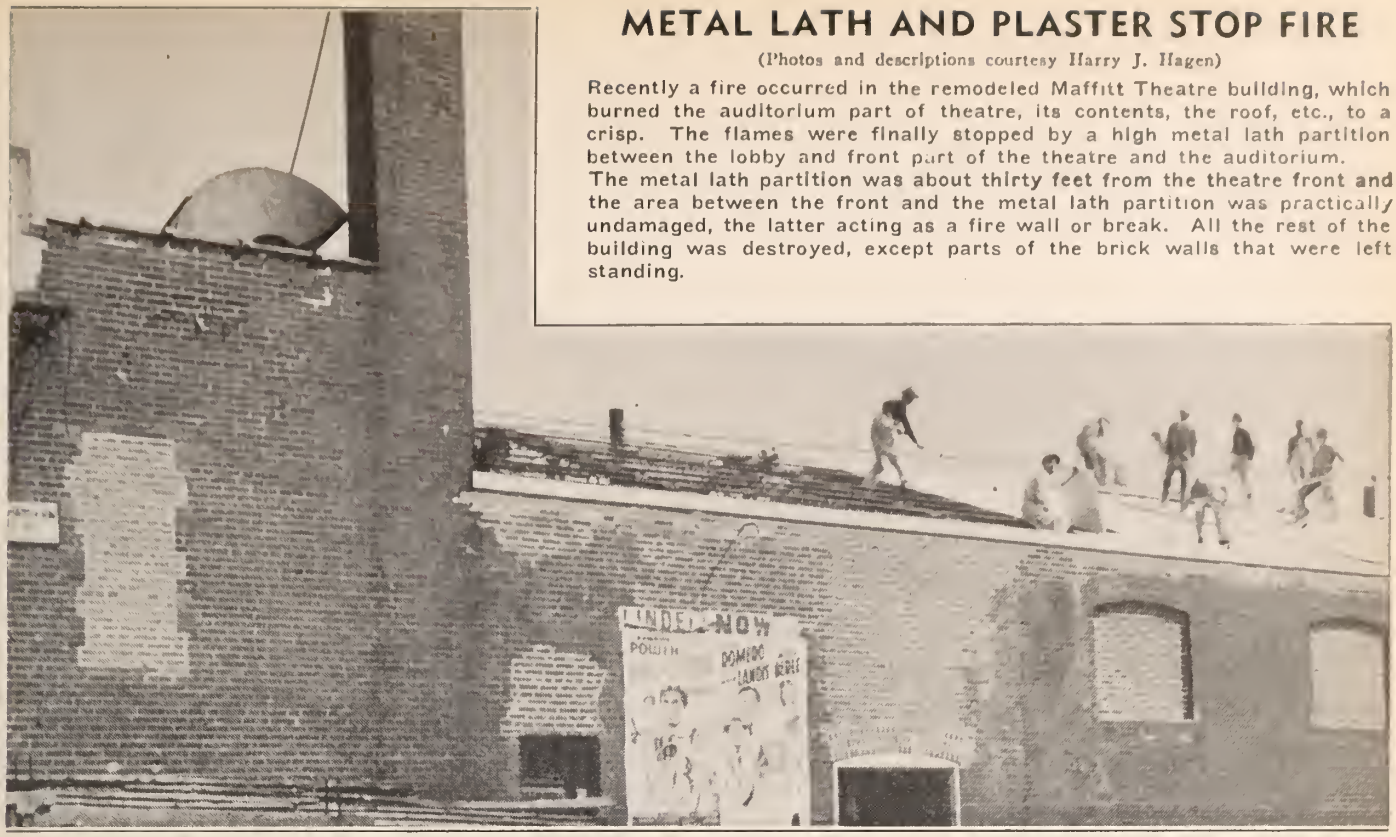

Top photo shows section of one of two auditorium ceilings and upper part of stage proscenium at the Municipal Auditorium, St. Louis. One auditorium has a seating capacity of eighteen thousand; the other, fifteen thousand. All panels with light troughs as shown, built with metal lath and channels by members of Local 73. METAL LATH AND PLASTER STOP FIRE

Recently a fire occurred in the remodeled Maffitt Theatre building, which burned the auditorium part of theatre, its contents, the roof, etc., to a crisp. The flames were finally stopped by a high metal lath partition between the lobby and front part of the theatre and the auditorium. The metal lath partition was about thirty feet from the theatre front and the area between the front and the metal lath partition was practically undamaged, the latter acting as a fire wall or break. All the rest of the building was destroyed, except parts of the brick walls that were left standing.

Members of Local 73, St. Louis, placing gypsum board and wire mesh in a poured gypsum roof on the Maffitt Theatre in that city. The gypsum boards are first placed over steel joists, wire mesh placed over the boards, tied together, and a gypsum mixture poured over the whole. In the photo, the first man to the left is Bro. Ray Knapp, placing wire mesh over the boards; second from the left is Bro. Joe Mickes, placing gyp boards; and the man stooping over, tying the mesh together, is Bro. Ray Vogel.

This shows the metal lath partition still standing. Note channels exposed at the top. The fire resistance of this partition was beyond all expectations. It took an awful beating and parts of the plaster on the fire side finally came off. (Note ends and top of partition.) However, it did stop the fire and stood for hours in flames and tremendous heat.

Lathers are shown placing a new suspended metal lath ceiling over the auditorium. They are working under open section of the roof, where lathers are shown (top photo) placing roof boards and mesh. Here we have lathers working inside and outside of a building in the spring sunshine.

CONGRATULATIONS TO NODE W. TANEYHILL AND TO LOCAL UNION 36

Local Union 36 notifies headquarters that they issued an Honorary Life Membership to Brother Node W. Taneyhill, 1794, in recognition of meritorious service while affiliated with their local union. Brother Taneyhill was initiated in Local 36, May 15, 1900, while our International Union was still in its infancy.

At the same time, Local 36 informs us that, with the vote of the members, they invested $518.00 in Defense Bonds, which in 12 years will return $700.00 to the local union.

We congratulate Brother Taneyhill on the honor extended him by Local 36 and Local 36 on their foresight and patriotism by investing in Defense Bonds.

—o—

TO ALL SECRETARIES!

Has Your Local Bought Defense Bonds?

Many of our local unions have been too modest to notify headquarters of their intense patriotism, and that they have backed this up with the purchase of Defense Bonds.

The patriotism of our members is worthy of public recognition.

Will you, Brother Secretary, notify headquarters within the next week, the amount of Defense Bonds which your local union has bought?

No matter how small the amount, we believe each investment to be within the means of the local union and as such, is worthy of public mention. May we hear from you soon?

Read This Before Filing Tax or Compensation Reports

Those secretaries who are obliged to file old age benefit tax reports with the Collector of Internal Revenue in their district, and/or unemployment compensation reports with the Treasurer of their respective states, are reminded that labor organizations are not required to include on these reports any officer or other employee who was paid a salary or other compensation for services rendered to the organization which amounted to $45.00 or less in any one calendar quarter, in accordance with Section 101 (1) of the 1939 Internal Revenue Code. OFFICIAL CALL TO THE NINETEENTH CONVENTION OF THE WOOD, WIRE AND METAL LATHERS INTERNATIONAL UNION

To All Affiliated Locan Unions,
State and District Councils of The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union.
GREETINGS:

This is your official notification that the triennial convention of The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union will convene on Monday, September 14, 1942, at Chicago, Illinois, in accordance with Section 185 of our International Constitution and the action of our Eighteenth Convention, and will remain in session until all official business properly coming before our convention has been reviewed and acted upon.

Convention headquarters will be located at the Hotel Morrison, Chicago, Illinois. Information on hotel accommodations will be published in a later issue.

The International Office will mail credentials for delegates and duplicate credentials for alternate delegates to all secretaries.

Follow instructions below on completion of credentials and if you need more information, contact headquarters immediately and we shall be glad to advise you:

Elect your delegate and alternate delegate at least two weeks prior to September 14, 1942, convening date of our convention.

Delegate and alternate delegate credentials, and duplicates thereof, must be filled out with their names and International numbers, respectively.

The president and secretary of your organization must sign all originals of delegate and alternate delegate credentials, as well as the duplicates.

The official seal of your organization must be affixed on all original as well as duplicate credentials.

Give the original credentials to your duly elected delegate and alternate delegate, respectively.

Mail the duplicates of the delegate and alternate delegate credentials to headquarters as soon as possible.

Sections 185-200 of our International Constitution are published herewith and we ask that you again read these, to thoroughly inform yourself on the various requirements and ethics governing our convention.

We urge each one of our affiliated local unions, state councils and district councils to send a delegate to our Nineteenth Convention, so that in common session with their fellow members they may discuss various phases of our trade which have been affected since our Eighteenth Convention and charter our future course.

Fraternally yours,
TERRY FORD,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

REQUIREMENTS AND ETHICS GOVERNING OUR CONVENTION

Sec. 185. The conventions of this Organization shall convene every three years at 10 A. M., on the second Monday of September, at such place as the delegates have selected at the preceding convention.

Sec. 186. The following Committees shall be appointed at the opening of the convention by the President: (1) Credentials, (2) Rules and Order of Business, (3) Report of President, (4) Report of Executive Council, (5) Report of Secretary-Treasurer, (6) Resolutions, (7) Laws, (8) Organization, (9) Grievances, (10) Auditing, (11) Education.

Sec. 187. Reports from the General President and General Secretary-Treasurer shall be submitted in printed or typewritten form, in sufficient number to supply each delegate with a copy.

Sec. 188. The report of the Grievance Committee shall be considered in executive session.

Sec. 189. The rules and order of business governing the preceding convention shall be in force from the opening of any convention until new rules have been adopted by action of the convention.

Sec. 190. Questions may be decided by division or a show of hands, but if a call of the roll is demanded by one-tenth of the delegates present each delegate shall cast one vote.

Sec. 191. None others than members of a bona fide trades union shall be permitted to address a convention or read papers therein, except by a two-thirds vote of the convention.

Sec. 192. Resolutions of any character can be submitted to a convention the first three days while in session and must be in duplicate copy but no resolutions can be submitted to a convention after three days of its sessions have expired.

Sec. 193. The basis of representation shall be one delegate from each local. Each District Council or State Council shall have the right to send a delegate who shall be entitled to one vote for the Council that he represents and that only. This does not in any way take away the right of any local union to send a delegate to the convention.

Sec. 194. A delegate and alternate delegate shall be elected at least two weeks previous to the time for the convening of a convention, and the name and International number of each delegate and each alternate delegate shall be forwarded to the General Secretary-Treasurer on duplicate credentials immediately after their election.

Sec. 195. If for any reason the delegate can not attend a convention, the regularly elected alternate delegate shall represent the local or council as its delegate.

Sec. 196. No delegate shall be entitled to a seat in a convention unless he has been a member in good standing in his local for three months prior to the election, and the per capita tax on the local paid in full to the month in which the convention is held.

Sec. 197. No delegate shall be entitled to a seat in convention unless he has been in continuous good standing in the International Union two (2) years prior to his election as a delegate.

Sec. 198. All delegates to the International Convention shall be strictly working journeymen; in other words, no Boss or Solicitor will be entitled to a seat in the convention.

Sec. 199. No organization which has seceded, or has been suspended or expelled, shall be allowed representation or recognition in a convention until all the rules of the International Union have been complied with.

Sec. 200. No local shall be allowed representation unless it has been organized one year prior to a convention.

A.F.L. LABOR MAKING ALL-OUT EFFORT TO WIN WAR

now what this war means to workers. We knew then and we know now that a victory for the Axis means an end to the free America we have known. We know that it means an end to free trade unionism and the imposition of a brutal, inhuman system of slavery in which the individual human being becomes a mere tool of the state, with no more rights or privileges than has a hammer or a monkey-wrench.

That is why labor today looks upon this war no longer as just a war to defend our homes, our lands and our freedom. No longer can we consider this a war for defensive purposes only. This is a war to the finish between freedom and slavery. There can be no compromise. There can be no negotiated peace with a victorious Hitler or a satisfied Japan. Nothing less than the destruction of Hitler can satisfy America today. Never again shall Japan be allowed to build for conquest while she practices her sinister and treacherous diplomacy. Complete and absolute victory by force of arms over her enemies is the one aim of America.

In bringing about this result, which to me is as inevitable as the coming of daylight tomorrow morning, American labor has a glorious opportunity. As workers we can contribute more toward this sacred cause than can any other group anywhere in the world. This is a mechanical war. This is a war of production. This is a war that is being fought not only on the actual fighting front, not only by our gallant men on the high seas and in the air, but also on the farms, on the roads and in the ships and mills of our country.

Our nation's victory depends on the production of planes, guns, tanks and ships and also on the speedy transportation of these weapons of war to the place where they will do the most good. We must out-produce the Axis powers in an overwhelming way. This most important part of the job belongs to the workers of America. It is a big job. Our enemies have had a long headstart in their preparations for this war. We must catch up and then speed past them in the race of production before we can achieve final victory.

May I say to you tonight that organized labor has done its full share of the job to date. Beginning back in June of 1940 when the fall of France first brought home to all America the possibility of a Hitler victory and the consequences to us of such a victory, the splendid building trades workers of the American Federation of Labor through their organizations pitched in to cooperate with the War and Navy Departments to bring to completion the largest construction program ever planned by our nation in peacetime.

In the space of a few months hundreds of cantonments for the military training of our civilian population were constructed all over the country. Thousands of new plants were erected in record time for the production of munitions and other instruments of war. Stiff schedules for this construction work were laid down by the government departments concerned. More speed was demanded in the plans formulated than the government experts had any logical reason to expect. Thousands of mechanics were transported through the cooperation of the Building Trades Department of the A. F. of L. many hundreds of miles from their homes in order to complete this work without a single penny of transportation cost to the government.

And yet in practically every case on record these cantonments, training stations and factories were constructed weeks and months ahead of schedule.

In the vital shipbuilding industry a similar record has been written in the last two years. Under the leadership of the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L. a system of labor, management and government cooperation has been worked out in this industry which has brought splendid results. Production facilities have been expanded and the rate of production has been stepped up to an astounding pace. Here again the progress schedules laid down have been left behind and ships are being turned out many months ahead of the scheduled date of completion.

What is true in this respect in the construction and shipbuilding industries is likewise true in other industries where organized workers are engaged in producing the things necessary for our men at the fighting fronts.

Labor took the lead on the question of eliminating work stoppages on defense work when the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor requested the establishment of a tri-partite board for this purpose in January of 1941. The National Defense Mediation Board came into being as a result, and despite any comment to the contrary made a splendid showing. The record discloses that with the exception of one or two highly publicized cases all disputes which arose were settled while production carried on.

When our country formally entered the war after the treacherous attack by Japan on December 7th last, labor again showed the way in an effort to bring about all-out production for victory. On December 15th and 16th the leaders of all national organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. met in Washington and pledged complete support to our Commander-in-Chief in this crisis. Labor voluntarily relinquished the right to strike as a means of adjusting grievances that might interfere with war production and proposed the substitution of the peaceful methods of conciliation, mediation and arbitration to resolve whatever grievances might arise.

The National War Labor Board is now engaged in applying these methods with almost perfect results to date. Might I say in this connection that the national officers of the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. have cooperated with each other in a very fine way in order to help the War Labor Board pursue its most difficult task.

Labor is cooperating with government and industry in the training and reallocation of skilled men needed in war production. Labor is leading the way in a campaign for all workers to purchase defense bonds to the very limit of their ability. In addition we find organized workers urging the use of more and more shifts in industry in order that around the clock production will be an actual fact instead of a figure of speech.

Labor has used its organizational structure to cooperate to the fullest in order to construct the facilities of war training and production, to produce the weapons of war, to build the ships in which these weapons must be transported and to man the ships when they are complete and ready for their hazardous task. In short, the record of the last several years shows that the workers of America, both organized and unorganized, are giving of their very best to preserve our American way of life.

Despite this splendid patriotic record which is unexcelled anywhere else in the world, and I include Great Britain in this statement, we find that those who make a profession of hating labor in peacetime are still practicing their profession during this time of national crisis. When everyone's

THE COMMITTEE FOR THE CELEBRATION OF THE PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY

FOR

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc.

March 18, 1942

Mr. William J. McSorley,
Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers
International Union,
2605 Detroit Avenue,
Cleveland, Ohio.

My dear Mr. McSorley:

I did not want too much time to elapse before personally thanking you for your time and efforts in behalf of the Infantile Paralysis Campaign which closed on President Roosevelt's birthday, January 30th.

You probably will be receiving a letter of thanks from President Roosevelt himself, and our national chairman, Mr. Keith Morgan.

We of the committee are all deeply appreciative of the splendid cooperation of yourself and your membership.

Final returns of the various unions' participation in the campaign are not yet available, but as soon as they are, they will be announced in the labor and daily press.

Let me again express to you my sincere gratitude for your help.

I send you my best wishes,

Eugene Kelly.

POLL TAX UNDEMOCRATIC

The maintenance and increase of democracy at home "calls for the abolition of the poll tax in the eight southern states where it is now a condition to voting in political elections," declared the Rev. James Myers, Industrial Secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in an opening address March 21st at the Workers' Educational Institute sponsored by the Southern School for Workers at Roanoke, Virginia. "Under present conditions in such states masses of our people do not even enjoy full political democracy. With the United States assuming an increasing role in world events, it is the more important that democratic institutions shall be preserved and extended over wider areas in our national life. Thus the influence of America for the freedoms on a world scale will be safeguarded and enhanced."

VITAMINS FOR VICTORY

By Dr. Walter H. Eddy,
Professor Emeritus, Columbia University

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists and medical men on the subject of applied nutrition.

If you want to keep in good spirits; if you want to keep your nerves and eyesight at full efficiency; and if you don't want to get tired too quickly, this brief outline will explain why you must look to your daily supply of necessary vitamins.

That is why the Government and everyone else interested in strong soldiers and energetic workmen in production are giving so much attention to vitamins in our diet. Extensive studies show that many people who think they are well fed (with the kind of food they like to eat) are still lacking in the quantities of essential vitamins and often in the proper kinds they need.

Vitamin A—

You need this vitamin for your eyes to insure clear vision even in dim light. You need it to protect the lining of your breathing passages, stomach and other organs against attack by disease germs. That's why we say it helps to prevent colds. You need it to keep your skin from getting dry.

Vitamin B1—

You need this vitamin to get all the energy out of the food that you eat. You may be eating plenty of food to supply your daily working needs and fail to get the working power out of it because you do not have enough of this particular vitamin. The more you eat and the more active you are the more vitamin B1 you need. If you take plenty of this particular vitamin, you won't tire so easily and you won't become irritable, you won't be so apt to develop constipation and digestive disturbances.

Vitamin B2 (Also called G and Riboflavin)—

Like vitamin B1 your body uses this vitamin to help change food into power to work. It is also required to prevent burning sensations of the eyes in bright light and changes in the eyeball which might lead to cataract. This vitamin also is needed by the skin to keep it in healthy condition.

Vitamin C—

This vitamin is known as the "scurvy-preventive" vitamin because way back in 1757 we found that the bleeding of gums and joints and the loosening of teeth which developed on long sea voyages could be corrected by certain fruit juices—such as lemon or orange. It wasn't until much later that this substance which prevents these conditions was discovered. It is the vitamin which we now call vitamin C or ascorbic acid.

Take vitamin C then to keep your blood capillaries from leaking. It strengthens their walls and makes them resistant to blood pressure. It has been shown to be of value in preventing what the dentists call pyorrhea.

When your blood lacks red coloring matter it can't carry the load of oxygen you need for the burning of food in the body. To maintain a satisfactory supply of this red pigment in your blood you must have daily a certain amount of iron. But, we know that taking adequate amounts of vitamin C along with your iron gives better results than the iron alone.

Vitamin D—

This is sometimes called the sunshine vitamin. When you expose your skin to the direct sun's rays, they will manufacture this vitamin in sufficient quantity for your needs. Unfortunately, the rays that do this won't pass through ordinary window glass and don't reach our skin to any great extent because of the clothing we wear. So it is well to supplement any that may be manufactured by sun exposure with additional amounts in the diet.

You may have been told that one of the minerals that the body must have supplied every day is calcium or lime and vitamin D regulates the distribution of this lime in the body.

Infants that fail to get enough of this vitamin develop what is known as rickets and also bow legs and deformed bony structure. You may not be in danger of rickets but vitamin D is still needed throughout life to control your use of lime.

Vitamin E—

Owing to the fact that it is widely distributed in almost all common foods there isn't much danger of deficiency of this vitamin but it is necessary to maintain normal reproductive organs and is useful in keeping our muscle tissues in healthy condition.

Vitamin B Complex—

Natural products such as yeast, wheat germs, liver and the polish that comes off rice, are all found to contain in addition to fairly large supplies of vitamins B1 and B2, other vitamins that the body requires. So, chemists went to work to separate these vitamins from water extracts in their natural sources. Up to the present time they have succeeded in actually identifying some eleven vitamins from the water extract of yeast, wheat germ and liver. Some of these, like vitamins B1 and B2, are being made in laboratories. Others can be obtained only by using extracts of natural foods. The mixture of all these vitamins, extractable from yeast for example, is called the natural B Complex.

WIT AND HUMOR

Embarrassed Young Man: "Er—ah—I—er—that is—I came to say that your daughter tells me that she—er—loves—me."

Parent: "Oh! And you have come to ask my permission to marry her?"

E. Y. M.: "No sir; I came to ask you to make her behave."

———o———

"You say you have no distant relatives?"

Well, not now. They are all living with us."

———o———

The bridegroom who was in a horribly nervous condition, appealed to the clergyman in a loud whisper, at the close of the ceremony:

"Is it kisstomary to cuss the bride?"

The clergyman replied: "Not yet, but soon."

———o———

Teacher (questioning class after lesson on preservation of food): "Mary, tell me one way of preserving meat."

Mary: "Putting it on ice, teacher."

Teacher: "What do we call that?"

Mary: "Isolation, teacher."

———o———

"What is bankruptcy, Pa?"

"Bankruptcy, my son, is when you put your money in your hip pocket, and then let your creditors take your coat."

———o———

"No, thanks," said the model youth, "I never fool around with women."

———o———

Interviewer—And how many time have you been married?

Film Star—Three times; twice in America and once in earnest.

———o———

Helen—What did the first rheumatism pain say to the second rheumatism pain?

Marge—I don't know. What?

Helen—Let's get out of this joint.

———o———

Two farmers met the day following a cyclone. "How's yer new barn coming on?" asked one.

"Oh, all right as fer as I know," was the reply. "I jus' heard this mornin' hit was over in Cobb County."

———o———

Cavalry Captain: "Say, where is that little roan mare I told you to have shod?"

Cavalry Draftee: "Omigosh, Captain, did you say 'shod'?"

A young woman entered a crowded street car during a rush hour. Immediately a Jew rose to surrender his seat to her. Before she could take it, however, a young man jumped himself into it.

The Jew looked at him in disgusted silence.

"What's the matter?" demanded the seated man. "What are you glaring at me for? You look as if you could eat me."

The Jew shook his head and calmly answered: "I am a Jew."

———o———

The candidate was relating some of his experiences in the House, extolling the work of his party to the audience.

"And now, ladies and gentlemen, I am going to tax your memory——"

"Great snakes! Has it come to that?" interrupted a voice from the rear of the hall.

———o———

A story floats in about a prominent business man who was trying out an applicant for a job in the office. He offered to match for the drinks at a soda fountain. The young man said he never gambled. He offered him a cigar, but the applicant didn't smoke. Back at the office the boss dug down into a desk drawer and produced a pint of bonded bourbon. But the young man said he'd never touched a drop in his life.

"You're the type of a young man I've been looking for," said the employer. "I wont you to come out to the house to dinner tonight and meet my daughter."

———o———

"Shine, please boy," said the six-foot-five soldier to the shoeblack.

The boy looked down at the vast expanse of boot before him.

"Bert," he called out to another shine boy, "Gimme a 'and—I've got an army contract."

———o———

"Hear about the fellow who invented a device for looking through a brick wall?"

"No! what does he call it?"

"A window—sap!"

———o———

Grouch—"I hear that the football coach gets five times as much salary as the Greek prof. Isn't that quite a discrepancy?"

Student—"I dunno. Did you ever hear 40,000 people cheering a Greek recitation?"

LABOR ALL-OUT FOR VICTORY

efforts should be directed toward the achievement of real national unity and the very highest in national morale we find there are those who would use this crisis that threatens the very existence of our country to shackle labor with restrictive laws and in addition to wipe off the statute books those protective laws that have placed the American worker on a higher plane economically than any other worker on earth.

An example of this is the effort to repeal the Fair Labor Standards Act. Attempts are being made to convince the American people that this law is in some way preventing war production plants from operating more than forty hours per week. This is absolutely false.

Actually, the people who are clamoring for the repeal or the setting aside of this law are not interested in speeding war production. They are interested in returning to the days when pecan shellers, novelty makers and other exploited workers were paid ten and fifteen cents an hour. They are interested in making it possible for the chiseling type of employer (and war or no war we still have some chiseling employers) to work his employes ten and twelve hours a day.

What is needed, is not the same workers putting in ten and twelve hours a day, for as long as they can stand it (and let us not forget that work in war industries is not easy work) but that more workers, new workers be given jobs and new shifts be put into effect. That is the way to attain maximum output.

And let no one try to tell labor that manpower is lacking. We may reach that point, but we have not reached it yet. Here in Detroit with so many skilled men and women walking the streets, you know that talk of a labor shortage is poppycock. We still have millions unemployed. Let us put them to work on this vital victory program.

In times of peace it is tremendously important for a democratic nation such as ours to maintain the morale of its citizens at the very highest level possible. In times of war it is absolutely fatal to a democracy to permit the morale of its citizens to be impaired. Democratic nations, unlike dictatorships, depend for the continuance of their democratic structure on the support of the common man. Nothing could be more destructive to the morale of the millions of American workers on whom our nation must depend in this day of mechanized warfare, than to have their confidence in our way of life undermined by the passage of punitive or restrictive measures against labor.

There is nothing in the record which warrants any such action and these attempts to shackle labor, whether successful or not, are bound to bring about a lowered morale among workers.

The working men and women of America today are supremely confident in the efficacy of the democratic way in this struggle. They are supremely confident of our ability to out-produce the slave workers of the Axis. They are above all supremely confident of the ultimate and inevtiable victory of the United States over Hitler and his Japanese cohorts. Let us not do anything to destroy that confidence.

The position of the American Federation of Labor in this time of national stress is clear. We seek no special privileges or advantages in this period of crisis. We are ready to make sacrifices. We have already made sacrifices. We make them gladly because we are determined that our nation shall win this war.

The charge has been made that labor is seeking to grow rich out of this war. That charge is absolutely false. The fact is that rents, food prices and the cost of clothing and all essential commodities, have increased so greatly that, in terms of real wages, American workers are worse off than they were a year ago even where they have received small wage increases.

Organized labor, as represented by the American Federation of Labor, never has and never will attempt to turn a national crisis to selfish advantage. In this war in which we are now engaged we of the American Federation of Labor are adhering to this policy. Loyal as we are to our movement, which has meant so much to the growth and development of our country and to the improvement of American life, we place our country first. This is a cardinal principle of the creed of the American Federation of Labor.

As we of labor shun all opportunities to use the nation's crisis for advantage, just so, we feel, should employers, in turn, refrain from seeking to use the war period to gain selfish advantage for themselves by breaking down the standards of their workers.

Above all things, in this war we must have unity—real unity. We are all in the same boat. Every American, be he worker or businessman, farmer or professional man, will remain free or become a slave depending on whether or not we win this war.

We must all work together. There can be no denying that constructive management has a vital role to play just as has labor. Labor and management and government must cooperate. America's life as a free land depends upon it.

If we are to have the full unity which is so essential, all this unwarranted sniping at labor on the part of foolish or vicious men should cease, for these baseless attacks have one outstanding effect, and that is to breed disunity, and he who promotes disunity is an enemy of America, whether he realizes it or not.

While discussing this question of unity, it is pertinent to refer to the unity of purpose that has been achieved in the ranks of labor on the all-important question of complete all-out production for victory. Labor has shown that it is intelligent enough and patriotic enough to realize that this is the time to put factional differences aside for the nation's welfare.

In looking forward to the trying months to come let me ask you to keep uppermost the thought I mentioned earlier in my talk to you tonight, that nothing is really important to any of us these days except ultimate and complete victory for our nation over its enemies. Let us remember that the worker of today in this modern war is actually a soldier in overalls; let us remember that production must go on without stoppage, without delay, at a faster and ever faster pace. Let us remember that the labor representative who contributes to the causes of a work stoppage during these times is Hitler's friend and the enemy of American trade unionism as we have learned to know and respect it.

Let us remember that America's workers are carrying the responsibility of producing not only for our people but for the liberty-loving people of all the world. Let us remember that it depends on how well we do our jobs as to what kind of a world this is going to be for many generations to come.

If we remember these things in the light of the American Federation of Labor tradition that you cannot be a good trade unionist unless you are first of all a good citizen, then some day in the not too far distant future we will perhaps have an opportunity to gather around as we are here tonight, in an atmosphere created by a just peace, to celebrate the victory of humanity and decency over the forces of unhumanity and barbarism.

Wear A Buddy Poppy

"To care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widows and orphans".
Abraham Lincoln

Memorial Day this year is fraught with deepest meaning to every American. Memorial Day! The day set apart to honor our soldier dead! In many homes throughout the country that need of honor to our soldier dead means loving tribute to the memory of one close and dear. To everyone it means honor and reverence for those who have fought the battles of our united nation, giving their all.

For them the battle is done. They have found perfect peace, but the ideals for which they fought still live in the hearts of each one of us, ideals symbolized in the scarlet blossoms of those Memorial Day poppies.

These Buddy Poppies, worn on that day which means so much, bring back the thought of those who sacrificed so greatly. They bring a consciousness of those disabled veterans "to whom we owe infinitely more than our gratitude can ever repay, though in our hearts that gratitude is deep and will ever abide".

The V. F. W. Buddy Poppies are made by disabled and needy veterans—the great majority patients in government hospitals—and the constantly growing success of the Sale has now made it possible to give occupation to the men throughout the greater part of the year in poppy-making.

This year the Sale proceeds will not only be used for disabled and needy veterans of previous wars, but can be made available for the welfare of soldiers, sailors and marines now with the Armed Forces and their dependents. An allotment to the V. F. W. National Home for Widows and Orphans of Ex-Service Men, in Eaton Rapids, Michigan, is also included.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars regard as a privilege the opportunity, through the Buddy Poppy Sale, of offering to America's soldiers the homage of reverence for their deeds and the testimony of immutable remembrance. Let us all join to "honor the dead by helping the living". In these days of war the flower of America's remembrance, the Buddy Poppy, carries an added significance in its appeal "to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widows and orphans".

REGARDING THE REFERENDUM

General President McSorley received the following letters and resolutions, requesting the postponement of our convention for the duration:

NEW JERSEY STATE COUNCIL of
WOOD, WIRE AND METAL LATHERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION
Locals Affiliated: 29-66-67-85-102-106-143-173-250-346

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley,
General President. March 22, 1942

Dear Sir and Brother:

At the meeting of the New Jersey State Council of Lathers held on Sunday, March 15, at Elizabeth, New Jersey, the Council went on record for a postponement of the Convention for the duration of the war, and have recommended a referendum vote of the different locals.

With best wishes, I remain

GREATER NEW YORK LONG ISLAND DISTRICT COUNCIL, COMPOSED OF LOCALS 6, 46, 244, 308

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, finances of many locals will be so low by next September they will have difficulty in paying per capita taxes for their members as was experienced in the depression of the early thirties, and,

WHEREAS, under such circumstances it is more practical for each local union to conserve its finances for the many problems that may arise on account of the war, and to avoid future competition in the open shop field and to guard from infringement on the lathing industry from other fields, and,

WHEREAS, the higher living costs and other costs arising from the burden of carrying on this war and the shrinking of income due to many of our members being called to the armed services and because of priorities many of our members are now unemployed, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, the Greater New York Long Island District Council go on record favoring a referendum vote that the International Convention which was set for September, 1942, at Chicago, Illinois, be cancelled for the duration of the war, and held not later than six months after an armistice is signed, and be it further

RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be presented at our next meeting of the New York State Council at Utica, N. Y., for their consideration and a copy be sent to our International Office requesting said referendum vote be taken.

(Signed) MICHAEL ANTHONY RIZZO,
Secretary

This resolution was adopted by a vote of 18 to 3 by the N. Y. State Council of Lathers, Utica, N. Y. 2-21-42.

WOOD, WIRE & METAL LATHERS' DISTRICT COUNCIL of GREATER ST. LOUIS AND VICINITY

Local 73 Local 313 Local 494

St. Louis, Mo.
Feb. 7, 1942

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley, Pres. L. I. U.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Sir and Brother:

I have been instructed to write and inform you that Lathers Locals No. 73 and 494 have voted unanimously in favor of postponing the next International Convention until after the war has ended. Also that you submit this proposition for a referendum vote to the rank and file in accordance withe Section 202 of the L. I. U. Constitution.

Reasons offered by various members of the above locals for such postponement are outlined below. No doubt there are many other good reasons why this action should be taken:

Because our nation and all its component parts are today faced with the greatest crisis in their history. If we lose the war, there will be no unions in the future to hold conventions . We are in the midst of an unparalleled emergency and a referendum vote should be taken on the question of postponing the convention.

The money spent for a convention, both by locals and the International in such uncertain times and under such circumstances is unnecessary, undesirable and a criminal waste of money. Local Unions could use the money spent to finance convention delegates for more essential and practical purposes, such as financing local officers, paying other local union expenses such as per capita tax and the like.

Thousands of our members will be unemployed when the time for the next convention arrives and few locals will be able to finance delegates. DUE TO PRIORITIES, MANY OF OUR MEMBERS ARE IDLE TODAY and the percentage becoming unemployed is increasing daily. Many will be unable to pay dues. Local unions finances will shrink and few locals will have a dollar to spare. Under such conditions, few locals could send delegates and it would therefore be a convention that was not representative of the great majority of the rank and file.

Many of our members who had expected to represent their local unions as delegates to the next convention are or will be in the armed services of the nation. It would be unfair and unpatriotic under those conditions to hold a convention and deprive such members of participation.

Many locals, by next September, will be unable to pay a Business Agent or other local officials, and they may have to go for months without salaries and possibly years as during the depression. In many instances sacrifices will be made by many locals in order to raise sufficient funds to pay per capita tax for their members. How then can they finance convention delegates? It is more practical and sensible to conserve such funds as they have in order to meet the difficult times ahead—in order to meet bills that must be paid, regardless of conditions in the industry, if they wish to maintain their local unions.

The few locals fortunate enough to have surplus funds can perform a patriotic service by purchasing Defense Bonds.

Higher living costs, income taxes and other increasing financial burdens must be met by our members in the future, while at the same time their incomes are decreasing as their opportunities for employment at our trade continue to decline. Their incomes to meet these increasing financial responsibilities are daily shrinking. Under such conditions, it will be impossible for many locals to finance delegates and it would be unjust and unreasonable to expect them to do so.

We have as President of our International Union, a man who has guided us through a previous world war and the depression years of the early thirties. A man of experience, intelligence and rare judgment. Other International officials come under his jurisdiction and guidance. We are fortunate to have him to guide us through the present emergency. With no changes in the officers of the International Union anticipated at the next convention that I know of, a convention would be nothing more or less than a mutual admiration society and a waste of time and money.

Accordingly, we request you to submit the proposition at once to the rank and file, in order to allow them to express their sentiments on the matter, through the columns of the Lathers' Journal at the earliest opportunity.

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) H. L. BEERMANN,
Secretary-Treasurer

Lathers' District Council of Greater St. Louis & Vicinity.

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley, General President,

Dear Sir and Brother:

There was a general discussion as to whether or not a Convention should be held this year, and motion was made and seconded that this Council go on record for not having such Convention. The vote was nine to three.

METAL LATHERS UNION
Local No. 46, New York
1322 Third Avenue,
New York City

January 28, 1942

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley,
2605 Detroit Avenue,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Local No. 46, after discussing the advisability of holding the L. I. U. convention next September, voted unanimously to postpone the convention until after the war. We also favor a referendum vote being held six months after the termination of the war to decide when said convention shall be held and we recommend that under no circumstances shall the convention be held until at least one year after the referendum is taken to set the date.

We believe that due to priorities, most of our members will be unemployed, and local union incomes will be decreased if not entirely eliminated. Under such conditions they will be unable to finance delegates to a convention this year. Furthermore, we believe that local funds can be used for more essential purposes, such as payment of salaries of local officials, payment of per-capita tax of unemployed members, etc.

Many members who had expected to represent their local unions as delegates to the convention, will be inducted into the armed services of the United States and it would be unfair to those brothers and others in most locals, unable to send delegates to hold the convention this year. Members in the armed service will not be released from duty for six months after the war's termination at which time a referendum can be held to set the date for holding convention. However, most locals will be financially embarrassed after the war and a period of time sufficient to allow them to build up a convention fund should be allowed to expire before the convention is held so locals may build up a convention fund and have representation at the convention when it is held.

We believe the above are logical and sufficient reasons for postponement of the convention until after the war.

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) WALTER M. MATTHEWS,
Business Manager, Local 46.

Upon receipt of these letters and resolutions, the General President sent the following letter to our Executive Council, for their consideration and action:

April 13, 1942

To the Members of the Executive Council.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

There have been several requests made to this office in the form of resolutions from the New Jersey State Council of Lathers, and from the New York State Council of Lathers, and also from the Greater St. Louis District Council of Lathers, requesting that the subject matter of postponing the next convention for the duration of the war be submitted to a referendum vote of the membership of the International Union, and inasmuch as the Executive Council of the International Union is the only body that can act upon a matter of this kind, I am therefore submitting the subject matter to the Council, and if the Council believes that the emergency warrants the postponement of the Convention, that they so recommend to the membership.

And if on the other hand, they do not believe that the emergency warrants the postponement of the Convention, they can vote against the proposal. I am enclosing you copies of the resolutions and letters requesting this action from the different Councils, as well as from Local No. 46.

There are many other letters at this office asking for the postponement of the Convention and the matter be submitted to a referendum vote, and there are also a lot of protests against postponing the Convention, and inasmuch as there is a difference of opinion as to whether we should postpone it or not, I feel that the Executive Council should act on the matter and decide as to whether or not to submit it to a referendum vote.

Trusting that you will send your vote to Vice President Hagen as soon as possible, and oblige

Yours fraternally,

(Signed) WILLIAM J. McSORLEY,
General President.

The Executive Council, on receiving this letter from General President McSorley, took action on same and voted, 9 to 3, in favor of holding the referendum.

Those voting in favor of holding the referendum were: 1st Vice President Harry J. Hagen; 3d Vice President Jos. H. Duty; 4th Vice President John P. Cook; 5th Vice President Ora A. Kress; 6th Vice President Sal Maso; 7th Vice President John J. Langan; 10th Vice President J. P. Boyd; 11th Vice President H. H. Fairbanks; 12th Vice President C. R. Nicholas.

Those voting against were: 2d Vice President C. J. Haggerty; 8th Vice President Thomas Priestly; 9th Vice President Frank R. Smith.

After receiving the results of the action of the Executive Council, General Secretary Ford then sent the following communication to all local unions:

May 1, 1942

To All Local Unions

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

General Preident McSorley has received resolutions from the New York State Council of Lathers, the Greater St. Louis District Council of Lathers, the Greater New York Long Island District Council of Lathers, Local Union 46, the Massachusetts State Council of Lathers, and the New Jersey State Council of Lathers, recommending that a referendum vote be held on the postponing of our convention for the duration of the war.

In response to these resolutions, General President McSorley referred the question of postponing our convention to our International Executive Council for their consideration and action, and following is a copy of the letter he sent to the Executive Council:

April 13, 1942.

To The Members of The Executive Council

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

There have been several requests made to this office in the form of resolutions from the New Jersey State Council of Lathers, and from the New York State Council of Lathers, and also from the Greater St. Louis District Council of Lathers, requesting that the subject matter of postponing the next convention for the duration of the war be submitted to a referendum vote of the membership of the International Union, and inasmuch as the Executive Council of the International Union is the only body that can act upon a matter of this kind, I am therefore submitting the subject matter to the Council, and if the Council believes that the emergency warrants the postponement of the Convention, that they so recommend to the membership.

And if on the other hand, they do not believe that the emergency warrants the postponement of the Convention, they can vote against the proposal. I am enclosing you copies of the resolutions and letters requesting this action from the different Councils, as well as from Local No. 46.

There are many other letters at this office asking for the postponement of the Convention and the matter be submitted to a referendum vote, and there are also a lot of protests against postponing the Convention, and inasmuch as there is a difference of opinion as to whether we should postpone it or not, I feel that the Executive Council should act on the matter and decide as to whether or not to submit it to a referendum vote.

Trusting that you will send your vote to Vice President Hagen as soon as possible, I am

Fraternally yours,

(S) WM. J. McSORLEY,
General President.

WJMcS/cf

First Vice President Hagen has informed this office that the majority of the Executive Council have voted to refer this question of the postponing of our convention to a referendum vote of all our local unions and in accordance with the International Law, the three-month discussion period thru our official journal, will be held and these discussions by proponents and opponents will be published in the May, June and July issues of The Lather, our official journal.

In accordance with Section 202 of our International Constitution, the General Secretary-Treasurer shall notify in writing all locals of the time and place of the referendum and I am therefore notifying all of our local unions that the referendum vote on the postponing of our convention will be held by each local union the last week in July in their regular meeting hall, in accordance with the provisions of this section and three (3) days after the vote has taken place, the International Office shall be notified of the results of this vote by each local union.

Each local union will be furnished with sufficient ballots with the proposal printed thereon in squares for the affirmative and negative votes.

Trusting that each local union will hold its referendum in conformity with Section 202 of our International Constitution, I am, with best wishes,

Fraternally yours,

(S) TERRY FORD,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

An error was made in mentioning the Massachusetts State Council of Lather in the above letter to all Local Unions by General Secretary Ford. It should be the Greater Boston District Council of Lathers.

SLAVERY – 1942

(Condensed from "Labor Under Nazi Rule" by Dr. William A. Robeson of the London School of Economics and published by Oxford University Press.)

Establishment of industrial and agricultural slavery by the Nazi Party in Germany and the conquered countries indicates more clearly than any other action the underlying aims and philosophy of the Hitler government.

Before 1933, Germany was one of the most progressive countries in the world so far as the position of organized labor was concerned. After the Great War of 1914-18 striking advances were made in German industrial relations; a vast extension took place in the scope of collective bargaining; the works councils enabled employees to safeguard and uphold the rights of workers in a new and unprecedented manner; labor courts gave representatives of the workers an equal share with employer's representatives in the judicial determination of industrial disputes; while the conciliation machinery did much to promote the peaceful settlement of large-scale conflicts. Trade unions were, moreover, entrusted with important functions in the administration of the social insurance system.

At every point the right of organized workers to be represented by men of their own choosing was recognized; the force of law was given to rights previously non-existent or existing only precariously here and there as a matter of practice; the manifest aim of the State was to promote freedom and responsibility for workers, and to assist in the development of industrial democracy.

Industrial relations engaged the attention of the Nazi Government shortly after it took over the country. Hitler became Chancellor in January 1933. On May 2, the Nazis seized all trade-union buildings arrested all union leaders, and confiscated all trade-union property. In the following month the Social Democratic party was suppressed and the few remaining leaders arrested. In July formation of all new parties was forbidden. From that moment the German labor movement was liquidated and Germany no longer has any working-class organization in the accepted meaning of the term.

In January 1934 the Nazis promulgated the "Act for the organization of national labor' containing the leading principles of the order. This statute repealed eleven Acts and Orders containing almost the whole mass of labor law passed since 1918.

The first part of the National Labor Act deals with the leader of the establishment and the confidential council. In each business establishment the owner of the undertaking, as leader (or Fuhrer) and the salaried and wage-earning employees as his followers or vassals (Gefolgschaft), are directed to 'work together for the furtherance of the purposes of the establishment and for the benefit of the nation and the State in general." There are several exhortatory provisions of this kind which have no precise meaning and legal significance whatever.

The proprietor of a business is transformed into its Fuhrer, but the change is merely verbal. The Act states that the leader is to make decisions for his followers in all matters affecting the establishment. He is directed to promote their welfare, and they in turn are bidden to be loyal to him as fellow members of the works community. The owner, or directors of a company, may appoint a person taking a responsible part in the management to represent him or them.

In establishments employing not less than twenty persons Vertrauens-manner (confidential men) are to be appointed from among the followers to advise the leader. Under his presidency they constitute the 'confidential council' of the works or business.

The size of the confidential council varies from two to ten persons, according to the magnitude of the undertaking. A confidential man must be not less than twenty-five years old. He must have worked in the undertaking for at least a year and have been engaged in the same occupation at least two years. He must belong to the German Labor Front. He must, moreover, be 'characterized by exemplary human qualities, and guaranteed to devote himself unreservedly at all times to the National State.' He must, in short, be a complete Nazi.

That this is the obvious intention is made clear by the method of appointment. The Act required that once a year the leader of the establishment should draw up a list of confidential men in agreement with the chairman of the Nazi 'cell' or party unit in the business. The faithful vassals were then supposed to have the privilege of voting for or against the list by ballot. If the works Fuhrer and the local Nazi chairman could not agree on the persons to be nominated, or if the followers failed to approve the list, the Labor Trustee—a State official of whom more will be said later—was authorized to appoint the confidential council.

Even this slight opportunity given by the original Act for the workers to register approval or disapproval of the list of persons nominated for the confidential council was soon withdrawn. Since 1935 there have been no further 'elections,' and the confidential men who then held office have been continued in their positions ever since.

The functions of a confidential council are vastly different from those performed by a negotiating organ in countries where workers are free to appoint their own representatives to bargain or cooperate with the employer or his association. The all-important questions of wages and hours of work are removed from its jurisdiction.

On National Labor Day (May 1) the members of the confidential council are required to take a solemn oath before the followers 'to perform the duties of their office exclusively for the benefit of the establishment and of the nation as a whole, setting aside all private interests, and to set an example to the members of the establishment by the life which they lead and the way in which they perform their duties.' This ceremony amounts to no more than an attempt to overcome conflict of interests between employer and employees by meaningless phrases. But within each industrial or commercial firm there is also a conflict of interest between the employees, who desire a higher rate of wages, and the employer, who seeks a higher rate of profit or increased earnings of management. No mouthing of verbal formulae emphasizing the works community and the subordination of private interests to the common welfare will abolish this conflict so long as the objective conditions which produce it are unchanged and there is no objective change of this kind in Nazi Germany.

The confidential council is to be convened when necessary by the leader of the firm or at the request of half the confidential men. The office is an honorary one, and terminates when the holder of it leaves his employment or resigns. A confidential man may not, however, be dismissed unless economic conditions necessitate the closing of the works or department in which he is employed; or unless he commits misconduct. But he may be removed by the labor trustee on the grounds of his unsuitability in circumstances or person.

The all-powerful labor trustees (Treuhander der Arbeit) are State officials appointed by the Government for large economic areas. They come under the direction of the Minister of Labor. Their task, broadly, is to ensure the maintenance of industrial peace. They are aided immensely in this task by the fact that strikes and lock-outs are not tolerated and although not formally prescribed by law would be instantly suppressed by strong-arm methods; that there are no trade unions; that agitators or even critics of industrial conditions are sent without delay to a concentration camp. But they are given a number of positive powers by which to achieve their statutory purpose. They supervise the formation and activities of the confidential councils; they are authorized to give decisions where an appeal is lodged by a majority of the confidential council against the general conditions of employment formulated by an employer—a power seldom invoked since the confidence men are not the representatives of the workers; they supervise the observance of the factory or workshop rules; they lay down principles guiding the general lines on which factory rules and individual contracts of employment are to be framed. Most important of all, they can lay down wage-rates for all classes of workers. At first their power in this respect was confined to the fixing of minimum rates of remuneration in cases where it was 'urgently needed for the protection of the persons employed in a group of establishments.'

Since 1938, however, a decree promulgated to implement the Four-Year Plan has enabled the labor trustees to fix maximum as well as minimum rates in all branches of industry. Any departure from the scheduled rate is punishable by imprisonment or fine of unlimited amount. On the outbreak of the present war the labor trustee was authorized to lay down employment conditions even for a particular factory or firm. In this way the control over remuneration has passed from the trade union and the employers' association to a non-elective public official; the voluntary collective bargain has been superseded by the coercive wage determination.

The most conspicuous feature of the Nazi regime in the field of industry has been the abolition of unemployment. The number of unemployed when Hitler took office was in the neighborhood of 7 millions, and one of the first aims of his government was to remove this dangerous threat to economic and political stability.

The extent to which industrial servitude and regimentation has been exacted as the price for the elimination of unemployment is either not realized by those who emphasize only the final result or glossed over as though it were merely an irrelevant incident.

The first step was introduction of 'substitute employment' on a large scale. This is work performed not for money wages but for mere maintenance. This was provided through the labor service, the land service, and relief works. There was an average of 800,000 persons engaged in labor of this kind in 1934, and in the spring of that year the number exceeded a million. These people were given maintenance in kind on a subsistence level, often under conditions involving considerable hardship.

In June 1933 a law passed to reduce unemployment, and this indicates the principles on which relief works were supposed to be undertaken almost from the beginning of the Nazi regime. The Minister of Finance was empowered to expend large sums to promote employment. Among the purposes specifically named were repairs and additions to dwelling-houses and buildings used for administrative work; bridges and other public structures; repairs to farm-buildings and dwellings for agricultural settlements; rectification of water-courses; provision of plant for supplying gas, water, and electricity; subterranean construction work undertaken by public authorities. It was expressly declared that unemployed workers engaged in these tasks were not to be regarded as having entered a relation of employment to either the protection or the status of an employee. They were to receive unemployment relief (i. e. unemployment benefit, emergency benefit, or public assistance), vouchers for small sums for the purchase of clothing, linen, and household utensils; and a hot meal on every working day.

The objectives named in the Act were in fact not pursued. The labor made available by it was actually directed almost entirely to rearmament purposes, direct or indirect, including such items as building military roads.

The Government could also order that persons employed in agriculture, or who had been so employed during the previous three years, should not be employed on other work without permission. Furthermore, industrial or commercial firms, or even private persons employing workers who had formerly been agricultural laborers at any time during the preceding three years, were bound to dismiss them when directed to do so. A little later the qualification of three years was removed, and the restriction could then operate to prevent further employment of workers who had been engaged in agricultural pursuits at any time.

Thus there was introduced by the Nazi Government one of the most reactionary measures in the history of the modern world; confinement of men to the soil similar to that which obtained in the Middle Ages, except that whereas in feudal times it was the serf with land of his own who was bound to the soil, in twentieth-century Germany it is the landless agricultural laborer who is not merely bound to the soil but forced to return to the land after he has left it.

The peasant was dealt with by the Hereditary Farms Law of 1933 on similar lines, This Act, which applied to farms not exceeding about 300 acres, prohibited owners from alienating or mortgaging their land. The land had to pass from father to son. More than 5 million persons living on about 700,000 farms —about a third of the agricultural population of Germany—were affected by this law.

Another step in the same direction was the Land Help (Landhilfe) established early in the Hitler regime. The purpose was to settle young unemployed persons on the land. Farmers who engaged such workers received a monthly grant payable out of unemployment insurance funds. The workers themselves received a small allowance in money in addition to their keep. About 160,000 to 180,000 young men and women were set to work on the land in this way. Complaints against the Nazi Land Help indicate to competent observers that its main use is to reduce employment benefit, provide land-owners and farmers with cheap labor and strengthen the machinery of compulsion over the individual.

From 1936 a series of measures were introduced covering the rest of the employed population which were of the utmost importance. The frenzied intensification of military preparations by the Nazi leaders, the decision to speed up the construction of the western fortifications, and the deliberate intention of placing the entire nation on a war footing at a time when Germany was still nominally at peace with her neighbors, led to imposition of a policy which deprived the industrial population of the characteristics of free men. This enslavement of the workers was not caused by any external pressure on Germany. It was adopted deliberately as a settled policy.

In June 1938 a decree empowered the government to require any one to perform work of urgent national importance. This order contained a proviso guaranteeing that those called up should receive not less remuneration than wages formerly earned. In February 1939, a further decree declared that official employment exchanges should have power to requisition the services of all persons resident in German territory for the performance of 'any work which the Commissioner for the Four-Year Plan (Goering) might designate to be of particular importance and urgency. For this purpose private and public employers can be required to release persons in their employment.

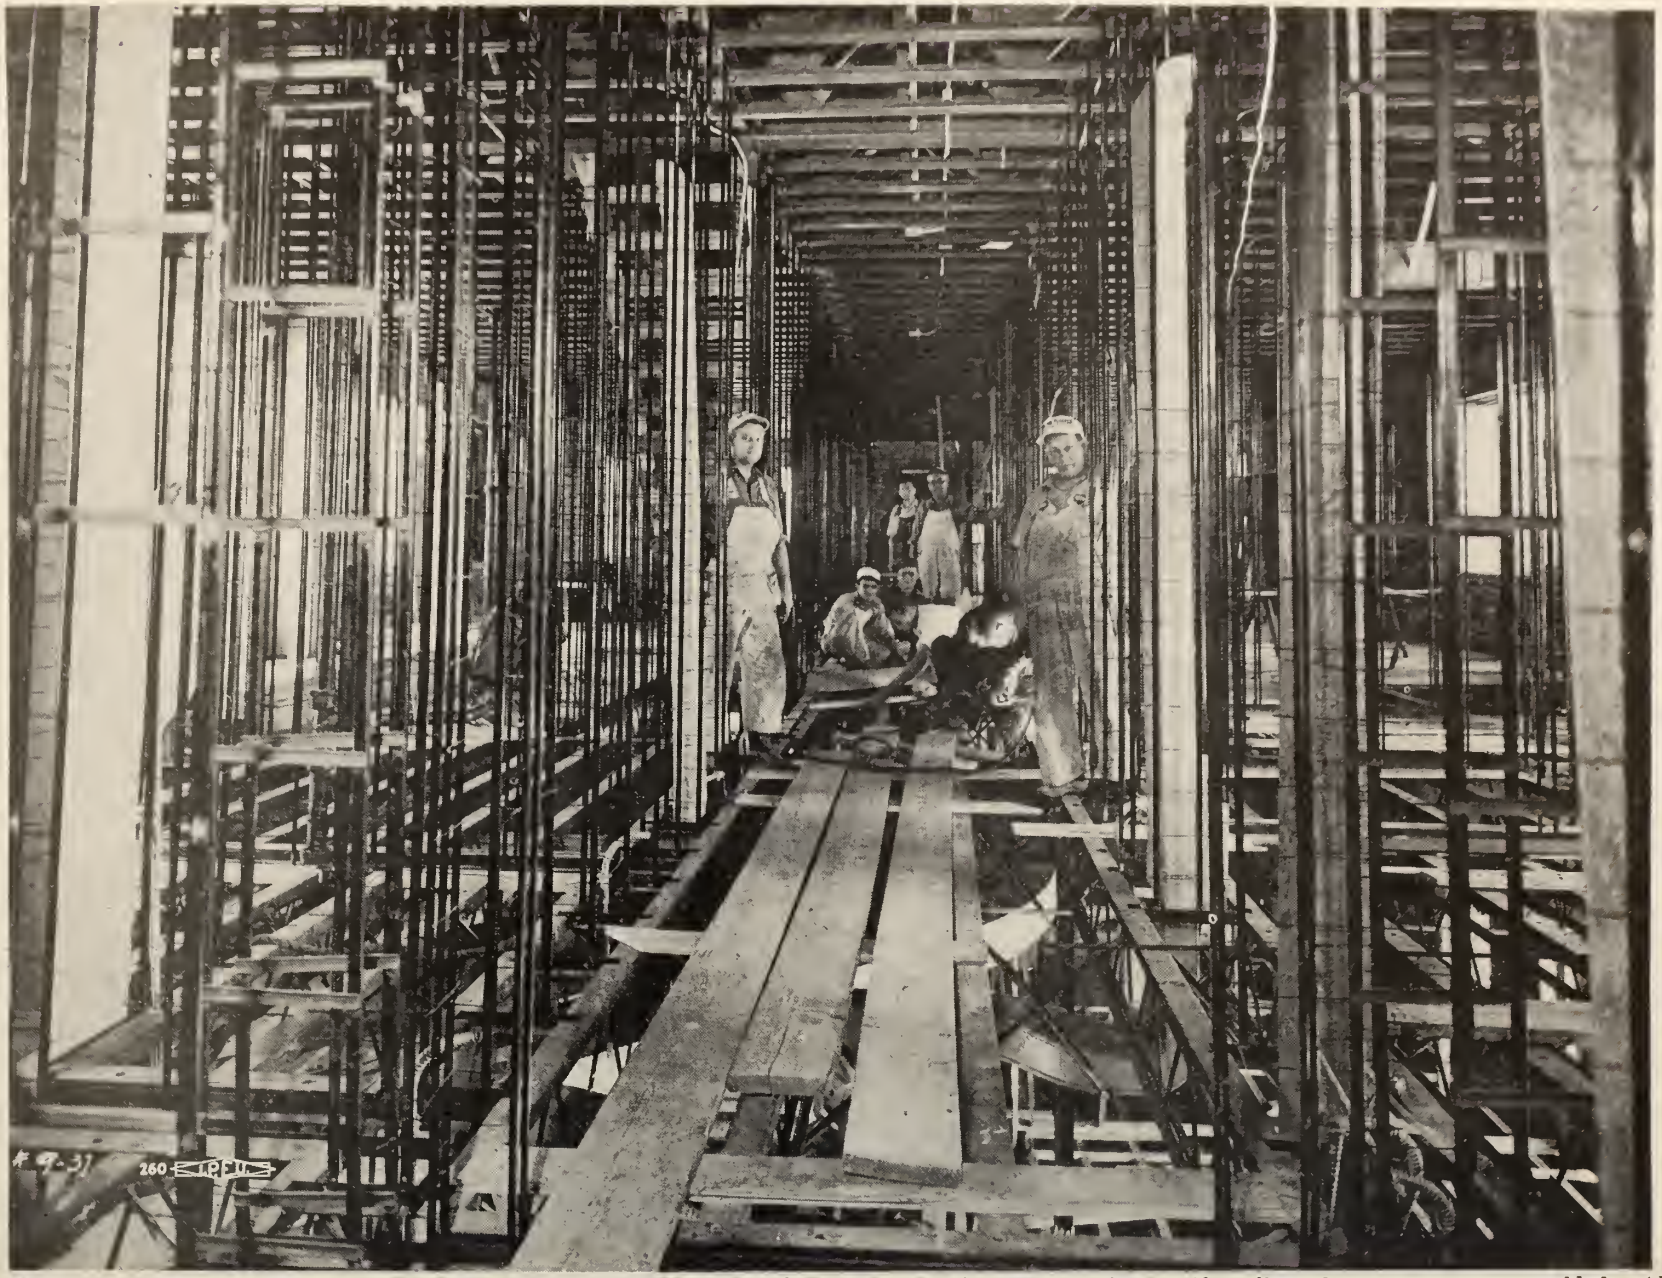

This system is complete industrial conscription. There is no stipulation that a man shall be employed in his own trade or occupation, and it is even expressly provided that workers requisitioned for service may be required to undergo a course of training to prepare them for the compulsory work which they have to perform. There is no limit of time for the period of conscription, no restriction as to the place in which the work is to be carried out, and no provision for enabling married men to be accompanied by their wives and families. Men called up are bound to use their own tools if required.

Workers engaged on compulsory labor have no voice whatever in the determination of their wages, hours, or conditions of employment, although they are often required to serve private firms operating on a profit-making basis. They have to submit to the terms, whatever they may be, 'applicable to the new place of employment'; and a contract of service is deemed to be concluded on the terms stated in the requisitioning order.

The decree of February 1939 introduced another striking change. The Minister of Labor was given power 'for special national reasons' to prohibit employment or termination of it without the consent of the employment exchange. A workman is thus

WELDING OF FURRING AND LATHING BY LOCAL 73 MEMBERS

Members of Local 73, St. Louis, on a job requiring forty-eight thousand welds for furring alone. All splices, braces, etc., were welded. All partitions were double. Studs welded to floor and ceiling steel joists. All electric and other pipes between partitions were welded to them by lathers.

A number of Local 73 members have taken a course in a welding school, where they thoroughly trained in using the various kinds of welding machines and equipment. The local paid one-half the cost of the course, the members the other, with the understanding that they would at all times be available for any welding job, large or small, that would require their services. This means that they would immediately leave whatever job they were on and take care of the welding job. This also gave the men who took up the welding, an opportunity for employment on jobs other members could not work on, because they did not have the experience and could not do the work.

Local unions should have some experienced welders in their locals, so they can have mechanics available to do the work they claim. If they can not do the work, there is no use claiming it. There will be a great deal more welding after the war than ever before, because welding all kinds of materials together has become a universal practice on war work. The availability of a plentiful supply of welders and a tremendous number of welding machines left idle after the war, will facilitate the use of both in building construction.

ATTENTION SECRETARY

We would again kindly request that all of our local secretaries report to the General Secretary-Treasurer the total amount of United States Savings Bonds and Stamps which their local unions have purchased.

Your officials would like to have this information so that we can make a complete report of the total amount purchased, both by our local unions and by the International Union.

Several members listed on OUR HONOR ROLL, while in the military service, have not yet been issued ARMED SERVICE WITHDRAWAL CARDS.

The purpose of an ASWC is to identify a member as being in the military service and to give him the opportunity to have his good standing restored to him, if this card is deposited within 90 days after his discharge from the service.

Do not fail to apply immediately to headquarters for ARMED SERVICE WITHDRAWAL CARDS for any member of your local in any branch of the service.

Within the near future, field office representatives of the Social Security Board will contact our locals for the purpose of giving our members all of the latest information on Social Security matters, especially in regard to the benefits due the wife and children of a covered worker in case of his death. This representative will answer any questions which our members may have in regard to the Social Security program and will render all possible assistance in helping members and their families to obtain any benefits to which they are entitled under the Social Security Act.

CORRECTIONS

Local Union 6 reports that H. Cohen 38135 and M. Scandurra 38728 are not in the armed forces, as they previously notified headquarters and as published in the April issue.

Likewise, Local 126 reports that E. L. Bourassa 25007 is not in the armed forces, as this local had previously been informed by the brother, and these three ASWC have, therefore, been cancelled.

Information has been received that R. G. Culotta 36758 is not in the military service, but out on withdrawal card from Local 143.

A. N. Petersen 23159, L. P. Peterson 5077 and W. A. Thome 36380 were issued Honorary Withdrawal Cards by Local 190 and are not in the armed forces, as published in the April Honor Roll.

Local 301 reported that W. R. Slawson 36159 was honorably discharged from the Army and his name has therefore been dropped from Our Honor Roll.

not at liberty to leave his employment of his own free will if he is dissatisfied with the wages or conditions or because the employer has treated him badly or because a foreman has been oppressive or for any of the multitudinous reasons which lead to a change of situation under free conditions when discontent or friction arose. He cannot take a better or more convenient job, or move from one town to another for domestic reasons. He cannot refuse to accept a situation which he regards as unsatisfactory or unsuitable, for he can be prevented from obtaining employment elsewhere. The employer, on his part, is not able to discharge an unsatisfactory or insufficient or discontented workman unless he can satisfy an official that there is good cause for so doing.

On September 1, 1939, a slight modification was introduced by a further decree. The withdrawal of the right of employers and wage-earning or salaried employees of all grades (including trainees, improvers, and apprentices) to terminate their employment without consent of the Government was reaffirmed, and all notices to quit work given without previous consent were declared null and void. But certain exceptions to the general rule were admitted.

The first ot these is the most important. It has the effect of permitting a dissolution of the employment relation by mutual consent, but of not permitting it without the assent of the State where only one of the parties desires to terminate. Thus, the dissatisfied employer must remain dissatisfied with his workman: and the discontented workmen continue at their work—unless the Government wills otherwise.

This same decree of September 1939 elaborates further the restriction on the engagement of employees laid down in the earlier regulation. It forbids not only business or administrative undertakings of all kinds, but even private householders from engaging workers without the consent of the employment exchange. These provisions are applied also to relatives who regularly assist members of the family, even if they are not employed for wages or salary. Thus, a wife cannot help her husband in his business, nor a son his father, without permission from the State.

Any contravention or evasion of the decree is a criminal offense punishable with fine or imprisonment, or both.

Within five short years the Nazis had adopted a policy of forced labor for any work whether carried out by private firms for profit or by public authorities. They had compelled those who had ever been employed in agricultural labor to return to their former

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

Section 121 L. I. U. constitution provides that: All decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short, concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

E. C. Weston, 29757 vs. Local Union No. 127

Brother Weston appealed against the action of Local 127 in placing a fine of $100.00 against him on the charge of violating Section 139 L. I. U. constitution and Section 12 of the local union's constitution in reference to foremen. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented by both sides, found the appellant guilty of the charges preferred, and the action of Local 127 was therefore sustained.

W. E. Tomblin, 37662 vs. Local Union No. 216

Brother Tomblin appealed against the action of Local 216 in placing a fine of $50.00 against him on the charge of alleged discrimination while acting as foreman in that jurisdiction, also erecting inferior work. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented, found that the charges were unwarranted and the penalty placed was both unfair and unjust, and he therefore ordered it rescinded.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR
Washington, D. C.

April 27, 1942.

To Officers of State Federations of Labor,
City Central Labor Unions and Directly Affiliated Local Unions.
Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Secretary Morgenthau of the United States Treasury Department is calling upon labor to purchase War Bonds and War Savings Stamps to the extent of its financial ability.

I am supplementing this call of the Secretary of the Treasury by appealing to the membership of the American Federation of Labor to agree to a voluntary payroll deduction amounting to ten per cent of earnings for investment in War Bonds and War Savings Stamps. Such action would mean a steady and systematic investment in War Savings Stamps and Bonds, and that in turn would mean a systematic and steady income to the government for the purpose of meeting the heavy war expenses which the government is forced to incur.

A systematic investment in War Savings Stamps and War Bonds, as herein suggested, will help to prevent inflation. Furthermore, it would provide an investment which the workers will need and can use when the post-war period arrives.

A steady investment of ten per cent of the earnings of working men and women in War Savings Stamps and War Bonds would be reasonable and in no way burdensome. It would represent a savings investment and could not be considered as a gift. It would be accepted as labor's voluntary contribution to the war effort.

If all the workers of the nation will voluntarily agree to a payroll deduction of ten per cent of their earnings to be invested in War Savings Stamps and War Bonds, the proceeds will provide an enormous sum of money which the government can use in the prosecution of its war effort.

I am influenced to make this appeal and this recommendation because there are those connected with our government and within the Congress of the United States who favor and are recommending the enactment of legislation providing for compulsory savings and compulsory payroll deductions in order to provide sufficient funds for the government to meet its pressing war needs.

Labor favors voluntary action and is against compulsory action. I feel sure that if labor will respond and will voluntarily agree to a payroll deduction of ten per cent of earnings, to be invested in War Savings Stamps and War Bonds, that compulsory savings legislations will be defeated.

I appeal to the workers to respond favorably to the recommendations I have herein made for a voluntary ten per cent payroll deduction for investment in War Bonds and War Savings Stamps.

The need is urgent. The war effort calls for service and sacrifice of the highest order. Labor is responding and has responded in a noble way. I am sure labor will respond to this appeal as it has responded to other appeals for support of the government in its war effort, made by the representatives of the American Federation of Labor.

Very truly yours,

(S.) WM. GREEN, President,
American Federation of Labor.

THE THING THAT HITLER FEARS

"Our understanding of the civilian's part in total war has grown beyond thinking of it chiefly in terms of air raid precautions," Jonathan Daniels, assistant director in charge of civilian mobilization, OCD, recently stated.

"Our understanding of the hard work, the undramatic work, grows. Nobody knows where or when planes will come, but we see other kinds of war around us constantly. We see war in the undramatic non-protective jobs, dirty jobs, hard jobs. We see it in the labor we can add out of what was leisure, in the materials we can add out of lavishness, in the strategic secrecy we can add by discretion. We see it in the manpower we can add by healtful habits and precautions, and in the courage we can add by understanding. We see it in the strength we build out of merging all our little strengths, all our separate groups and units, into one great common effort.

"The thing Hitler most fears is the morale that grows out of a unity of national purpose and action," Daniels continued. "Do you think civilian morale is a small consideration besides the stark realities of gunfire and torpedoes? Nazi Germany does not think so."

KEEP SILENT.

By Ruth Taylor

"A job well done and a still tongue are the best weapons in the battle against Hitler and his treacherous fifth column," so a Canadian labor paper cautioned its readers recently. When you stop to think this over, it is something we can all take to heart.

We must not only keep our tempers, and our heads—but we must set a guard upon our tongues.

First, let's not criticise before we know the facts. War strategies cannot be decided on in open forums. We have to trust our leaders and take a lot for granted and obey orders. We arm chair generals too often start off with a wrong perspective, and decide what should or should not be done without knowing all the facts. It doesn't cost us anything to keep still, but if we talk too soon or too loudly we are playing right into the hands of those who know that if you undermine a nation's faith in the integrity or intelligence of its leaders, in either civic or military affairs, that nation is weakened to the point of defeat.

These be times that try men's souls. Let us not make them worse by falling in with the disunity program of our enemies. I checked up on one story that came to me recently in exactly the same words from several different people, all of whom were intensely loyal and patriotic. In three cases I traced it back directly to Nazi groups, and in two to Communist party members. You can withstand and disperse any propaganda of hate by seeing to it that it stops with you—that you do not pass it on. That is one task of defense any and all of us can do.

Don't talk out of turn. It is a temptation to attract attention by telling something startling, or by claiming exclusive news—but remember, as they say in the English posters, no ship can be sunk because of what you didn't say. It's not always easy to determine what information would be interesting to the enemy, so the safest way is not to repeat anything you may know about our armed forces, or about the work in your own plant.

IN APPRECIATION

Local 36 and Brother Node Taneyhill 1794 express their sincere thanks to the following local unions for their generosity to the brother, in response to the appeal circulated on his behalf:

occupation. They had confined to the soil those actually engaged in agriculture whether as farmers or as laborers. They had compelled men to leave their jobs, their trades, their homes, their families, their districts, to work in distant places as industrial conscripts for unlimited periods of time. They had prohibited employees from freely leaving their employment and from freely entering into employment. They had deprived workers of any voice in the settlement of wages, hours, and working conditions. They had destroyed not merely trade unions but the very bases on which trade unionism is founded—the right to strike and the right to quit work.

With those oppressive measures riveted upon them the employed masses of German men and women have entered a state of peonage the like of which has not been seen in the countries of Western Europe for centuries.

OUR FAITH

By John J. Buckley

(From The Long Island Messenger)

Not as these sinking in the deepness
Slough of doubt, or storm-tossed sea
No veiled darkness or sleeplessness,
Assurance, Lord we have from Thee
That burdens shall not be the greater
Thy yoke is sweet, it balances all,
And willingly as the partaker
We shall not falter, we shall not fall.

Strengthen our Faith each day and minute
Bind us with Thy chains of Love secure.
Guide straying souls to the Goal Infinite
Lips, heart and life pure and demure
When life is fading and death near stands by,
Our hopes and dreams, Dear Lord attend,
Our final prayer, our last outcry
Lord, Saviour be, our Eternal Guide, and friend.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God in his wisdom to remove from our midst and membership our beloved Brother Myron D. Kenyon, No. 2313, who was a charter member of Lathers Local Union No. 2, who died March 30, 1942.

We humbly submit to the inevitable. Brother Kenyon has always been a member who contributed generously to the welfare of the members, and was a member of the "old school".

He was enrolled through Local 2 in January 1900, and grew up with the organization and promoted our industry.

Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the family and relatives of our deceased brother receive the extended sympathy of Local 2 in their bereavement; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

J. M. Farrar, Secretary-Treasurer
Local Union No. 2

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our beloved Brother Lawrence Hartnett, No. 8610, who passed away April 7, 1942, be it

RESOLVED, That Local Union No. 67, extend its deepest sympathy to the relatives of the deceased; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the charter of this local be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be published in our official journal.

Pat Mullane, Secretary
Local Union No. 67.

WHEREAS, God in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our Brother Charles Edward Whitney, No. 995, at the age of sixty-three years, on March 19, 1942; and

WHEREAS Brother Whitney has been a member of this local union the greater part of the time since 1901 and during that time was a true union man, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local 83, express the deepest sympathy to the family of our departed brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the office of vice president of Local 83, which he held at the time of his death, be left open until 1943, in his honor; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the charter be draped for thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

F. E. Whitney, Secretary
Local Union No. 83.

THAT JOB OF YOURS

By Wm. L. Redding

Let us consider for a moment that job of yours.

It feeds you and clothes you and your family.

It supplies shelter and heat.

At Christmas time, it seems that Santa Claus breaks a path to your door; and in summer it supplies the carfare that takes you on excursions.

That job of yours makes your family respect you.

It earns respect of you from your pals.

It makes you respect yourself.

Without it, you are an outcast—a public charge—a sleeper on park benches—and a down and outer.

It is your best friend. It is the most important thing in all the world.

Without it, you and your dear ones face starvation, want and suffering.

What will you do for that job?

Will you fight for it?

Will you protect it?

Will you play fair with it, and with yourself?

Are you a sleep-walker?

The workman who thinks that the old conditions (which his father knew) still exist is a much mistaken sleep-walker.

You live today in a world of organization.

The grocery store from where you buy your cornmeal and beans is very likely a chain-store, one of the thousands owned by Big Business.

The meat markets where you buy your beefsteak and pork chops is also a chain market.

The drug store which furnishes you pills and liniment is one of a nation-wide organization of stores.

The hardware dealer from which you buy your tools is a member of a big national trades organization, the National Hardware Dealers' Association.

The doctor who attends your sick belongs first to a county, then to a state, then to a national physicians' organization which aims to control the supply and demand of doctors, and lay down rules for the conduct of their business.

Lawyers, real estate dealers, engineers, restaurant and hotel keepers, clothiers, editors, manufacturers, flour-makers and brokers, contractors, bankers and insurance agents all have their business organizations, with common funds built up to look after their interests.

Your employer, most likely, is also organized. By actual count there are more than three hundred employer associations in the United States.

The worker who is going it alone is out of luck. He is like a one-man army trying to oppose well-disciplined battalions. If he continues to go it alone, he is neither playing fair with himself, nor with his job, nor with his family. He is opening himself to attack from every side, and cuts himself off from the cooperation and support of his fellows. The only thing he can do is to join the union of his craft and get in step with progress.

HOW TO BUY OVERALLS

When you shop for overalls, check these features, advises Consumers' Guide, publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division of the Department of Agriculture. Overalls are usually made from denim, twill, covert, or drill. Denim is low cost and good for all around serviceability. The kind that weighs 9.10 ounces per square yard is good for farm work and work around the house. Heavier weights cost more, are heavier but stronger. Lighter weights don't last. Yarn count should be 61 in warp (lengthwise) per inch, 39 in filling (crosswise). Lengthwise breaking strength should be 145 pound, crosswise 58 pounds.

Twills are of harder finer yarns, and are more resistant to friction and rubbing strain and to dust, oil, and grease. Covert cloth, like twill is a "dressier" material. Drill, worn by soldiers in warm weather, costs more than denim, wears well.

Always ask for colorfast guarantees in denim and look for labels guaranteeing against shrinkage. Stitching should be double or triple, with reinforcement at crotch, in the seat, at strap joinings and at pockets. Seams should be lapped, with 10 or 12 stitches to the inch.

WHAT TIME IS IT?

When it is noon in Washington on any given day, the following times are observed in other war centers:

San Francisco—9 a. m.

Hawaii—6:30 a. m.

Singapore—Midnight (12 hours ahead).

Hong Kong—1 a. m. (next day).

Toyko—2 a. m. (next day).

Manila—2 a. m. (next day, under daylight saving since Dec. 15).

Vladivostok—3 a. m. (next day).

Moscow—8 p. m.

Berlin—7 p. m. (daylight saving).

Rome—Same as Berlin.

London—6 p. m. (daylight saving).

A LIFETIME JOB

The famous Firth of Forth Railroad Bridge in Scotland has a permanent staff of 30 painters who spend the whole of their lives painting the bridge. They start at one end and do not stop until they reach the other; then they start all over again. Fifty tons of iron paint and three years are needed to cover the structure from end to end. No ordinary painter can be a Forth Bridge painter; he must come to the Bridge as a boy and be reared on its giddy heights When these men die, their sons step up to take their places.

WIT AND HUMOR

A successful young lawyer in Syracuse, New York, paid ardent court to a bright young lady, manifesting his regard by showering her with many beautiful and valuable gifts. Months passed without any expression of matrimonial intentions from the generous swain, and the young lady's mother became impatient.

"I'm afraid you can't expect much from that young man," she remarked to her daughter.

"I'm satisfied, mother," the young woman answered with a confident smile. "You know lawyers, and lawyers always begin contracts with 'Know all men by these presents'."

———o———

He: "In front of dental display window) "I believe I'll get myself a set of teeth like those over there."

She: "Hush, don't you know it's impolite to pick your teeth in public."

———o———

Bride: "I have a confession to make, dear, I can't cook."

Groom: "Don't let that worry you. I write poetry for a living. There won't be anything to cook."

———o———

A lovely girl with red hair entered the car and sat down beside a youth.

Youth (edging away)—I must not get too close or I shall catch fire.

Girl—Don't be alarmed; green wood never catches fire.

———o———

It is the little things that often mar a woman's married life. Socks, for instance, are always a darned nuisance.

———o———

A meek-little man was in court for a minor offense.

Judge: "Were you ever in trouble before?"

Meek Man: "Well, er-er, I kept a library book too long once and was fined ten cents."

———o———

A crowd had gathered round a man who was selling tins of a corn cure. After a long speech on its qualities he asked if anyone in the crowd had bought a tin before.

A voice from the back of the crowd shouted, "Yes, I got a box last week!"

"Thank you sir," said the salesman. "And did you find it does all I say?"

"Yes, sir—and more! My missus used it to polish a bureau and it took off all the knobs!"

One can't help admiring persistence in the pursuit of an object even though indiscreetly used.

A read-headed boy once applied for a position in a messenger office. The manager after hiring him sent him on an errand in one of the most fashionable districts. Half an hour later the manager was called to the phone and the following conversation took place:

"Have you a red-headed boy working for you?"

"Yes."

"Well, this is the janitor at the Oakland apartments, where your boy came to deliver a message. He insisted on coming in the front way and was so persistent that I was forced to draw a gun."

"Good heavens! You didn't shoot him, did you?"

"No, but I want my gun back," said the janitor.

———o———

Barber—Wet or dry, sir?

Customer—Comb my hair and never mind about my politics.

———o———

A bob-haired, scantily-clad flapper was making her application at the pearly gates, and St. Peter was questioning her.

"What was your occupation?" he inquired.

"Men called me a gold digger," she tittered.

"I'm sorry, but on account of the paving, we can't let you in here."

———o———

Lieutenant—What would you do if the appeal came for volunteers?

Recruit—I would step aside and let the volunteers pass.

———o———

First Actor—"The hotel clerk just handed me a bill for $10 for our board, two days. Can you beat it?"

Second Actor—"Sure, if I can get my trunk out of the window."

———o———

Mrs. Nuwedd—"You promised me before we were married that you would never look at another woman but me."

Nuwedd—"I thought you understood that was only a campaign promise."

———o———

"I'm thinking of starting a picture theatre," said the lonely father.

"Well, there's good money in that business."

"It isn't money I'm after. But I would like to see my wife and children once in a while."

HE WOULD HAVE NO BOSS

In a certain city there lived a young man who was tired of working for other people. And he said to himself, lo, I grow weary of being told, do this or do not do that! Henceforth I will be my own master. And first I will go forth into the world and call upon men who are their own masters, to learn how it is done.

So he called at the office of a great corporation and sent in his card to the vice president, whose name is famous and whose salary is large.

"Sir, I envy you," said the young man, "because you have arrived. You have no boss. I have come to ask you how it is done."

"I will tell you," said the vice president; but at that moment a lovely young lady opened the door and said: "The president wishes to see you."

The vice president nodded obediently and rose from his desk at once. The young man followed him into the office of the president. "Here I shall see the real stuff," reflected the young man. "Surely the president has no boss."

But they had hardly arrived before another lovely young lady entered the room and said: "Pardon, sir, but the chairman of the board wishes to see you." At once the president went out; and again the young man followed.

"Who is this chairman who sends for the president?" asked the young man. "I will see him; surely he must be IT."

So he followed the president into the office of the chairman, and saw there a gray-haired little man bent over a desk and writing on a piece of yellow paper with a stubby pencil.

"Ah, Henry," said the little gray-haired man, addressing the president, "help me on this point will you? I am making my annual report to the stockholders, and we must get it right."

At which the young man fled out of the office, saying to himself: "Truly, industry is a servitude in which everyone hath masters. I will look elsewhere." So he went to Washington and called at the White House, desiring to see the President of the United States.

As he waited in an outer office, behold, a mailman entered and poured on a table great packages of mail which alert secretaries did open, piling the letters neatly in piles.

The interested young man asked, "What are these letters?" To which the secretary replied:

"They are communications to the President from the voters of the United States, telling him what he should do."

The young man was discouraged, and picking up an ancient book, he happened upon this verse: "And whosoever of you will be the chiefest, shall be servant of all."

And a great light dawned on the mind of the young man. And he said to himself: "This is something I had not understood—that the more people a man serves, the greater he is. For the laborer serves only one boss, but the president of a corporation serves his stockholders, who are thousands; and the President of the United States serves a hundred million and is chiefest of all.

"Therefore I will leave off seeking the man who hath no boss and seek to get myself many bosses. For the number of those for whom a man works is the measure of his success." —Bruce Barton, in the Stone Cutters Journal.

ORGANIZING REQUIRES REAL CONSECRATION

Many well meaning but inexperienced trade-unionists seem to think that all that is necessary to get their fellow workers into unions is to tell them a union exists and how to get in touch with the secretary. Even some organizers act upon this principle. But in practice, the problem doesn't work out that way. There are many difficulties of human nature and economic situations that must be overcome before groups of workers become trade unionists.

What most people do not understand is that the change from non-union relationships to trade union relationships is about as fundamental as a religious change in personal living. A trade-unionist organizes his thinking about life and work to accord with a philosophy of personal initiative and of the organized work group as a functional part of industry. He goes about things with a very different understanding of relationships and responsibilities from what the non-unionist has.

The problem of organizing is to help the wage-earner to see the trade union point of view, to show him the advantage of union membership and to get him to take decisive action.

The job of organizing requires insight into human nature, understanding of industry, a knowledge of how men can live together with mutual advantage and steady reflection and appreciation. Most of all the work of an organizer requires real consecration and devotion to the cause of humanity.

"Let us show Hitler and his fellow dictators that the spirit of patriotism burns clear and unquenchable in the hearts of all Americans. Let our enemies see and let them fear. For that spirit cannot be dimmed by treacherous attacks in the night. It cannot be extinguished by blackouts. It cannot be shaken by terrioristic bombing of civilians. It grows in defeat and it lights the way to eventual and inevitable triumph.

"And let us also remember at every moment in the months ahead, as the struggle grows ever more bitter and we are called upon to make new sacrifices, the pledge we have taken to our flag. Let us remember that we are one nation indivisible. And let us remember that we are fighting for liberty and justice for ourselves and for all."

10% of Everyone's Pay Invested in WAR SAVINGS BONDS Every Pay Day!

WHEN the bugler sounds the call to action in the Army, you can bank on it, American soldiers are in there fighting, ready to die that America, your free America, can live!

Today there is another call. Sharp and clear, it sounds in every office, plant, and factory in the land. It is an urgent call for dollars—BILLIONS OF DOLLARS TO GIVE OUR FIGHTING MEN THE PLANES AND GUNS THEY NEED FOR VICTORY.

We can raise the needed amount of money only if 10 percent of each company's gross pay roll is put into War Savings Bonds. Some workers may have to set aside less than 10 percent of their wages—others can easily set aside much more. But every worker can put some money in War Bonds every pay day through the Pay-Roll Savings Plan. If this plan (approved by organized labor) is not in effect in your company, ask your employer to start it. It is the one sure way of putting your patriotism into ACTION. If you are already enrolled, increase your savings as much as you can, as fast as you can.

Remember, you are not asked to give this money, but to lend it. Your money will come back to you with interest—$4 for every $3 when Bonds are held to maturity. Remember, planes and tanks are coming off assembly lines now. They have got to be paid for now. This is the time for action on War Savings. For Victory!

WAGE STABILIZATION AGREEMENT

Between the Building and Construction Trades Department and Six Government Contracting Agencies

A copy of this agreement has been sent to all our local unions by General President McSorley. We are publishing this in order that our members will have the opportunity to read it over and become better informed as to the conditions of this agreement.

To All Local Unions May 27, 1942

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am herewith enclosing you a copy of communication from the President of the Building and Construction Trades Department, containing Administrative Order of the Secretary of Labor in reference to an agreement entered into between the Building and Construction Trades Department and six government contracting agencies, which have charge of the building and construction program for the government.

The provision of the agreement stabilizing wages on and after July 1, 1942, for the duration of the war is herein set forth.

I trust that your local union will be governed accordingly and make any wage adjustment that you have in mind between now and July 1, 1942, as the wages on record of that date will be the prevailing rate of wages for the duration of the war, with the exception of those conditions contained in paragraphs a, b and c, of the Administrative Order.

Trusting your local union will be governed accordingly, I am

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) WM. J. McSORLEY,
General President.

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT

May 22, 1942

To All Presidents of the National and International Unions and to Secretaries of Local Building and Construction Trades Councils Affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am enclosing herewith copy of an Administrative Order obtained from the U. S. Department of Labor today, May 22, 1942, stabilizing wage rates in the the building and construction industry. We are notifying you of this Order by direction of the Executive Council of the Building and Construction Trades Department.

It will be noted that this Administrative Order establishes a Wage Adjustment Board for the building and construction industry. The Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor will be represented on this Board by John P. Coyne, President of the Building and Construction Trades Department; Harry C. Bates, President of the Bricklayers, Masons & Plasterers' International Union, and Robert Byron, President of the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association. Alternates selected were: M. A. Hutchinson, First Vice President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; Edward J. Brown, President of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and John E. Rooney, President of the Operative Plasterers' & Cement Finishers' International Association.

Wage rates in effect as of July 1, 1942, with the exception of those coming under the provisions of paragraphs a, b and c, of the Order, will remain in effect for the duration of the war.

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) JOHN P. COYNE,
President.

WAGE STABILIZATION AGREEMENT

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

May 22, 1942

The Building Trades Unions of the American Federation of Labor with 1,500,000 members today voluntarily agreed to stabilize wages for the duration as an action to implement the President's appeal to prevent inflation. Their representatives, meeting with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, declared they took action because they recognized "the danger of drastic inflation due to rapid and uncontrolled increases in prices of commodities and to assist in effectuating the seven points outlined by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress."

The action was formalized in the following memorandum of agreement between the War and Navy Departments, Federal Works Administration, National Housing Administration, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Maritime Commission, the Government agencies in charge of war building and construction work and the unions:

"It is agreed between the contracting agencies of the United States government and the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor that, on all war construction work done for or financed by the United States (except non-Federal construction where State laws govern wage rates) in the continental United States, the wage rates paid under collective bargaining agreements as of July 1, 1942, shall remain in full force and effect for a period of at least one year after that date and, subject to annual renewal of this agreement for the duration of the war, except as hereafter provided, all renewals of collective bargaining agreements will contain the rates paid as of July 1, 1942.

"The rates paid under collective bargaining agreements on July 1, 1942, will be subject to revision in cases where those rates are inadequate because:

(a) they were fixed at a time so long before July 1, 1942, as to be out of line with the general wages prevailing;

(b) they were applicable in a locality where changing conditions in the building construction industry require a revision of wage rates; or

(c) they do not sufficiently take into account any abnormal change in conditions.

"A wage Adjustment Board will be created to determine whether a wage adjustment should be made under this paragraph and to fix the amount of any adjustment which is made. In its determination it shall give consideration to existing collective bargaining agreements."

An administrative order, setting up the Wage Adjustment Board was immediately signed by Secretary Perkins with the approval of President Roosevelt.

It follows:

"To accomplish the purpose of the Act of March 3, 1931, as amended by the Act of August 30, 1935, and of Section 1 (a) of the Act of January 30, 1942 (Pub. No. 421, 77th Cong.), and to provide machinery for the wage stabilization agreement of the International and National Labor organizations in the building construction industry, it is hereby ordered:

"1. The Wage Adjustment Board for the Building Construction Industry, hereafter called the Board, is established in the United States Department of Labor. The Board shall consist of a chairman, to be appointed from the Department of Labor and of three representatives of the contracting agencies of the United States and of three representatives of the Labor organizations in the building construction industry to be named by me from time to time. A majority of members of the Board shall constitute a quorum.

"2. The Board shall have power to investigate and to recommend an adjustment of wage rates under the above agreement of the labor organizations in the building construction industry. It shall consider requests for wage adjustments presented by local labor organizations with the approval of the international or national labor organization, and, when submitted through and approved by the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. It shall have power to make the necessary rules of procedure. The Board's recommendation with respect to a request for wage adjustment shall be transmitted to the Secretary of Labor, to the Building Trades Department, and to any interested contracting agency of the United States.

"3. Upon request of the Board, the Solicitor of the Department of Labor shall conduct an investigation, hold any necessary hearings, and make a report to the Board as to the prevailing rates of wages for any or all classes of laborers and mechanics in the building construction industry in any locality, or as to the relation of such wage rates to those generally prevailing in the industry, trade or locality, or as to the relation of such wage rates to the cost of living.

"4. In determining the prevailing rates of wages under the Act of March 3, 1931, as amended by the Act of August 30, 1935, I shall, unless compelling evidence to the contrary be presented, accept as prevailing those wage rates which were prevailing on July 1, 1942, unless adjusted by recommendation of the Board under paragraph 2 hereof."

Unions belonging to the Building Trades Department are: International Association of Heat & Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers; International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron Ship Builders & Helpers of America; Bricklayers, Masons & Plasterers' International Union of America; International Association of Bridge—Structural & Ornamental Iron Workers; United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of of America; International Union of Elevator Constructors; International Union of Operating Engineers; The Granite Cutters International Association of America; International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers', Union of America; International Union of Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers; International Association of Marble, Slate & Stone Polishers, Rubbers & Sawyers, Tile & Marble Helpers & Terrazzo Helpers; Sheet Metal Workers' International Association; Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators & Paperhangers of America; Operative Plasterers' & Cement Finishers' International Association of the United States and Canada; United Association of Plumbers & Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada; United Slate, Tile & Composition Roofers, Damp & Waterproof Workers' Association; Journeymen Stonecutters' Association of North America; and International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffers, Warehousemen & Helpers of America.

Letters Received in Favor of Postponing Our Convention

Quincy, Ill.
June 8, 1942.

Mr. Terry Ford, Sec.-Treas. L. I. U.
Cleveland, Ohio
Dear Sir and Brother:

I would like you to print the letter outlined below in the June issue of The Lather, which expresses the views of Local 336 and has been approved by them.

Fraternally yours,
G. L. Pierce,
Secretary & Business Agent

To Members of the International Union of Wood,
Wire and Metal Lathers
Dear Sirs and Brothers:

In a letter mailed to local unions some time ago, 9th Vice President Smith of Cleveland, Ohio stated in part: "I believe that good judgment should discourage the unnecessary expenditure of monies in attending the convention or in the entertainment of delegates while there." His letter was mailed out before the matter of a referendum vote on convention postponement was referred to the rank and file. We agree with that statement. He also stated in another paragraph: "The argument is that the convention should be postponed on account of the war." That is correct. To illustrate the fact that his own local union in Cleveland agrees with that argument, we quote a paragraph from an article appearing in a Cleveland newspaper, which prints the news of local unions. In reviewing activities of Local 2 of Cleveland, this paragraph states: "barring the absolute necessity for war reasons, there can be no possible argument or excuse for such action (postponement) this year." Again we agree with the sentiment of Local 2 as expressed in that paragraph. Bro. Smith's name appears at the bottom of Local 2 news, indicating he submitted this to the newspaper.

There are many reasons why the convention should be postponed for the duration, practically all of them arising from the fact that we are engaged in a world-wide struggle for the preservation of our republic and our way of life. If we lose the war, there will be no future referendums on any questions, because there will be no unions.

In addition to the above, we desire to point out the fact that Local 74 of Chicago, with a membership of more than 600 members, recently held a SPECIAL MEETING TO VOTE ON THE ADVISABILITY OF HOLDING THE CONVENTION. ALL THEIR MEMBERS WERE NOTIFIED OF THE MEETING BY POST CARD. This is what happened: The vote was 108 in favor and 11 opposed to holding the convention. A total of 108 votes cast in favor of the convention out of more than 600. And remember this is the convention city. What an enthusiastic and overwhelming vote. Approximately one-sixth of the membership voted in favor of the convention. WHAT ABOUT THE OTHER FIVE-SIXTHS? HOW DO THEY FEEL ABOUT IT? Certainly, if they were in favor of holding the convention, they would have appeared at the special meeting to vote. The result can only be interpreted as indicating their disinterestedness or their opposition.

The 9th Vice President, by his own statements and his local union's action, clearly indicates that postponement is advisable and the action of Local 74 indicates the same thing. Their own statements and actions are an excellent barometer of the real state of affairs or sentiment on this question. They say actions speak louder than words and here we have action in full bloom.

We ask local unions to take these facts into consideration, along with the many other good reasons for postponement submitted by other local unions and printed in THE LATHER.

Do not let anyone mislead you. Study the facts as they actually exist and remember, we are in the midst of a terrible war. This is one time the rank and file members have an opportunity to vote as individuals on a question of great importance to them all. Each member can study the facts and vote his honest opinion.

We honestly believe postponement is advisable because of the war and we ask each member of the L. I. U. to carefully weigh the arguments in favor of such postponement.

Fraternally yours,
Lathers Local Union 336, Quincy, Ill.

To The Members of The Wood, Wire & Metal
Lathers International Union
Greetings!

Several weeks ago, a letter was mailed out to local unions by Ninth Vice President Smith, in which he stated that an attempt was going to be made to postpone the next convention of the L. I. U. and urged local unions to write President McSorley protesting against a referendum vote of the rank and file to determine whether or not they desired to hold the convention. I can not understand his attitude. Personally I know of no more a democratic method of finding out what the individual members of the L. I. U. think about this or any other subject, than a referendum vote, in which they have an opportunity to express their own personal opinion on the matter. That is why the referendum law was placed in the L. I. U. Constitution. Surely, a referendum vote of all the members is more democratic than the vote of a small number of delegates attending a convention, especially on such an important question, where each delegate has only a single vote, regardless of the number of members he represents.

The next convention city and time of holding same was determined by approximately 150 delegates to the last convention held in New York City. This is less than 2% of the total membership of our International Union. Faced with the greatest crisis in the history of our Nation and our International Union and the many problems it presents, there should have been no objection to a referendum vote from any thinking person. Our Nation is engaged in a world-wide struggle for its very existence. If we lose the war, there will be no more unions. I believe the members of the rank and file will patriotically vote in a vast majority for postponement.

Many of our members that would have been delegates to the next convention are or will be in the armed services of the Nation by next September, many in foreign lands fighting for you and me. Those brothers, many of them, will never return. Are we going to deprive those fortunate enough to come back of the opportunity to participate? I feel sure we will not.

The Government now discourages travel of all kinds and by convention time, may prohibit all travel, except for war purposes. Why vote to hold a convention, unless delegates are certain of getting there? With re-election of our present officials assured, what sense is there in the International Union and local unions spending a huge sum of money holding a convention to send a few delegates on a week's vacation, at the expense of the other members who must stay at home and will probably be unemployed and have a difficult time making ends meet and holding their local unions together?

I recently attended a meeting of the New York State Council of Lathers, in New York City, which was attended by delegates from the New York State locals and representatives of lathers from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the New England States, Missouri, and others. The combined membership of the unions represented there totals more than half the entire membership of the International Union. It might interest our rank and file membership to know that delegates of the above mentioned organizations, together with about twenty other State and District Councils, have already acted favorably on the postponement issue. All of the above mentioned organizations patriotically favor postponement of the convention, because they believe that winning this war is the first order of business. If we lose the war, we are all out of business. Representatives of the above organizations, many of them old in the service of labor and most of whom like the undersigned attend conventions as delegates, like to attend them and mingle with the other delegates from all parts of the nation at the proper time and place. But when this nation is struggling for its very life is no time to hold the convention, unless the destiny of the International Union is to be decided by a convention, which of course is not the case.

Remember that the letter sent out by Vice President Smith was his own personal opinion, sent out before a referendum vote was decided upon. He tried to stop a referendum vote of the rank and file. This letter I am writing is written after representatives of more than half our International membership have expressed their opinions.

It will cost our International Union approximately fifteen thousand dollars to hold a convention. Those favoring postponement feel that this money can be spent in a more constructive manner by placing organizers in the field to protect our jurisdictional claims and in an effort to discourage further use of Dry Wall, Wall Board, and the erection of Prefabricated and Demountable Houses, which has caused thousands of our members to become unemployed. This is a vital problem of great importance to every member of our International Union and its solution is of much greater importance than holding a convention, while the toughest war this nation has ever been engaged in is raging in every part of the world.

We ask the rank and file to read the numerous honest, sensible and practical reasons why the convention should be postponed, as outlined in THE LATHER, our official monthly journal. Read them carefully and compare them with the weak, apologetic, imaginary reasons given by a small minority as reasons why we should hold a convention. If you do, it is a safe bet that the overwhelming majority will quickly realize the desirability of postponing the convention and the fallacy of wasting International and Local Union funds for a convention that can answer no constructive purpose.

Yours For a Convention After The War,

John J. Vohden, Jr.
Business Agent Local Union 102.

Asbury Park, N. J.,
May 17, 1942.

Mr. Terry Ford
Dear Sir and Brother:

We, Local 346, of Asbury Park, N. J., do not want the convention held this year. I called a special meeting for this and this is the verdict.

Fraternally yours,
Otto C. Fowler, Secy.,
Local Union 346.

A STATEMENT OF REASONS WHY NINE VICE-PRESIDENTS VOTED IN FAVOR OF SUBMITTING THE QUESTION OF POSTPONEMENT OF THE LATHERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION CONVENTION FOR THE DURATION OF THE WAR TO A REFERENDUM VOTE

None of us can foresee or foretell the future. We do not know what is going to happen to our industry after the war. There are signs, however, which indicate that we might see a complete revolution in the economic affairs of our nation, especially in our own industry.

Today, we have mass production of pre-fabricated and demountable houses. Thousands of homes and other buildings are using Dry Wall, Gypsum Wall Board, and other substitutes for lathing and plastering, and thousands of prefabricated and demountable houses are being built. Stores offices and many other types of buildings are having Acoustical, Wood, Metal and Insulating materials installed as substitutes for lath and plaster. Just as the last war introduced Technology or mass production and standardization, which practically transformed our industrial world and lowered production costs through the new speed-up methods, so this war may result in newer and cheaper and better substitutes for the present Dry Wall and Wall Board plasterless construction.

Our government is spending several hundreds of millions of dollars subsidizing new Aluminum, Plastics and other materials producing plants in its war efforts. After the war, aluminum, plastics and other products will be produced in large volume at small cost—a fraction of their cost in the past—because they now have the plants for this purpose. Such materials can and will be used more and more in building construction. The only thing that prevented their use on a large scale in the past was their prohibitive cost, artificially created and maintained by monopolistic manufacturers. These materials can be used for the practical elimination of lathing and plastering in homes, stores, offices, etc., and the Gypsum Companies are fully aware of the fact. When these things come to pass, it will be a more appropriate time to hold a convention than it is today. We may then be faced with not merely substitutes for Lathing and Plastering, but their Practical Elimination From the Market, which would force our members to learn a new trade and seek employment in other fields. Then we will really have a problem on our hands and something of supreme importance to us all to discuss. We will need the best minds in our industry then to try and find a solution to this and many other problems. Then self-preservation will demand a spirit of cooperation and self-sacrifice if we wish to preserve our industry. Then will be the psychological time for a convention in order to plan our future. We cannot plan ahead now, because we do not know fully the obstacles we will have to overcome, after the war.

There is not one single good reason why a convention should be held next September. There are, however, many very important and vital reasons of interest to each individual member of the L. I. U. why it should be postponed.

A convention will cost the International Union approximately fifteen thousand dollars. With re-election of present officers assured, there is no good reason to hold a convention. It would be a total waste of International Union funds. This money could more appropriately be spent in promoting the interests of our trade and members by combatting the substitutions for lath which have flooded the market, or this money could be preserved until after the war to combat present and new innovations in our industry which result in the elimination of Lathers from building construction.

Delegates to a convention would spend many times the amount spent by the International Union, all of it money accumulated by months and years of assessments or out of the local union treasuries. It is much more sensible to keep this money in local union treasuries in order to maintain their standing by paying local current expenses, where it will benefit all the members, and not spend it to send a delegate to a convention that should not be held in war time.

Passenger travel on railroads, planes, buses and private automobiles probably will be restricted by next September to persons on Government business. If a convention is held, many elected delegates will be unable to get there, due to such restrictions. Why waste local union funds taking a chance on such an uncertainty, when no good can be accomplished, even if your delegate does reach the convention?

If you vote to postpone this convention and the convention is postponed, you can have anything important acted upon that is not covered by the International Constitution, by a referendum vote, if it is of sufficient importance that it cannot wait until the next convention. Certainly the vote of the rank and file to determine the holding of a convention or on any other question is a most Democratic procedure, because every member of the L. I. U. is accorded the privilege of voting his sentiments.

In addition to the above, we took under consideration many other reasons that make it advisable to postpone the convention, among them the following:

FOR PATRIOTIC REASONS: The U. S. Government is doing everything it can to discourage traveling, to make means of transportation available to troops and war supplies. Another patriotic reason for postponement is the fact that many of our members who had expected to be delegates to our next convention will be in the armed forces, and it is poor sportsmanship to hold a convention when these expectant delegates, who are doing our fighting, are at the battle fronts. Many will never return, but for those who do, we should wait and give them an opportunity to participate in the convention.

CRISIS: This Nation and all of us, are faced with the greatest crisis in our lives. If we lose the war, there will be no more unions, and no more conventions. We are in the midst of an unparalleled emergency, and postponement is indicated.

LIVING COSTS, TAXES, ETC.: Higher living costs, income taxes and other financial burdens created by the war, must be met by our members in the future, while at the same time their opportunities for employment at their trade is becoming more limited each day. Our members' incomes, to meet the increased financial responsibilities, are rapidly shrinking. Local union finances, as a result, suffer. Under such conditions it will be impossible for the vast majority of local unions to send delegates to a convention, and it would be unjust to expect them to make further sacrifices in order to do so.

PRIORITIES: Due to priorities, our industry has suffered a severe blow. Thousands of our members are idle, and each day more lose their jobs. Substitutions for lath and plaster have displaced thousands of our members. Many members will be unable to pay dues, and some will find it difficult to pay even percapita tax, as during the early 'thirties. Union finances will shrink as a result.

PROBLEMS OF LOCAL UNIONS: Many locals by next September will have insufficient income to maintain their present expenses. Those without a reserve fund will be unable to pay a Business Agent or other officers, and in some cases sacrifices will have to be made to raise enough money for percapita tax and other essential expenses necessary to maintain a local union. Many local officers will work and accept vouchers for their salaries as during the depression. Therefore, it is more practical and sensible for local unions to preserve such funds as they have on hand, for the difficult times ahead.

LEADERSHIP: We have as General President of our International Union, a man who guided us through the previous World War and Depression of the early 'Thirties; a man of experience, intelligence and rare good judgment. We are indeed fortunate to have him to guide us through this war. With no changes in the International Officers anticipated, a convention would be nothing more or less than a mutual admiration society, and a waste of local and International funds.

LOCAL FUNDS: Local union funds, gotten together many times through struggle and sacrifice of local union members, that is spent to finance delegates to a convention under such conditions, is unnecessary, undesirable and a criminal waste of hard-earned money. Local unions could better use such funds for more essential and practical purposes, that will benefit all local union members, such as the payment of local current expenses and maintenance of members in good standing at headquarters, etc.

WAR BONDS: Those local unions fortunate enough to have surplus funds, will be performing a patriotic service by investing them in war bonds. Many local unions have their surplus funds invested in war bonds and due to unemployment of their members will have to cash them to meet local expenses. Many locals have their convention funds in war bonds, and if a convention is held, will have to cash them.

RESUME: When all of the facts are taken into consideration, there is not one single good reason why a convention should be held. Of course, there are some whose political ambitions blind them to the facts. There are others who look forward to the convention as a free ride and a week's vacation. Political aspirations and vacations are perfectly alright in normal times, BUT THIS IS WAR. An all-out war. Our way of life is threatened. Our peace-time economy is being knocked into a cocked hat. Our peace-time industries are being changed into war industries and some of them eliminated for the duration. Our Republic and our Democratic way of life has been challenged and our men in the armed service of the Nation are fighting in all of the seven seas and in all parts of the world. The building industry, especially our part of it, will soon fold up for the duration. In view of all these and many other facts, ISN'T

Dear Sir and Brother:

I am writing you in regards to postponement of the convention. Our local has approved a postponement of a convention.

Local 27 heartily approves of the action of the nine Vice Presidents in recommending a referendum vote and we concur in their statements of facts as to why the convention should be postponed.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Local 55 approves of the statement of the nine vice presidents and the reasons they give for postponement of the convention. This statement is clear and to the point. I don't see how any lather who has the best interests of his local and the Lathers International Union at heart can vote to hold a convention after reading the statement. Local 55 favors postponement. Kindly print this letter in the June LATHER.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Local 48 has voted approval of the statement of reasons why the nine vice presidents recommend a referendum vote on the question of the postponement of the convention.

Local 48 approves postponement for the reasons stated in that statement and we know of not one single good reason why a convention should be held during these trying times.

We have, as head of our International Union, President McSorley, whose years of experience and ability is at our disposal during the war. He has one of the finest minds in the entire labor movement and, as is well known, has guided us through many trying times in the past. Anyone in their right mind knows President McSorley would be re-elected if a convention were held, because our members are too intelligent to even consider a change. With the exception of Secretary-Treasurer, the other International Officers are minor ones and come under the jurisdiction and direction of the President, so it would make little difference who held these offices, as their activities come under the close scrutiny of the President.

Colorado Springs had on January first, this year, more than 200 conventions scheduled for this summer, but on account of the war situation, they have all been postponed, excepting 19 up to May 1st, which shows that we are not the only ones considering postponing our conventions.

Brother Ford, Local 48 wishes you to print this letter in the June issue of THE LATHER.

Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Sir and Brother:

In re to the convention being held this year, I have brought this to the attention of the local several times, but haven't been able to get any action until now.

There was a unanimous vote by the members for the convention to be held this year. They feel that all the locals and the International are better off financially this year than ever before. Several of the locals out this way feel the same way about it.

Fraternally yours,
Herb Andrews, Sec. Local Union 26.

An Urgent Appeal to the Rank and File of the LIU

An appeal to the rank and file to consider well the postponing of our next convention until the present war is over.

In these critical times in our nation, would U. S. congressmen and other elected officers wish the coming November election postponed until after the war? Will any one say spending money to have a political election at this time is a "criminal waste of money"? Is it a waste of money to bring men together to find ways and means to preserve this nation?

If a crisis faces our L. I. U. let's call a convention, bring men from every local, if possible, because new methods of construction work are coming and perhaps new material will be introduced on which no plaster will be placed. Will that be a crisis? Yes, to the rank and file, but no crisis to local representatives, if the local treasury is kept full. As has been suggested, many lathers will be in the armed service of our nation and unable to be delegates to the L. I. U. convention. Shall we then lay down on our job of controlling the work which we now have and obtaining control of that material which is displacing material we now control? It is feared by some that if we have our convention, some local will have no funds to pay a business agent. Many of our smaller locals were made and kept by local men, who perhaps never were full time paid business agents and some locals with paid representatives have that position, because others labored many months and years to keep the L. I. U. charter on the lodge room wall and were never thanked, to say nothing about being paid for their loyal service to the local.

Our L. I. U. is because the rank and file saw the benefit to be had by collective bargaining.

While in the South this past winter, I found business agents without salary. Real, loyal business agents. One in Florida who had no salary, and, because there was but little work, suffered others to have the work, while he received $15.00 per week out of work benefit. Is that loyalty?

And I dare predict that when the paid representatives, who will not take care of local affairs unless paid, many loyal local boys will again offer their time and services to their ocal unions, endeavoring to preserve the good conditions our L. I. U. has obtained from the lather wherever a local is found.

Say, boys, the rank and file everywhere, meet the delegate from Local 24 at our coming convention. Thanks:
L. A. Moffitt (Member of Local 24) Toledo, Ohio.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Local 39 wishes to protest the postponement of the convention.

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley
Cleveland, Ohio
Dear Sir and Brother:

In answer to the referendum on whether a convention shall be held this year, Local No. 24 of Toledo went on record with an unanimous vote to hold a convention as scheduled.

Is it not reasonable to assume that at this time questions of greater importance than ever before will be brought to such a convention?

Is it not fitting that after the war possibilities should be discussed BEFORE the post-war conditions actually arrive?

Also a convention is the central point of contact where each and every local can get closer together, exchange ideas, solve problems collectively instead of running through the crisis as individualists.

Any parent body that prolongs the undoubted necessity of conversation with the members of the family will ultimately lose the respect of the said family, by indifference, disobedience and a development of the dangerous spirit of "I can get along alone, they don't want us to fraternize."

As for the finances, wages are higher than ever, every local should be able to be represented.

The convention could possibly help any local to solve its financia problems. DON'T SUBSTITUTE BROTHERLY LOVE WITH BANK BALANCE. PREPARE FOR THE FUTURE TODAY.

WE ARE STRONGLY IN FAVOR OF A CONVENTION THIS YEAR.

Yours fraternally,
Ed. Vanderhoff, Bus. Agt.
Local Union No. 24.

Reinforced Metal Lath And Cement Stairs

DETAILED SECTION OF STAIRS

A—¾" channels. B—1½" channels (¾" may be used). C and D—¼" round rods. E and F—18 ga. galv. tie wire. Shaded section—metal lath. Approximate weight of lathing materials in stairs—100 pounds. See illustrations on following pages.

—Courtesy Harry J. Hagen.

The metal lath and cement stairs illustrated in this month's issue of THE LATHER were built by members of Local 73 last month, in the heart of the downtown business section of St. Louis, with the approval of the building commissioner, after a test, and they are now being installed in place of solid steel stairs, which have been banned by the War Production Board. This construction can be used for fire escapes and all types of outside cement stairs, permanent forms which do not expand or contract, as does wood, etc.

These stairs are fireproof, tremendously sturdy, and have many qualities possessed by no other type. They are quickly, efficiently, economically, and conveniently constructed right on the job to fit any occasion or any type of stairs; either regular, winders, spiral or others; continuous banisters, stair walls, and hand rails may be added by lathers, as was done some years ago in St. Louis, where more than one hundred regular and winding stairs were built by lathers, plasterers, and cement finishers. On that project, the banisters were built of the same materials as the stairs and hand rails were made of double bullnose beads, in some cases; double straight beads in others; chair rail over top of banister, with flanges bent to fit, on others; and in still other cases, wood rails were attached to 1½" channels, as shown in the illustrations in this issue.

Local unions have an excellent opportunity to promote this type of stairs for both interior and exterior use, at the present time, due to war restrictions on solid steel stairs, and they may prove so satisfactory, that architects will specify them even after the war.

The stairs illustrated consist of fourteen 10" treads and fifteen 7" risers. The detailed sectional drawing illustrates method of construction and kind of materials used. Two inches of cement were added, coats having same proportions of ingredients, applied with the trowel, resulting in a strong, solid reinforced concrete slab.

Note in one photo five persons sitting on stairs before cement is applied. Total weight, slightly over 900 pounds. Many times their weight can be carried when stairs are finished. There was a deflection of ¼" in center of span (elevation) when live load was added, considered remarkable by spectators. Lathing materials used in these stairs weighed approximately one hundred pounds.

Photos on pages nine and ten.

REINFORCED METAL LATH AND CEMENT STAIRS

Live load of 902 pounds on stairs, before any cement is applied. On photo, top to bottom, Henry Beerman, foreman; Edwin Tibbs, and Orville Vogel, Journeymen; J. M. Hessing, lathing contractor; H. J. Hagen, business agent. At least twice this weight could have been added, but additional persons would have hidden stairs.

Stairs completed. This photo was taken before stairs were cleaned up and rough spots smoothed out, in order to get finished photo for this month's LATHER. Details on Page 8.

CORRECTIONS

General Secretary Ford, in his letter of May 1, 1942 sent to all our local unions and also published on page 4 of the May issue, stated that the date for the referendum vote on the holding of our convention was set for the last week in July.

Many of our local unions hold their meetings on Saturday. The last week in July has no Saturday, therefore the time designated in that letter has been changed and the referendum vote on the postponing of our convention will be held by each local union the week ending August 1st, which would put a Saturday in the week originally specified.

This is done in order to give our local unions which hold their meetings on Saturday an opportunity to vote at this meeting.

—o—

Local 88 reports they made an error in suspending Bro. C. B. Chenoweth 19909 for nonpayment of dues. This brother's suspension, published in the May issue, has therefore been cancelled.

—o—

Local 6 reports that J. Manduca 34575, who was listed on Our Honor Roll in earlier issues, is not in the armed forces but was issued a regular withdrawal card.

READ THIS BEFORE FILING SOCIAL SECURITY TAX REPORTS

Those secretaries, who are obliged to file quarterly reports for old age benefit tax and annual federal unemployment insurance reports with the Collector of Internal Revenue in their federal tax districts, are reminded that our International Union and its subordinate local unions have been exempted from payment of taxes for any employee or paid officer of the local union who earned less than $45.00 remuneration during the calendar quarter for services performed for the local under, the provisions of Section 1426(b)(10)(A) and Section 1607(c)(10)(A) of subchapters A and C of Chapter 9 of the amended Internal Revenue Code.

Some of the states also grant a similar exemption from the payment of quarterly unemployment insurance premiums to organizations who are exempted from payment of federal income tax under Section 101(1) of the Internal Revenue Code. For information on this point, consult the State Unemployment Compensation Office in your district, stating that our International and its subordinate unions have been exempted from payment of federal income tax under Section 101(1) in a ruling made on 12/23/40 by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Decisions of The General President

Section 121 L. I. U. constitution provides: All decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short, concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

———o———

E. J. Stimson, 29972 vs. Local No. 78

Brother Stimson appealed against the action of Local 78 in placing the following fines against him on the charges herein mentioned: $5.00 for violation of Section 126 International constitution and $25.00 for violation of Section 177; $10.00 for violation of our minimum specifications and $10.00 for violation of local bylaws pertaining to a permit for overtime. The General President, after receiving evidence from both sides, found the appellant guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of the local union in the matter of these fines.

———o———

H. A. Teutsch, 24645 and L. A. Teutsch, 36608 vs. Local No. 93

Brothers H. A. and L. A. Teutsch appealed against the action of Local 93 in placing fines of $100.00 against them for violation of Section 14 local bylaws and Sections 1, 2 and 3 as amended. The General President, after carefully considering the evidence presented by both sides, found these brothers guilty of the charges preferred and therefore sustained the action of the local union.

———o———

Jack O'Keefe, 28881 vs. Local No. 93

Brother O'Keefe appealed against the action of Local 93 in revoking his foremanship for a period of one year and in removing him from the shop in which he was employed for a period of two years, on the charge of discrimination and violation of Section 8 of the local union's working rules. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented, found the penalty placed to be unfair, illegal and unjust and he therefore ordered the same rescinded.

———o———

J. A. Guerrero, 37389 vs. Local No. 127

Brother Guerrero appealed against the action of Local 127 in placing a fine of $50.00 against him, on the charge of violating Section 139 L. I. U. constitution. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented from both sides in this controversy, found the appellant guilty of the charges preferred, and the action of Local 127 was therefore sustained by him.

Roland LaValley, 34237 vs. Local No. 215

Brother LaValley appealed against the action of Local 215 in placing a fine of $50.00 against him on the charge of non-compliance with the provisions of Section 177 L. I. U. constitution. The General President, after carefully reviewing evidence presented by both sides, found the brother guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of the local union.

———o———

Murray Newberger, 28523 and Louis Kaufman, 12487 (contr.) vs. Local No. 244

Brother Newberger and Contractor Kaufman appealed against the action of Local No. 244 in placing a fine of $25.00 against each of them, Newberger as shop steward and Kaufman as contractor for a job upon which they permitted and requested that a working rule of the local union be not observed. The General President, after carefully reviewing all of the evidence, found the appellants guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of Local 244 in the matter of the fines levied.

———o———

Samuel Malkin, 25441 vs. Local No. 359

Brother Malkin appealed against the action of Local No. 359 in placing a fine of $25.00 against him ($5.00 of which is and International fine) for violation of Section 126 L. I. U. constitution, by doing work in that jurisdiction without notifying the local union in the proper manner. The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented, found the brother guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of the local union.

———o———

Harry K. Landes, 24711 and Frank Oliveri, 32182 vs. Philadelphia District Council of Lathers

Brothers Landes and Oliveri appealed against the action of this District Council in levying the following penalties: in the case of Brother Landes, a fine of $100.00 and recommendation that his solicitor's certificate be revoked on the charge of violating Sections 176 and 177 L. I. U. constitution and as a solicitor from Local No. 492 for allowing men to work under rates which do not conform with the laws of the International Union or of the district Council; Brother Oliveri being fined in the sum of $15.00 on the charges of violating Section 3 of Article 7 of the District Council laws, pertaining to rates of wages prescribed for the class of work in question. The General President, after carefully considering the evidence presented by both sides, found the brothers guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of the District Council.

OUR NEW HEROES

By Ruth Taylor

Each day as we read in the headlines of those who have distinguished themselves for valiant action on the far-flung battle line, we feel new pride in the youth of our nation.

From the ivied halls of our colleges, from the work benches in our myriad factories, from the quiet fields of our farm lands; from city, town, and tiny village, they have gone and are going—the best and finest of our youth—ready, willing and eager to fight for the country which gave them their chance in life, the freedom to grow and learn and work, to live as free men in a free nation.

The heroes of today are the best we have to offer. They come from all ranks of society, from all faiths, from all national backgrounds—Kelly, Feldman, Thompson and Giardina. They are not the hard-boiled, hard-living adventurers of the swash-buckling tales of the past but are fine, clean living youth with high ideals, firm faith and a great desire to act boldly for the right.

War today is not a mass marching of men. The precision of the machines demand men who think to guide them. War today calls for intelligent individuals trained for cooperative action. The boys we send out to fight need the backing of all of us. Courage is contagious. We who wait at home can do our part best by keeping up the same uncomplaining attention to duty they are giving.

Can we let down these heroes who are giving their lives? Let them down by shirking on the work we know must be done, by not doing more than our best? When we consider the boys in the air, the gallant forces with MacArthur, the men holding the enemy at bay in the Macassar Straits, can we evade our duty of cooperating in civilian defense over and above our daily work? When we think of their sacrifices of their careers, of their futures, of their lives, can we complain of living costs, taxes, restrictions, minor changes in our manner of living? That we still live free is their doing.

Courage is contagious. We can translate the inspiration of the bravery of these new American heroes into positive action. No repining, no complaints, just a determination to win this war and to win it so thoroughly that this time there will be no Armistice, no mere cessation of hostilities, but Peace on a firm foundation! This is the least we can do for our honoured dead.

LABOR PREFERS FREEDOM

Samuel Gompers, one of the great leaders of American labor, saw with prophetic clarity the essential connection between democracy and the right of labor to organize.

In reply to a critic of organized labor who pointed out that a certain paternalistic employer was providing welfare work, including a recreation center, swimming pool and shower baths, he declared that "Labor would rather be free than clean."

He also referred to welfare work as hellfare work when it was used as a substitute for the democratic right of labor to self determination.

A friend of mine was shown through a model mill village by the owner, who pointed out the good living conditions he had provided, including better houses, free schools, free picnics and free seeds for the workers' flower gardens. My friend inquired how it happened that in every yard there were petunias in bloom. "I like petunias," said the owner.

Paternalism fails miserably to meet the basic need in human society of providing conditions under which individuals may develop their own lives.—James Myers.

WHY BOTHER?

When you hear a working man ask, "What have labor organizations ever done for working people?" you may answer him if you like, but the best way is to leave him alone. If a man is really so densely ignorant as not to know, he would never be capable of enlightenment if answered. No wage earner with average intelligence would have to ask such a question. It is absolutely unnecessary. A man might close his eyes and deliberately ignore self-evident facts, but in spite of himself he would trip up and stumble over them. Let a man use the brains nature endowed him with, and while he might make inquiries regarding labor organizations, he would never be so ignorant as to pretend he didn't know at least something about what they have accomplished for the workers. When you come across such an individual, just remember one of three things—either he wants to have a little fun with you, he is an enemy of organized labor and doesn't want to be convinced, or he is too ignorant to understand even if you answered him. If a man has eyes, he ought to see.

VITAMINS FOR VICTORY

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists and medical men on the subject of applied nutrition. This article on vitamin A is by Dr. Walter H. Eddy, Professor Emeritus of Columbia University:

Vitamin A is used in building certain pigments in the eye which you need in order to see clearly. It is used to maintain normal tooth enamel. Most important of all, it provides something that keeps the linings of your breathing passages and your digestive tract resistant to attack by disease germs. These three uses are of real practical importance to everybody and of especial importance to certain industries.

One big industrial plant, for example, found that by feeding vitamin A, the men who were matching colors in the enamel on certain products were much more accurate with a high intake of this vitamin. Aviators have found that increasing their vitamin A intake also helps their vision and truck drivers are able to see better at night if they are plentifully supplied with vitamin A.

Colds and infections of the breathing passages are common in the winter months. Such colds make for lost time from the job and lost time means lost money. Plentiful supply of vitamin A by simply making you more resistant to attack by colds and other infectious organisms has been shown to definitely reduce absenteeism—to help keep men on the job.

Vitamin A occurs in Nature in two forms: as a yellow colored substance called "carotene" because it was first discovered in carrots; also, in a colorless form dissolved in certain oils and fats such as fish liver oils and butter. The popularity of cod liver oil is due largely to its rich content of this vitamin.

You can, however, get vitamin A in one or the other of these forms in quite a wide range of natural foodstuffs. There is considerable variation in the concentration of vitamin A in natural foods but you don't have to go outside of the foods that people ordinarily eat and like to get a very satisfactory supply of this vitamin: Vegetable Greens—cabbage, kale, spinach, turnip greens, etc.; Yellow Root Vegetables—carrots, sweet potatoes, etc.; Dairy Products—milk, butter, cheese; all supply abundant amounts of this vitamin and today you can also buy it in concentrated form, in fish liver oils, and in various vitamin preparations.

It is customary to measure potency of vitamin A in what are called "U. S. Pharmacopoeia Units" and it is generally agreed today that you and I need at least 4000 units of vitamin A a day to meet our bodies' requirements. If you purchase vitamin concentrates, be sure to look at the label and see what the potency is and then take enough to insure a daily supply of at least 4000 units.

There are text books and tables which give the vitamin A potency of common foods in terms of these same units. If you are going to make a study of such tables it is easy to map from day to day, the amount of these foodstuffs or mixtures of them which will meet all your requirements.

Don't lose time on the job. Don't let accidents or poor work develop from bad eye sight. Keep your tooth enamel sound; don't help tooth decay just because you haven't been wise enough to get daily the amout of vitamin A that you require.

NO FAT FOR WASTING

Most of the fats we eat as foods we produce ourselves, but don't think that you can go ahead and waste them. In war time, everything we have must be made to go as far as it can. That's just as true of home-produced goods as of goods we buy abroad.

Fat saving tricks don't make the headlines, but they can help in war. Here are some suggested by "Consumers' Guide," publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division of the Department of Agriculture:

1. Save and use any fat you trim from roasts, steaks, and chops. They can be melted in a double boiler, strained, and used as cooking fat, or they can be used for flavoring soups or vegetables, or for frying.

2. Save your meat drippings, bacon grease and bacon rinds. They can be used to flavor other foods or clarified to use in cooking.

3. The scraps of butter, lard, or margarine that cling to their wrapping papers make the greasy paper usable for greasing pans.

4. When you open a can of salmon or tuna fish or sardines or any other fish, don't throw the oil away. It's energizing like all food fats, and contains valuable vitamins. Serve it with the fish.

5. Cut down butter waste by cutting pats small enough so that no trace of butter is left on the rim of your plate.

6. Make sure you measure the exact amount of fat or oil called for in a recipe. To measure hard fats accurately and easily takes a little trick. If your recipe calls for one-quarter cup, for instance, fill your measuring cup three-quarters full of cold water, then add fat until the cup is filled. Pour the water out and the remaining fat is the exact amount you need.

WIT AND HUMOR

English Rector—Good morning, Thompson. I heard you have a son and heir.

Thompson—Yes, sir. Our household now represents the United Kingdom.

Rector—How is that?

Thompson—Why, you see, I am English, my wife's Irish, the nurse is Scotch, and the baby Wails.

———o———

Hubby and friend wife were going over the family budget. Frequently he ran across an item, "H. O. K., $3"; another, "H. O. K., $7."

"My dear," he said, "what is this H. O. K.?"

"Heaven Only Knows," she replied.

———o———

Wifey (angrily)—You talk of possessing judgment. My judgment is superior to yours any day.

Hubby—Oh, unquestionably. Our choice of life partners proves that.

———o———

"What is your occupation?" asked the magistrate.

"I'm a locksmith, sir," replied the prisoner.

"Then what were you doing in that gambling house when the police raided it?"

"I was making a bolt for the door."

———o———

"Yes," said the mountain climber, "I always keep a rope tied around my waist. It has saved my life more than once."

"But," commented the listener, "it must be awful to be left hanging from a rope. Don't you feel nervous sometimes?"

"Well, not exactly nervous," came the nervous reply. "Just highly strung, that's all.

———o———

When the umpire was leaving the grounds, he was approached by an irate fan. "Where's your dog?" demanded the fan.

"Dog?" ejaculated the umpire. "I haven't any dog."

"The helya haven't," bawled the fan. "You're the only blind man I ever saw who didn't have a dog."

———o———

Kit—Gee, but that date last night was fresh.

Kat—Why didn't you slap his face?

Kit—I did; and take my advice, never slap a guy when he's chewing tobacco.

———o———

First Doctor—I had an unusual case today.

Second Doctor—What was it?

First Doctor—I attended a grass widow with hay fever.

The officer of the day stopped a mess orderly as he was carrying a soup kettle out of the kitchen.

"Here, you," he snapped, "give me a taste of that!"

Obediently he was handed a ladle, and he tasted it.

"Great Scott! Do you call that stuff soup?" he roared.

"No, sir," responded the orderly meekly. "That's dish water."

———o———

Farmer—Hey, what are you doing in that apple tree?

Small Boy—Believe me or not, mister, but I've just fallen out of an aeroplane.

———o———

After terrific struggles, the freshman finally finished his examination paper, looked it sadly over, and then, at the end, wrote:

"Dear Professor: If you sell any of my answers to the funny papers, I expect you to split fifty-fifty with me."

———o———

An English youth who landed in a Canadian port and thought it was America, was soon corrected by another traveler who pointed out that Canada was in North America but was not America.

"I dare say you are right," said the first one after a pause. "I haven't seen one gangster like they show in the cinema."

———o———

Rich Suitor—"I—er—suppose you are aware that I've been making advances to your daughter?"

Impecunious Father (extending hand)—"Yes; put it there, son. And now what about her poor old father?"

———o———

The Muddleton Dramatic Society was presenting a historical play, and one of the newly-enrolled members had been assigned a part with exactly one line to speak.

He was the headsman, and, arrayed in all the glory of black tights and mask, he strode on to the center of the stage and announced:

"My Lord, my Lord, I have beheaded the maid."

"Oh, you 'ave, 'ave you?" retorted another small-part man in the guise of the cruel king. "Well, allow me to tell you that you've messed up the 'ole bloomin' show. You've been an' done it two acts too soon."

———o———

O: "What was the explosion on Si's farm?"

K: "He fed the chickens some lay-or-bust feed and one of them was a rooster."

Facing The Facts

With Philip Pearl

Do you believe what you read in the newspapers about labor? Here are a few samples, culled in a single week.

The United Press put out a story, which was widely published, to the effect that the War Labor Board had decided in advance on a formula for settlement of the union shop issue in the steel cases pending before it.

Chairman Davis promptly scotched this lie. "The dispatch is wholly without foundation," he said. Did the newspapers carry this denial prominently? They did not.

Mr. Davis also had something to say about exaggerated press reports about strikes. "The fact is," he declared, "that since early last November the interruption of war production by strikes has been reduced almost to the vanishing point."

Did the newspapers feature this statement? They did not.

Instead, the daily press played up baseless and inflated strike figures put out as anti-labor propaganda by the National Association of Manufacturers. Secretary of Labor Perkins protested. "The Department of Labor has been publishing accurate figures on strikes for the past eight years," she said. "No newspaper ever mentions these, however. But when the National Association of Manufacturers releases a lot of inflated figures, the newspapers fall all over themselves to give them a big play."

Here's another story. Again the United Press was the culprit. It put out a yarn charging that a National Labor Relations Board investigation of company unionism at Curtiss-Wright aircraft plants was delaying airplane production. It was even suggested that the board's action was holding up parts needed for American planes grounded in the Far East. Anonymous Army and Navy officials were the "authority" for this statement. The story was widely published.

It was immediately and indignantly denounced by the National Labor Relations Board, which charged the story was part of a conspiracy to terrorize the board into abandoning efforts to protect workers.

"Such attempts to force the board to abandon its functions have been made before" said the official statement. "The public should know that in each instance it has been the board's experience that prompt hearings have allayed tension and unrest, which otherwise would have immediate and disastrous consequences. An opporunity to present issues at hearings before labor boards is the method provided by the Government for avoiding strikes and lockouts."

This was an important and significant statement. Did you see it in the newspapers? We didn't, and we made quite a search for it.

Let's take another case. This started with the publication of a Page 1 box in the New York Times to the effect that labor leaders were to be exempted from the draft at the request of the AFL and CIO. Immediately columnists and editorial writers picked it up with due expressions of horror.

President Green, in behalf of the AFL, forcefully denied that the Federation had ever asked or would ever ask for special treatment of labor representatives. A few newspapers carried a small item on this denial but they buried it far inside their pages.

There were more developments to this story. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the Draft Director, discussed it at his press conference. He made it clear that the story has been deliberately twisted and distorted in the press. He denied that the AFL or CIO had asked for special exemptions. He pointed out that the order issued by Selective Service Headquarters did not in fact grant special treatment for labor leaders. The order provided merely that local boards may give consideration to deferring GOVERNMENT, INDUSTRY, as well as labor represenatives, whose services are considered essential to efficient operation of war production plants.

Did the newspaper give Gen. Hershey's statement equivalent space or position to the original and false story? They did not. In fact, very few of them mentioned his denial at all.

Finally, we should like to call to your attention a story published on Page 1 of the Washington Post which gave the impression that the local musicians' union in the District of Columbia had put its foot down against name band instrumentalists giving their services free for the entertainment of soldiers in Army camps.

Careful reading of this story disclosed the submerged fact that the union had merely insisted that orchestra leaders obtain permission from the union before giving such concerts.

The story percolated in New York and came to the attention of the President of the international union. He promptly branded it as false and misleading. He pointed out that the American Federation of Musicians had waived its rules to permit and encourage free concerts at Army camps by name bands. He did not say, but it's the truth, that members of this union have given a tremendous amount of their spare time free of charge to help cheer up our armed forces and provide entertainment for them. Did the Washington Post correct its original story and print the facts? It did not.

Do you still believe what you read in the newspapers about labor?

U. S. ASKS FAIRS AND CONVENTIONS BE DEFERRED DURING WAR

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 18—Deferment of all state and county fairs, as well as non-essential conventions, meetings and group tours for the duration of the war was requested today by Joseph B. Eastman, Defense Transportation Director.

Asserting that "there is good reason to hope" that government controls over travel can be avoided, provided civilians restrict their use of trains and busses, Eastman likewise cautioned against pleasure trips other than vacations.

On the grounds that delays, crowded and scarcity of accommodations are inevitable because of the increasing burdens of transportation facilities, Eastman asked that civilians defer any mass movements not closely connected with the war effort and that, in the case of meetings related to the war program, "attendance should be skeletonized along the lines of the example set by the American Legion in its forthcoming convention."

"Postpone all state and county fairs," he said. "Farmers should not be encouraged to use, for non-essential purposes, such as these, the tires which are so necessary to their livelihood and so necessary to provide a continuing food supply. Nor should they transfer the burden of such travel to public carriers."

ODT ASKS FAIRS AND CONVENTIONS BE POSTPONED FOR THE DURATION

Washington, June 19--(I. N. S.)—The extreme seriousness of the transportation problem was reflected in a request from Defense Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman that all state and county fairs be postponed and all meetings, conventions and group tours not related to the war effort be deferred for the duration.

Appealing for public cooperation in restricting unnecessary travel, Eastman also urged vacations be staggered throughout the year to avoid summer congestion and called upon vacationists to start and end their trips in the middle of the week instead of on week-ends.

These news items confirm the statement recently issued in behalf of the nine vice presidents, in which it was stated that transportation difficulties would be encountered in September. Here almost three months before the L. I. U. convention time, the U. S. Government is asking public cooperation in its transportation problems, in order that government control may be avoided. If the public does not respond and delay is caused in the transportation of troops and war supplies, thus jeopardizing our war effort, we can be sure government control, and transportation elimination, except on government business, will be made effective.

Uncle Sam is asking that conventions, fairs, etc., be postponed, to help the war program.

What is your answer going to be?

Let's give a patriotic response and 100% cooperation by voting unanimously to postpone the L. I. U. Convention until after the war.

Fraternally yours,
Mo. State Council of Lathers

LETTERS RECEIVED IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

Little Rock, Ark.,
June 23, 1942.

Mr. Terry Ford
Dear Sir and Brother:

Local 326, after carefully considering the report of the Executive Council, also the request of our President Franklin D. Roosevelt that no conventions be held during this emergency, feel by holding our convention it would help the Axis by wasting time, money, rubber and gas going to and from the convention.

We know that our present officers are doing everything in their power to help our members and our country, America.

Therefore, Local 326 is in favor of postponing the convention for the duration of the war.

Fraternally yours,

To the Officers and Members of
The Lathers International Union

At our last meeting, June 16, this local went on record, reaffirming its stand against holding our International convention for the duration of the war.

While many reasons for the postponement can be given, we feel that there are two major reasons:

1. That the money expended for travel, entertainment, and the maintenance of the organization at the convention city, should be used to further our war effort, by buying Victory Bonds.

2. That President Roosevelt has requested that all traveling, except on war business, be curtailed. Just yesterday, Director of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman requested that all conventions and large scale meetings be postponed for the duration.

We know that the rest of the locals throughout the country now feel the same as we do.

Postpone the convention!

With best wishes, I am,

Fraternally yours,
Pat Mullane, Bus. Mgr.

Dear Sir and Brother:

This is to advise that at the regular meeting of the Lone Star State Council of Lathers, held in Fort Worth, Texas, on June 20 and 21, 1942, the Council voted nine to one in favor of postponing the 1942 convention of the Lathers International Union.

Dear Sir and Brother:

We, the members of Local 29, are opposed to holding our International convention this year.

With our country in need of all transportation facilities for Army, Navy and Marines, shortage of gasoline and tires and shortage of work, it would be best to conserve the expense money to buy War Stamps and War Bonds and thus put the money to a better use.

Let us help win this war, then after that, hold our convention. We have that job to do. Don't think of pleasure or a good time at a convention. Think of our loved ones in the Service.

Mr. Terry Ford
Dear Sir and Brother:

After due consideration and thoughtful deliberation among our members, Local 246 is unanimously in favor of postponing our convention scheduled for next September and such postponement to last to the end of the present crisis. The contention of the members is that the matter should be submitted to the various locals by a referendum vote.

We have always been in favor of conventions being held as scheduled, but at this time, conditions being as they are, and the uncertainty of the future, it seems impractical and a waste of money to carry out preparations for a convention.

Hundreds of lathers are unemployed and lathing at this time is practically at a standstill. If it were not for the opportunities of it in the several Navy Yards and the Army Air Bases where the men are now in the employ of the Government, affairs would become of drastic proportions and nobody knows how long this state of affairs may exist.

The amount that locals have on hand can be used to better advantage in defraying expenses and assisting needy brothers until conditions are stabilized and the future outlook appears brighter.

Let us hope that the brother members of locals with a large surplus in their treasury, (those in favor of a September convention) will consider that all are not as fortunate as they and perhaps the less fortunate members will need what little they have before the winter is over.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COUNCIL OF LATHERS

Composed of Locals 25, 31, 72, 79, 99, 123, 139, 142, 176, 246, 254 and 359

To Members of the L. I. U.—

The letters from Brothers G. L. Pierce, Secretary and B. A. of Local 336, and John J. Vohden, Jr., Business Agent of Local 102, which appeared in the June LATHER were of great interest to our members. Bro. Pierce, whose local is affiliated with the Illinois State Council of Lathers, pointed out the fact, and this is very important, that a special meeting of Local 74 of Chicago, the city where our next convention will be held, was called to vote on the referendum issue, resulting in only approximately one-sixth or 108 members of a total membership of more than 600, voting in favor of holding the convention, the other five-sixths or approximately 500 members refusing to attend the meeting, called especially for the purpose of voting on the convention issue, indicating that five out of every six members were opposed to holding the convention, for if they were in favor of holding it they would certainly have been there to so vote.

Inasmuch as Chicago is the next convention city and the fact that between 80% and 85% of the members of Local 74 did not vote in favor of the convention, such a vote of this important local at this time is very significant. It seems that the great majority of Local 74 members have wisely refused to lend their support to the holding of a convention in war time. It is much more important to postpone this convention in war time when our very lives and our way of life is threatened. Think this over, brothers.

Bro. Vohden's letter also contained a number of very pertinent points. He states that he cannot understand why 9th Vice Pres. Smith sent letters out trying to stop a vote of the rank and file, because a referendum, decided by a majority vote, is a most democratic procedure. Many other members are puzzled by Bro. Smith's action in sending out a letter to local unions requesting them to write Pres. McSorley, telling him they are opposed to a referendum. Why should anyone be opposed to a referendum. Why should anyone be opposed to a referendum vote if they want to know the honest opinion of the rank and file on this or any other question? Besides, the convention time and city were settled, unless changed by a referendum vote. The convention was and is to be held unless the rank and file vote otherwise. So Bro. Smith's letter was a little premature. Furthermore, his letters were sent to people who had no vote on deciding whether a referendum vote should be held or not. The executive council of which he is a member decides this question and if he wanted to use his influence in preventing a referendum, he should have written to his brother board members and tried to have them vote against it. If the executive board or council were in the majority opposed to stopping a referendum vote, all the letters in the world from Bro. Smith to the local unions would do no good.

Nine of our Vice Presidents wisely voted to refer the convention issue to the rank and file and what better action could they have taken? Why shouldn't they give local union members an opportunity to vote on this all important issue in war time? What harm can be done by trusting this issue to the intelligence and honesty of the rank and file, After all—it is their International Union—their convention and their funds that will be spent if a convention is held, so who has a better right than they to decide the question? We cannot see where a referendum vote on any important issue not covered by the L. I. U. constitution can do any harm. The letter sent out by Bro. Smith was the opinion of one individual member of the L. I. U. He has a right to his views but we believe that before he adopted such an unusual course, he should have consulted the other members of the executive council who were elected to office with him and who decided the referendum issue. After all, if the majority of the council favored a referendum, which in this case they did, Bro. Smith was wasting his time and merely confusing the rank and file by sending out his letters prematurely before there was an issue for the rank and file to vote on.

Bro. Vohden ends his letter in the June LATHER very neatly by asking the rank and file to read the numerous honest, sensible, and practical reasons submitted by those favoring postponement and compare them with the weak, apologetic, imaginary reasons given by a small minority as reasons why a convention should be held.

We believe the issue is simple and clear—it has been thoroughly explained by the statement of the 9 V. P.'s and others. How anyone with the best interests of their local and the L. I. U. can vote to hold a convention in these perilous times is beyond understanding. We should vote postponement as requested by the U. S. Government as an aid to the war effort.

Dear Sir and Brother:

At a meeting of the Tri-State District Council of Lathers held in Reading, Pa. on Sunday, May 17, 1942, a communication from the International Office was read, notifying the Council that the question of postponing the convention was to be put to a referendum vote.

This matter was discussed from every angle. There was not one good reason to show why the convention should not be postponed for the duration of the war.

There were numerous good reasons why the convention should be postponed for the duration.

The Council voted unanimously for a postponement of the convention for the duration and notified its affiliated locals of the Council's action. The locals represented at this meeting were: Locals 4, 53, 75, 87, 108, 168, 217, 401, 429 and 492.

Local 75 concurs in the action of the Tri-State Council of Lathers and wishes to have same published in our monthly journal.

Dear Sir and Brother:

At the regular meeting of the Massachusetts State Counci held May 3, 1942, it was unanimously voted to go on record as being in favor of the postponement of the convention scheduled to be held in Chicago in September, 1942.

This action was taken after serious deliberation, taking into consideration the outlook as to the opportunities for employment at our trade, which at the present time are very slim.

Further in an effort to comply with the wishes of President Roosevelt, we feel that all surplus funds and funds accumulated through the self-sacrifice of our members should be devoted to the purchase of War Bonds and Stamps to insure the preservation, not only of our country, but the rights of self-government in our labor organization; also in order to insure any assistance to our affiliated locals and the maintenance of their membership in the International Union.

We feel the few remarks and reasons above are sufficient for the stand we have taken, which is the postponement of the convention until after the war.

Trusting you will publish this letter in our monthly issue of The Lather, I am

Dear Sir and Brother:

We write you to let you know our reasons why we are in favor of postponement of the Lathers International Union Convention for the duration of the war. There is not much work and our local could not afford to send a delegate.

Pruda Morgan, Sec.
Local Union 265, Chattanooga, Tenn.

To The Members of The L. I. U.

Dears Sirs and Brothers:

Some local unions never send a delegate to a convention. These locals and other local unions, who would not send a delegate to the convention next September if it were held, should vote unanimously in favor of postponement. What interest can a local union have in a convention, if they do not send a delegate and thus have no one there to represent their local? When local unions vote to hold an L. I. U. convention and then send no delegate, they are voting to spend thousands of dollars of L. I. U. funds for a convention in which they will not have a voice. Wouldn't it be much better to spend this money, said to be about fifteen thousand dollars, in the interest of all the members, by using it to protect our jurisdictional claims and fighting substitutes for lathing, which are ruining our industry, and to take other progressive and intelligent action that will serve to advance and perpetuate our industry? Isn't this much better than holding a convention in war-time, where a few delegates will run things to suit themselves, make the laws, elect the officers, and lay down rules and regulations for the boys back home?

In normal times, conventions are all right. If local unions do not send a delegate, they have no one to blame but themselves. But in war-time and now, with so many local unions financially embarrassed and with many members unemployed, local unions just do not have the money to finance a delegate. Their other expenses, living, taxes, etc., have mounted by leaps and bounds, and their income has been or will shortly be cut off altogether for the duration. How can any one with an ounce of common sense vote for a convention when they consider these things and the many other reasons advanced by others for postponement? It would be grossly unfair to hold a convention now at which so many of our local unions could not be represented, due to lack of funds.

It would be much better during war-time and depressions to vote on all important matters, including election of officers, if necessary, by referendum vote. In this way, all members who are in good standing would at least have something to say about the affairs of the L. I. U. on national questions. This would be much better than leaving such important matters to the tender mercies of a few delegates to a convention.

The U. S. Office of Defense Transportation has called upon the people to postpone conventions, fairs, etc., for the duration. Thousands of conventions are being postponed. It's the sensible thing to do. There is not a single good reason why we should hold a convention during this war and spend thousands of dollars of L. I. U. funds for a convention, which by next September may be prohibited by the Government.

If we vote for a convention and such a ruling is made effective, then what happens? Why take any chances? Vote to postpone!

To Members of the International Union
of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

No doubt numerous letters will be received from individuals favoring a convention in which they will probably take to task others expressing opposite views. If the criticism is honest, constructive, and justifiable, and contributes to the general welfare, no one can object. However, if anyone deliberately and maliciously selects a paragraph or two from here and there in a letter from some of those opposing their views and they distort and dress up such items to suit themselves, placing an entirely different interpretation other than the writer intended in order to build up their own weak case to make it sound more reasonable or plausible, the members of the rank and file should completely ignore it, because this is an old political trick resorted to by those desperately in need of a good, legitimate reason of their own to bolster their case. Having none, they blast the opposition. Lathers are too intelligent to fall for such hokum.

Members of the L. I. U. have a right to express their honest opinion on any issue, provided such opinion is based on the truth and not on false and misleading statements and interpretations, or on personal animosities. There should be no place for personal feuds or ill feelings in an International issue. The facts are the only things to be considered, if honest judgment is rendered by the rank and file.

The convention issue is like a case in court. The members of the rank and file are the jury. They decide the issue. To arrive at a just verdict, they must have the facts and the evidence from both sides of a question. This they should carefully weigh, and decide which is honestly and sincerely given, and which evidence is weak and without merit. The side with the strongest number of points in their favor should be given the verdict.

The undersigned has studied this issue carefully and is personally convinced that postponement is the proper solution at this time. Not for patriotic reasons alone, but because of the many uncertainties that would surround the holding of a convention during this war, which is changing our living habits and our national economic structure more and more each day.

The U. S. Government has requested postponement of conventions for the duration of the war. Because of this and the many other advisable reasons advanced for postponement, it is difficult to see how any other patriotic and intelligent solution can be made.

All of us should carefully consider the merits of postponement and not allow political wags to confuse us with misleading propaganda. Money spent to hold this convention belongs to all the members and they should decide whether such money would be well spent in these uncertain days. I believe a little thought on the matter and a study of the reasons submitted for postponement will convince any fair minded Union man that postponement is the only logical solution.

Fraternally yours,

H. H. Fairbanks, 11th Vice President
Lathers International Union.

Dayton, Ohio,
July 3, 1942.

Mr. Terry Ford

Dear Sir and Brother:

Action of Local Union No. 30, Dayton, Ohio, regarding postponement of International Union convention.

After discussing and considering the following facts with reference to holding an International convention as scheduled for this September.

First, the tendency and desire of the Federal Government to curtail all travel as a means of aiding our war effort by devoting our travel facilities to the exclusive use and movement of our armed forces and the shipment of the munitions of war. Certainly, by September travel will be further curtailed if not prohibited entirely.

Second, that hundreds of our members are now and will be serving our country in its armed forces, thereby preventing them from participating in the affairs of the International Union or an International convention.

Third, that by the most conservativte estimate the cost of holding a convention at this time will be approximately $15,000 of the International Union funds, as well as many thousands of dollars from the treasuries of local unions to pay wages, hotel and traveling expenses of their respective delegates to a convention, an additional amount of at least $60,000. We feel that it would be much better for our trade and more patriotic to use these funds, if they are surplus funds, in the purchase of War Bonds to aid our war effort, or use them to maintain our membership and local unions through the slack times we all know are just ahead.

Fourth, we feel that there is no pressing need for any changes or additions to the laws governing our International Union at this time, and if such need does arise for changes in our International laws, they can be effected through the mediums of a referendum vote.

Fifth, we know of no agitation or movement to change any of our International officers, and feel that there should not be any changes at this time.

Therefore, in view of these facts, the members of Local Union No. 30, have taken action, at our regular meeting held June 26th, 1942, as being in favor of the postponement of our International convention and to urge our membership to vote accordingly in the referendum election.

Fraternally yours,

Arthur Beam, Sec.,
Local Union 30.

To Our Fellow Members:

Cold facts why the members of Local 62 are against holding a convention this year are:

1. Local 62 has no work at the trade of lathing in its jurisdiction;
2. Local 62 has purchased Defense Bonds with the money it had in its treasury;

LETTERS RECEIVED IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

3. Local 62 has five members on the sick list that have not been able to work from one to five years, that we are taking care of;
4. We are determined to hold our local intact at all costs;
5. Also, we have men in the armed services of our country; and
6. Furthermore, we believe and know there are any amount of locals that have similar problems that we have.

Let's be patriotic and put our shoulders to the wheel in an all-out effort to help our country and the membership of our International Union by voting to postpone the convention and thereby saving the expense and being more able to meet our obligations to the membership in general and buy more and more Defense Bonds which will guarantee unionism in our great country.

GREATER ST. LOUIS DISTRICT COUNCIL OF LATHERS

Composed of Locals 73, 313 and 494

St. Louis, Mo.

To Members of The Lathers International Union
Gentlemen:

The Lathers' District Council of Greater St. Louis is strictly opposed to holding a convention during war time. We have many good reasons for our opposition, one of them being the fact that if a convention is held, we would have 10 or 12 delegates and alternates from our locals and D. C.'s to finance. This would cost several thousands of dollars, which we believe can be put to better use in the future, paying local expenses, keeping members in good standing and maintaining our locals in good standing in the L. I. U. and the local labor movement.

We have a larger convention fund at present than we did for the last convention held in N. Y. City and we were not on short rations there. However, this money is invested in War Bonds and we would like to leave it there, as long as possible. Other locals no doubt have their convention funds invested in War Bonds also. At least 75% of our membership, from all indications, will be idle by next September and thereafter, thus cutting down our income and causing us to dip into our reserve funds, which are also invested in War Bonds. Other locals no doubt are faced with the same dilemma. Certainly under such conditions it would be very foolish for us to vote in favor of a convention and thus weaken our financial condition. We believe a local union or any other organization is just as strong as its treasury. You cannot function properly without funds. Our members who would have attended the convention, if held, fully realize this and they were the very first ones to favor postponement, because they are good union men first and delegates after.

We always send delegates to the L. I. U. conventions. If we did not, we would never vote to hold one. If we did not send representatives to a convention, we would prefer to elect International officers and settle all other important International matters by a referendum vote, so that our members would have an opportunity to vote and have a voice in the affairs of the International Union.

A local union that votes to hold a convention and then does not send a delegate there to represent them, is cutting their own throat, because they are deliberately voting to turn over their voting rights to a small number of delegates that attend a convention at which they will have no representation, no voice or vote. They would also be voting to instruct the International Union to spend a large sum of money (said to be about $15,000), money belonging to them and the rest of the rank and file, to hold a war time convention in which they will not participate. Is this good business, or is it using good common sense?

Any person advising a local union that does not send a delegate to a convention, to vote in favor of holding such a convention, certainly is giving very poor advice and cannot be interested in the welfare of that local union or its members. It would be well for local unions to keep their weather eye peeled for any smooth talking, oily tongued orator who advises such a course, for he must have a personal reason for doing so.

We favor postponement until after the war, when the outlook for employment of our members is brighter. No one has pointed out one single good reason why we should waste both International and local union funds for a convention that can serve no useful purpose. The idea is simply ridiculous after one carefully considers the uncertainties and inadvisability of such action during war time.

We sincerely trust that other members will agree with us and will vote to postpone the convention for the duration of the war. We believe they are intelligent enough to do so.

Fraternally yours,
Lathers District Council of St. Louis

Members of the L. I. U.
Greetings:

I have heard it stated, that some of those favoring the holding of a convention, are going to try to build up their case with letters or a statement to the effect that our per-capita tax is too high and should be reduced and that the matter would be brought up at the next convention in Chicago. A hint of this line of misleading propaganda was contained in the letter from Bro. Ed. Vanderhoff, Business Agent, of Toledo, Ohio, printed in the June Lather, wherein he states "The convention could possibly help any local to solve its financial problems." No other interpretation can be placed on that statement. The percapita tax was originally raised at the behest of the Illinois State Council of Lathers or one of its affiliates, with their support. They requested the increase in order to place more organizers in the field to combat other trades stealing our work and the move for the increase was very wise and timely, and concurred in unanimously by the convention delegates.

Every well informed lather knows that our per capita tax is among the lowest in the building trades. They likewise know that the income from our present percapita tax is insufficient to keep enough organizers in the field to properly protect our interests. They know that from a numerical standpoint, we are a comparatively small organization and the only way we could increase the number of organizers in the field, is to increase the percapita tax instead of lowering it. As a matter of fact, there was considerable discussion at the N. Y. convention of increasing the per-capita tax to $2.00 per month so we could have better and stronger representation in the field like other International unions, so that instead of any reduction being anticipated at a convention, it is exactly the opposite.

There can be no change in the percapita tax, either up or down until another convention is held, but it is a certainty that when a change is made, it will not be down.

If the above type of misleading and confusing propaganda is resorted to in order to secure votes, then the rank and file should repudiate such efforts by a unanimous vote to postpone the convention. Maybe this letter will prevent the circulation of such nonsense, as last minute high pressure propaganda. Let us hope so.

The issue is clear as crystal; we have a world war; we are fighting in many parts of the world; the U. S. Government asks postponement of conventions and other gatherings for the duration to help in the movement of supplies and troops. Thousands of other conventions have been patriotically cancelled. What is your answer going to be?

Dear Sir and Brother:

Local 132 received a letter from Bro. John J. Vohden, Jr. of Newark, N. J. and a letter containing a statement of the nine vice presidents who voted in favor of a referendum vote.

Local 132 concurs in the statements contained in both of the above and believe they give plenty of good reasons why the convention should be postponed until after the war.

Our nine vice presidents and Brother Vohden are to be congratulated for the intelligent manner in which they presented the case for postponement, as any one with good common sense should know that we should not hold a convention during the war.

Mr. Terry Ford
Dear Sir and Brother:

In a test vote, this local voted unanimously for postponement of our International convention for the duration. We have many more men in here now, so will have to wait for the referendum.

Dear Sir and Brother:

In regards to the convention, you know our local union is small and funds are low. We find it not advisable to have the convention.

Hoping this will explain everything, I am,

Mr. Wm. J. McSorley
Dear Sir and Brother:

I am writing you my own views regarding the convention question. I do not believe that in view of the need for transportation, which is so badly needed for victory, that we should add to its load needlessly at this time, by the shipment of records, etc., in fact moving our headquarters to the convention city and the attendant movement of a large body of men, adding to the already crowded conditions of the convention city , also the spending of a large sum of money which could go into bonds or be used for more necessary things.

I have been a member of the L. I. U. since 1910: three years as an apprentice; journeyman since 1913. I served under Jim Mularkey and Dick Quick; worked with and was guided by such men as Shanty Larkin, Bill Waltermeyer, Sam Miller, and a host of others. I was taught to put welfare of the LIU and local first on my list of doing my bit; to make better conditions for a worker and to do him as I would be done to. I served my time and became a journeyman in local 283, now 27. I have the fullest confidence in our present officers and can foresee no really needed changes in our laws.

I have one son in the air corps now and another to go shortly. I want us all to unite and do our darndest to give them what it takes to win. I am therefore in favor of a referendum vote to postpone the regular convention, as proposed by the majority of the International Executive Board.

To The Members of The L. I. U.

Gentlemen:

You men can readily see that the signers of the circulars distributed and signed by various officials of our Illinois local unions and others, have outdone themselves in trying to condemn Brother Hagen and others who disagree with them. Instead of confining their arguments to a rebuttal of facts presented in the statement issued by Brother Hagen, these intellectuals select two or three paragraphs of his two full page statement, and on these they concentrate their venomous attack. Such stupid action will immediately be recognized by every intel'igent lather for what it is: last minute smear propaganda. This is an effort to sabotage an honest, sincere and earnest presentation of facts favoring postponement. They confine their arguments to parliamentary analysis and a discussion of democracy within the union and then make a deliberate accusation that President McSorley and Secretary-Treasurer Ford are not acting in accordance with the International Constitution.

The statement issued by Brother Hagen did not inject personalities into the discussion. He stated his honest opinion of facts as he saw them and mailed them out last May, to give everyone an opportunity to disprove them, if they cou'd. He or we do not mind constructive criticism, but name-calling, bitter prejudice, jea'ousy and personal feelings, should have no place in this discussion. This issue is bigger than any one or any group of individuals. The statements and views they disseminate illustrate the type of individuals we have to deal with at conventions. You can imagine how much brotherly love and democracy they spread around. This statement they sent out illustrates the kind of brotherly love we might expect at the next convention, with brotherly love oozing from every pore.

They made much ado about a paragraph in which Brother Hagen stated: "No one could forsee or foretell the future," intimating that whi'e Hagen could not, they could. With their foresight, why did these dear brothers of Local 74 call a special meeting for the purpose of voting on the convention issue, when they were humiliated by the vote of only 108 votes in favor of the convention out of a membership of over six hunderd. They should have gazed into their crystal ball.

They ridicule Hagen's statement about not being able to foretell the future and state that: "Such a statement has no basis in fact or history." Let's see what these self-announced historians know about history:

If the U. S. Government could have foreseen the future, would we have shipped scrap iron to Japan, to be shot back at our armed forces? Would the Pearl Harbor tragedy have occurred? Would the Phillipines, Singapore, the Dutch East Indies have been lost to Japan and our source of rubber cut off? What kind of dumb bells do these people think lathers are, to swallow the kind of slop they dish out? But people without an honest, legitimate basis for their argument, must resort to the old worn-out method of personal attack on the opposition. This is known as plain, unalterated political trickery.

Did you notice how these dear brothers bring into the picture the propaganda you were warned about by Brother Mooney, Secretary of Local 142? Read his letter in the July LATHER. He told you that an attempt might be made to bring per capita tax reduction into the issue for vote getting purposes and, sure enough, he had the right dope. One of the inner sanctum must have let the cat out of the bag. They did not only suggest per capita tax reduction, but also elimination of the 25 cent assessment that was put into law at the Toronto convention, at the request of these very gentlemen, to hire organizers to protect our interests and promote our industry. Of course, Hagen was not first vice president then. They talk of a convention to devise methods of advancing the interests of lathers and then suggest taking away the financial means of doing this. Then they call Hagen inconsistent. And they are the people who talk about insulting the intelligence of the rank and file.

Conventions were postponed from 1929 to 1936 due to the financial outlook of local unions. Hagen was not first vice president then, but we favored postponement then and favor it now for the above and many other and more important reasons, as outlined in the June LATHER. Then, Section 185 was a part of our International Constitution, as it is now. Then it was all right to postpone, but now it is unconstitutional. Who is inconsistent? Does this war, and all the uncertainties it creates, mean nothing to these dear brothers?

Did you notice the oratorical outbursts made in the circular and also in the letters from Cleveland concerning the possibility that if this convention is postponed, there will be no more conventions and election of International officers and other important International matters might be settled by a referendum vote? Of course this would propably be a terrible calamity, because then the voting would be shifted from the 2% or less of our membership who attend conventions as delegates, from a small proportion of our local unions, to each and every member of the rank and file, who would then have representation according to taxation. What is wrong with that system, which gives every member of the rank and file an opportuntiy to express his opinion on important International matters? Why do these self-styled leaders of democracy within the International make such a fuss and go to such great lengths to discourage even the mention of such a thing? Isn't representation according to taxation the democratic way of doing things? The whole argument is a figment of their own imagination but they distort this democratic arrangement for purely political reasons.

They attempt a dramatic presentation of a letter from William Green, instead of calmly and dispassionately discussing the merits of the case. We are not interested in what other unions do. We are lathers and most of us have been forgotten in defense construction, while other trades and locals have built up fat treasuries. Our local unions will be in desperate need of the funds they now have on hand, if any, in the near future, but those advocating the holding of a convention and who talk lofty principles and philosophies, while at the same time they sow seeds of dissension in the rank and file, seem to care nothing about the locals with low funds or no funds at all.

Hagen wrote the article they refer to in the St. Louis Labor Tribune, which they make such a fuss about. We thought it was pretty good. The circular distributors want to know who assured Hagen he would be re-elected at the next convention? for what objective? by what authority?

LETTERS RECEIVED IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

Silly, isn't it? Of course Hagen thinks he will be re-elected. He wouldn't think much of himself if he thought otherwise. He has a record of re-elections for the last nineteen years. Maybe he had a divine inspiration when he wrote that. Surely, these last-minute circular distributors know why Hagen thinks he will be re-elected. He anticipates re-election, the same as they did when they were in the driver's seat. And believe us, if he wasn't re-elected, he would be a good loser.

We in St. Louis are familar with the many constructive things Brother Hagen has done for the rank and file. You men know of his educational campaigns locally and nationally through the columns of THE LATHER, CRAFT PROBLEMS, and other publications. He has developed many new ideas and new methods of construction, that have resulted in new opportunities for lathers for employment. He has been called to other cities as an expert on lathers' and plasterers' problems. He has been consulted by the Engineering Department of the United States Government on problems of our industry, and he has many other things to his credit. We merely mention these so that you voters can draw a comparison between his contributions to the industry and the contributions made by those who have viciously attacked him. Hagen has been a devoted representative of ours for the last 19 years. Compare the records of any of those who condemn him or put them all together and combine their contributions to the good and welfare of the International and see what it sums up to.

We have avoided personalities in this letter. We ask you, however, to consider the above facts carefully when deciding how to vote on the convention issue. People are known by their deeds, not words. Remember this when taking into consideration the data submitted and the persons submitting it.

Fraternally yours,

Lathers District Council of Greater St. Louis

To Members Of The International Union
Of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Soon you will be called upon to vote on the convention issue. In order to vote intelligently on this matter ,the undersigned would like you to take into consideration the following thoughts:

Who is urging local unions that would not send a delegate if there was a convention, to vote in favor of holding a convention, when such a local would have no representation, no voice or no vote? What advantage is a convention to such a non-participating local union? Who wants local unions to sacrifice funds financing delegates to a convention, when such funds will be badly needed by local unions in the near future for local expenses? Who advises spending local funds financing delegates when the future financial outlook of most local unions is very dark?

Who advises spending a huge sum out of the International treasury, money belonging to all the members, to hold a convention in war time, when such funds could be better used placing organizers in the field to protect and advance our interests, etc. If convention postponement was justified during the depression (and we believe it was) when lack of local funds to send delegates was the main reason for such postponement, who can say that postponement now is not many times more important and necessary when our nation is in a fight for survival, when the lives of thousands in the armed services depend on full co-operation of civilians, the lives of many close to members of the L. I. U. and when the future of most locals is very dark?

Who advises a convention when Uncle Sam asks civilians to minimize traveling in order to save rubber and leave the railroads, busses etc., free for the concentration of troop and supply movements and thus facilitate the war program, helping to rush supplies to our hard-pressed allies and in the creation of a second front? Who wants to vote for a convention when not one single good reason can be advanced for such arbitrary action? To do so is to place one more obstacle in the way of the war effort.

We ask members to take into serious consideration, the above facts, together with many others outlined by others who favor postponement. Compare them with the reason given in favor of a convention by the few advocating such a course and we believe you will readily approve of postponement as the only sensible, practical and patriotic action a good union man can take.

Fraternally yours,

Sal Maso, Bus. Mgr.

AN ANSWER TO THE LETTER OF THE LAKE ERIE DISTRICT COUNCIL OF LATHERS AND LOCAL 2, CLEVELAND, OHIO

To Members of The L. I. U.:

Letters from the above organizations have been distributed to locals in which the International Law has been misinterpreted and in which it is intimated that President McSorley overstepped his authority by referring the subject matter of a referendum vote to the executive council of the L. I. U. They state: "The referendum rule as set forth in Section 202 was never intended to be used for the purpose it is now being used." Who authorized them to interpret the meaning of our laws? They further state: "The referendum was to take care of some emergency occurring between conventions—some question of vital importance that had not been considered or anticipated by the convention."

Let us accept that interpretation at its face value. If the world war is not an emergency and something that had not been considered or anticipated by the convention three years ago, what is it? We could hardly call it an every day occurrance. Is the world war, in which sugar and tire rationing and priorities and high taxes and registration of all males from 18 to 65, etc., an emergency? Are we as citizens of this republic involved in that emergency or are we different from other Americans?

Let us carry this analysis a little further: Section 15 of the L. I. U. Constitution states in part: "It shall be the duty of the General President to decide all questions of law."; and Section 41 states, in part: "The Executive Council shall have the power to act upon all questions referred to them by the General President." And there is nothing, not one single word in Section 202 they refer to, that conflicts in any manner, shape or form, with the other two sections mentioned. Are their misstatements an intelligent presentation of the reasons why they consider a convention advisable?

LETTERS RECEIVED IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

Another misstatement they make as follows: "If the convention is postponed, we will never have another convention." This is pure bunk and they know it. We had conventions postponed before and for much lesser reasons than exist today for postponement. Is this an attempt to stampede confused voters into voting for a convention? They know perfectly well that if this convention is postponed by the rank and file, that the same rank and file will decide after the war on what date they wish to hold a convention. Can anything be more democratic than that? No one can change this regardless of what imaginary parliaments tell you.

They make another statement that if this convention is postponed "it will be the end of the rule of one vote for each local union, large or small, and the election of officers and the making of laws wil be dictated by five per cent of the local unions." This is a deliberate falsification of the facts. If such a thing were to come to pass, it would have to be brought into existence by the delegates to the next convention and every well informed person knows they have never favored such an arrangement. Is this another attempt to stampede voters to their way of voting?

They state that few delegates will travel to the convention by train, etc. "Groups will go to the convention by automobiles," they state. The same day I read headlines in the daily papers that President Roosevelt said tires on private cars may be confiscated because of failure of the scrap rubber campaign, and he does not mean your spare tire. In that case, not using trains, if they are restricted to war business, delegates could probably walk to the convention. Even with cars, we may have gas rationing nationally to save tires, but of course, these obstacles can be brushed aside lightly, especially by those living within a few miles of the convention city. That would be candy for them. If, due to government restrictions at convention time, they could hold a private convention of their own.

They state: "We have a further duty to our country to support, both in resolution and debate, the drive for victory by our armed forces. Wouldn't we be contributing something more practical to the war effort by postponing our convention, saving rubber, tires, and local unions saving their funds? How are resolutions and debates of lathers goint to contribute any practical assistance to our armed forces? The men on the battlefield would appreciate it much more if we would buy war bonds, give our blood to the Red Cross bloodbanks, and take other practical action.

The balance of their oratorical outbursts consume a lot of space, with a discussion of International Union's history and functions, parliamentary law, labor history, bankers' conventions, peace after the war, resolutions to help the war effort, and a lot of other pure, unadulterated bunk that is foreign to the issue under discussion. Their letters consistently evade the real issue and wander off at a tangent with meaningless, long-winded statements, wisecracks, and diatribes against the undersigned, misstatements and falsifications, and other extraneous matter. Instead of honest and constructive criticism against the many sensible reasons given in my full two-page statement for postponement, they select a few paragraphs and on these they vent their spleen in a futile attempt to make them appear ridiculous; 99% of the constructive thought in my statement they never mentioned, nor could they criticise, because they are honest and truthful statements. Not in one line did I indulge in personalities, personal attacks, or accusations. I stuck to the facts in the case and based by argument solely on facts and indisputable evidence of the advisability of postponement. Anyone in doubt can read my statement printed in the June LATHER. I would like them to do so and compare it with the Cleveland and Chicago statements circulated. Compare also the persons who signed the different documents and the contributions such individuals have made to the rank and file in an educational and other constructive ways. Need I say more?

All I request of the rank and file is that they study this question carefully and remember that their own interests are at stake.

Harry J. Hagen, 1st Vice President.

Mr. Terry Ford
Dear Sir and Brother:

The members of Local 429, Harrisburg, Pa. are unanimously in favor of postponing our International convention.

Fraternally yours,
Joseph Moore, Act. Sec.
Local Union 429.

Dayton, Ohio,
July 12, 1942.

To the members of The L. I. U.
Brothers:

It has been stated in pamphlets and circular letters sent out by those who are opposing the postponement of our International Union Convention, scheduled for this September, that submitting such a proposal to our general membership, through the medium of a referendum as provided by Section 202 of our International Constitution, was unconstitutional and that Section 202 was never intended to be used for the postponement of conventions.

The Lake Edie District Council of Lathers sent out a circular letter which stated on page two, second last paragraph: "A vice president who voted to submit the question of postponing the convention stated at a meeting of the Lake Erie District Council of Lathers, held in Akron, Ohio, Saturday, March 14, 1942, that he was on the committee in the Toronto convention that handled the resolution that is now Section 202 of the International Constitution. He stated that the committee made its report with the understanding that a convention could not be postponed again while we were operating under the convention system."

That statement is not only incorrect, but is the exact opposite of what was said at that meeting. The undersigned is the vice president referred to and I want to say that I did attend that meeting of the Lake Erie District Council of Lathers and, during the discussion on the advisability of postponing the International convention and submitting the proposal to the general membership by referendum, I informed the meeting that I was on the committee that drafted the referendum resolution at the Toronto convention and that the major discussion in the committee was to draft a resolution that could be used as a referendum for the postponement of conventions.

Regarding the inference that a referendum on the postponement of conventions is unconstitutional and that Section 202 was never intended to be used for that purpose. I would like to refer the membership to the Official Proceedings of the Toronto Convention, held October 19 to 23, 1936. On page 18 of those proceedings and under the caption "Law Suits," General President McSorley, in his report to the convention, stated: "In reference to the action of the Executive Council of the International Union regarding the postponement of our convention in 1932 and the repeal of the Convention Fund Law by referendum vote, all litigation in reference to the postponement of the convention was withdrawn from the Court of Appeals. I am firmly of the opinion that this convention should enact some legislation that would eliminate the possibility of any recurrence of this kind by incorporating into the constitution a provision that would allow the officers of the International Union in cases of emergency, to submit to a referendum vote of our membership any such emergency propositions when they arise.

LETTERS RECEIVED IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

On page 127 the Committee on President's Report made the following report to the convention:: "Under the caption of "Lawsuits" we commend the general office for the diligence in handling these suits and refer the President's expressed opinion in Case No. 1 to the attention of the Committee on Law and request the privilege of meeting with that committee for the purpose of drafting resolutions governing referendums and providing that referendums shall be extended over a period of four months. This report was signed by the entire Committee on President's Report as follows:

Ora A. Kress, David McVey, Walter M. Matthews, J. J. Langan, G. W. Stevenson, John Budd and Frank R. Smith.

Complying with this report and the action of the convention, the Committee on Law requested the Committee on President's Report to draft a suitable resolution and on page 149 of the Proceedings I find:

Resolution No. 71: To the 17th Convention of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union:

WHEREAS, At the present there are no provisions in our International Constitution governing a referendum on a matter of extreme emergency, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That a section be inserted into our International Constitution under the caption "Referendum," providing that a period of three months shall be given in which discussion our official journal, The Lather, shall be afforded to the proponents and opponents of the emergency measure proposed. It shall be the duty of the General Secretary-Treasurer to submit the proposal to each and every local at least one week prior to the three-month discussion period mentioned above. The General Secretary shall prepare the ballots with the proposal printed thereon and squares for the affirmative and negative votes. He shall also prepare tabulation sheets, these shall be sent to the local unions in sufficient time for the referendum. The date to be set by the General Office. The local secretary shall notify in writing all members of the time and place of referendum which shall be by secret vote. The ballots shall be counted by a committee of tellers elected by the local union and the results of the tabulation thereof be forwarded to headquarters within three days after voting. Failing to comply with these provisions governing the referendum by any local will be punishable by a fine not to exceed $500 and the ballots of the offending local disqualified.

(s) Ora A. Kress, Buckeye State Council
D. A. McVey, Local 74
Geo. Stevenson, Local 39

which was a subcommittee selected by the Committee on President's report.

Then on page 195 of the Proceedings, Delegate Haggerty, reporting for the joint Committee on Law and Committee on Resolutions, recommended the adoption of Resolution No. 71, which is now Section 202 of our International Constitution.

I am sure if our general membership will consult the pages of our Toronto convention proceedings they will readily understand that the submission of the question of postponing a convention, to our general membership through the medium of a referendum, is not only legal, but that Section 202 was made a part of our consitution primarily for that purpose.

So far as the actual postponement of the convention is concerned, I feel that the many reasons for postponement have been so ably and clearly explained by others, that for me to set out my reasons for postponement would only clutter up the record by repetition. However, I do want to say that I know of no good reason why a convention should be held this year, while there are many reasons of a patriotic nature as well as the preservation of our organizations, why we should not hold a convention this year. Therefore, I most certainly favor the postponement.

Ora A. Kress, 5th Vice President.

LABOR SMASHING ALL PRODUCTION RECORDS

Detroit.—Following are highlights from the address of President William Green at the labor rally here sponsored by the United States Army on Independence Day:

America is now prepared for all-out war! Very soon we will be ready to strike at the enemies of democracy with the full power and fury of our armed forces, backed up by the most devastating and inexhaustible supply of war weapons the world has ever seen. That is our victory message on this Independence Day to Hitler and Hirohito and Mussolini!

And that is also the answer of American labor to the question:—What are you doing in this war? For in the short seven months since Pearl Harbor American workers have done what was considered impossible and have made "fantastic" production goals come true.

American workers, serving on the home productionn front, are not confining their contributions toward winning the war to hard work alone. They are giving their sons and brothers to our army and navy. They are tightening their belts and buying War Bonds with every spare dollar. They are giving their blood to the Red Cross, and they are supporting every worthy war relief agency. Finally they are training themselves in their own time after working hours for civilian defense, to protect our homeland against any enemy attack

Letters Received Not in Favor of Postponing Our Convention

LAKE ERIE DISTRICT COUNCIL OF LATHERS
Composed of Locals 2, 24, 28, 71, 126, 171, 395, 431 and 443

Cleveland, Ohio.

To the Officers and Members of all Local Unions of the
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union:—

The following is a statement authorized by the unanimous action of delegates to the Lake Erie District Council composed to Locals 2, 24, 28, 71, 126, 171, 395, 431 and 443:—

Our International Union was established for the purpose of having a nationally organized militant group of lathers, who could, through that organization collectively work for the advancement of the craft. The preamble of our constitution recites that we became organized in an International Union because the meager profits derived from selfish, local independent organizations served to show the lathers of America that it was necessary to establish a compact International Union and adopt for its guidance a constitution. By adhering to our constitution, we have become a strong and effective unit in the American labor movement.

The constitution is a contract between the union and every individual member, and it defines the rights and obligations of each member of the union, and the rights and obligations of the Union to each member. We have determined to govern ourselves by this constitution, and to assemble, through delegates elected by local unions, district councils and state councils, in convention, so that questions that are vital to our organization may be discussed, debated and advanced so that the organization will continue to grow strong. That conventions such as set up in our constitution are necessary is attested to by the fact that every organization periodically holds conventions. In convention preparation may be made and programs outlined to take care of conditions that are confronting the organization and to prepare for the future.

The referendum rule as set forth in Section 202 was never intended to be used for the purpose it is now being used. The referendum was to take care of some emergency occurring between conventions—some question of vital importance that had not been considered by the convention or anticipated by the convention. And because there is a lapse of three years between meetings, it was considered that it might be necessary from time to time to have the union express its will on some emergency matter that had to be taken care of before the next convention.

This attempt by an emergency referendum to suspend the convention is an attempt to twist into that section some thing that is contrary to the basic law of our organization.

The holding of our convention will have no effect upon passenger travel because few of the convention delegates will travel by train; groups will go to the convention by automobile—a number of delegates occupying one automobile. A circular sent to local unions by Harry Hagen says: "We cannot plan ahead." While Harry Hagen may not be able to plan ahead, it is an insult to the intelligence of the members of this union to make such a statement. He would have you fold up and die during the duration of the war, and at the end of the war attempt to resurrect yourselves.

We could never tell what the future would be. But we can use our experience and our knowledge to prepare the plans that will guide us in the days to come. What an argument to present to you that we should not hold a convention because we cannot anticipate what is in the future!

The trouble has been with the world that too much planning has been left to politicians and to wealthy imperialists who have sought to establish peace in the world by glorifying themselves and accumulating power and wealth. The result of their methods has been to plunge the world into this horrible war.

In order that there be a just peace, it is necessary for labor to participate in the making of that peace, so that the masses of the people, not only in America, but all over the world, will secure proper food, clothing and shelter. As an active participant of the American labor movement, is our voice not to be heard? Are the ideas present in the minds of our organized craft to be silenced by the suspension of the constitution?

If the American labor movement had followed the idea found in Hagen's communication, I wonder what kind of a movement it would be today. It was by meeting in convention and voicing ideas, and as a unit making demands, that gradually the policies for which the movement stood succeeded, and working men began to rally to the American labor movement, and it grew in strength and power because of the enactment of the various programs established in convention. And the delegates did not stay away from the convention because there was restricted travel. The delegates were very often restricted in funds, but they got to the convention.

While we are urged to forego our convention, bankers associations and manufacturers associations are holding their conventions, and formulating their programs for the future. The above mentioned circular, which is intended to be an argument against holding a convention states this: "These materials can be used for the practical elimination of lathing and plastering." This quotation is a statement by a lather who is referring to substitutes. Such a statement is worth a lot of money to a salesman of substitutes for the kind of work that we depend on for a living for ourselves and our families; and instead of rising up to fight these substitutes for lath and plaster, he advises you to wait until your trade is destroyed, before you hold a convention.

After there is no more lathing to be done, we then should meet and pool our experiences and ideas. Then would be a psychological time, according to him, to meet and cry on one anothers' shoulders and plan for the future. This does not appear to be the advice of a lather who wants to protect the best interests of our trade. Follow such advice and our organization will stand by and do nothing while our trade is being destroyed. Liberty and freedom are for the vigilant only. The forces against freedom are always at work, and we, as freedom-loving American workmen, are not going to fold up for the duration of the War. In convention you can let the world know where the American lathers stand in this war.

No organization of working men can be effective and progressive unless they are constantly moving forward, and keeping pace with the economic changes that are so rapidly taking place in the world and effecting their crafts .

All industries not on defense work have been affected by priorities regulations that have been set up to conserve critical materials for needs in armaments, but the records show greater expenditures for construction today than ever before. Construction is recognized as an important part of our all-out war program, and while some localities have had a shortage of work in the trade, others have had more than they could handle. A great many of local unions have increased in membership. There is nothing unusual about a condition of a scarcity of work in the trade in some localities at the same time that employment was good in another locality.

A vice president who voted to submit the question of postponing the convention stated at a meeting of the Lake Erie District Council of Lathers held in Akron, Ohio, Saturday, March 14, 1942, that he was on the committee in the Toronto convention that handled the resolution that is now Section 202 of the International Constitution. He stated that the committee made its report with the understanding that a convention could not be postponed again while we were operating under the convention system. If this convention is postponed, we will never have another convention; and the democratic way now provided for by the constitution to conduct the affairs of the International Union, including the election of officers, will be done away with forever.

Is the motive behind the move to postpone this convention in the best interest of our trade and the International Union? We are certain that it is not, and we cannot prevail upon our fellow craftsmen too emphatically, to exercise your opportunity to vote against any postponement.

With the very best wishes of our council, we remain,

Yours fraternally,

Howard Durell, W. S. Limes, F. R. Smith,
Convention Committee,
The Lake Erie District Council of Lathers.

Houston, Texas
June 26, 1942

Mr. Terry Ford

Dear Sir and Brother:

I would like for you to permit me to express my personal opinion thru The Lather with reference to the postponement of the 1942 convention of the Lathers International Union.

There has been much argument for the postponement of this convention from a financial standpoint. If we take this attitude why not reduce expenditures all down the line, this we know would curtail the efficiency of the International Union. In all cases we build up reserves to meet an emergency.

We know that there will be a large number of our membership inducted into the armed forces and thereby deprived of the opportunity of attending this convention, but how do you think they would feel about us, who are left at home thru no fault of our own, if we do not carry on and safeguard the rights they have suffered to maintain.

Personally, I never was in favor of meeting an emergency with postponement and thereby prolonging the agony and dodging the issue.

Very respectfully,

Louis George, Sec.
Local Union 224.

STATEMENT OF FACTS WHY OUR CONVENTION SHALL BE HELD ON THE SECOND MONDAY IN SEPTEMBER IN CHICAGO

Section 202 of the Constitution of the L. I. U. on Emergency Referendum provides in part as follows:

"A period of three months shall be given in which discussion in our official journal, The Lather, shall be afforded to the proponents and opponents of the emergency measure proposed. It shall be the duty of the General Secretary-Treasurer to submit the proposal at least one week prior to the three month discussion period mentioned above."

This section is clear and definite in its purpose and constitutes a mandate to all members and officers of our International and its locals.

Under date of May 1, 1942, the General Secretary-Treasurer sent out the proposal for a referendum vote on the postponement of our convention, and he also directed "that the referendum vote on the postponing of our convention will be held by each local union the last week in July in their regular meeting hall, in accordance with the provisions of this section." This order reduces the three month discussion period provided in Section 202.

It took the International Office from January 28 to May 1, 1942 to publish in The Lather (May Journal) that there were communications seeking to postpone our convention. Why did our International Office not give the other locals the same opportunity to voice their opposition to postponing the convention? The call for our convention was published in the April journal and the Morrison Hotel was selected as the place of the convention and the date of the convention was set for the second Monday of September, 1942, thus creating the belief among the membership that the convention would be held. We contend that such procedure is definitely confusing and misleading; first complying with the Constitution by preparing for the convention and then endeavoring to unconstitutionally take it away from the membership.

We contend the following: That it is not within the power of any officer or member of our International to reduce the discussion period by a single day; that the whole procedure of this so-called emergency proposal is undemocratic and in violation of the L. I. U. Constitution, and in violation of Sec. 202 and deprives the rank and file of their full three months discussion period.

Why this hurry to propose the postponing of our convention and upsetting of the fundamental and true principles of trade union democracy? We sincerely and emphatically request our General President, in the interest of unity and democracy, to repeal this entire procedure or defer action so as to provide the rank and file with ample time in conformity with the real spirit and intent of Section 202. However, it is our firm and honest conviction that not even Section 202 can be interpreted to be used for the postponement of our convention.

Section 185 of the L. I. U. Constitution specifically provides in part that: "The conventions of this organization shall convene every three years at 10 a. m., on the second Monday of September, at such a place as the delegates have selected at the preceding convention." This section, not any other section, provides for any means of postponing our convention, not even the power of the General President can change it. Had Section 202 been intended to provide for postponement of the convention it would so state, and Sec. 185 regarding said convention should then have been amended, to provide for the machinery for postponing a mandatory convention. Section 185 states that the "conventions shall convene every three years." It does not say that the conventions may convene, nor does it stipulate that the convention shall convene except as provided for under emergency referendum, Section 202.

LETTERS RECEIVED NOT IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

If Section 202 can be interpreted as machinery for possible postponement of our convention, then by the same token, the election of our International Officers and their salaries and a change in per capita tax and all other laws must also be submitted to a referendum. Submitting a proposal for the postponement of this convention to a referendum is in contradiction to the principles of representation in our present L. I. U. Constitution, which provides for one delegate from each local union, district and state councils. Postponement of an already constituted convention is positively and clearly in violation of our present L. I. U. Constitution.

The last postponement of our convention opened up a wide split in our International with deep bitterness. Are we to experience a similar situation at a time when unity is more needed than ever to protect and extend, and not to curtail or destroy democratic processes?

Brother Hagen labored and brought forth cynical defeatism and no solution to our problems. In his statement he declares: "None of us can foresee or foretell the future." This declaration has no basis in fact or history. He apparently refuses to learn from history. He then proceeds to contradict himself by proceeding to foretell, which he previously declared none could do, the probable complete elimination of lathing, and he says that "when these things come to pass, it will be a more appropriate time to hold a convention"; and he further says "then we will really have a problem on our hands and something of supreme importance to us all to discuss." That is the logic of the isolationists relative to the war, and dubbed as the logic of the ostrich. After our trade is eliminated, then Brother Hagen is favorable to a convention. For what, for the ceremonial burial of our trade? We contend that now is the time to hold the convention, and through the creative ability and foresight of the locals and their delegates to hammer out a program in our convention to protect and extend the use of lathing and convince the respective Government agencies, and the public that good lathing and plastering is in the end more economical, more efficient, of greater protection to health, and against fire hazards, and more flexible in construction than any substitute yet devised.

In our convention we will be more efficiently able to enact a program which will convince the War Production Board that it is practical to provide employment for all lathers now by the use of lathing and plastering, and in other ways provide employment to all the rank and file of the L. I. U. in connection with the war effort to smash fascism everywhere, so as to provide political and economic democracy and security to all peoples of the world.

Quality of leadership and its continuation in office in our International Union is not for any one individual or group of individuals to determine, no matter how important they are or may consider themselves to be; that is the democratic right, duty and responsibility of all the members of the L. I. U. to determine, in accordance with the Constitution providing for same.

The cost of holding convention: With Brother Hagen as the chairman of the executive council of the L. I. U. they departed from the old economic procedure of holding the meetings in Cleveland and went to California, consequently additional expense to the L. I. U. of approximately $3,000. Is this consistent with his argument in favor of postponing our convention to save expenses?

Excessive expenditures to the International and its locals relative to holding conventions is a matter that can and should be corrected, but constitutes in itself no logical argument in favor of postponement of conventions and thereby deprive the rank and file of the essence of the tried and successful democratic procedure of holding trade union conventions. It is up to the locals to see to it that true economy prevails when sending delegates. The International Convention Fund was an economic and practical measure assuring the locals maximum representation in our conventions, at minimum expense and time, and events have confirmed it.

Brother Hagen's predictions of the probable elimination of our trade, with consequent unemployment, contradicts his proposal for postponement of our convention. We need a convention now more than ever before for the purpose of finding a practical solution to the grave problems confronting the membership of our International. Unemployed lathers walking the streets in search of employment does not aid in winning the war.

This is no time to inject the issue of postponing our convention and thus again create disunity in our ranks. We know of no International Unions which have as yet postponed their conventions.

Brother Hagen's theory and arguments and proposals, if carried out in full, would abolish all trade union conventions and local meetings, including the A. F. of L. conventions, and would destroy every vestige of trade union democracy and create a number of little Hitlers in office and elected for life. This is not consistent with a war for democracy and economic security and well-being and freedom for all people.

Under the slogan of unity of effort and equality in sacrifice, our convention can be held at less than half of original costs and a constructive program achieved for the protection and advancement of the economic and social well-being of the L. I. U. membership, and for the purpose of carrying out a program of employment opportunities to all the members. Our convention should be held in the light of true economy and to consider seriously the following issues for the duration:

1. Reduction in the per capita tax from $1.00 to 70c per month.
2. Repeal of the 25c monthly assessment.

This would mean a saving of approximately $150,000 for three years to the rank and file and aid them in maintaining their good standing.

If postponing the convention of our International, with approximately 165 delegates, is a true sign of democracy and patriotism and efficiency and economy and to stop the elimination of our trade and to solve unemployment among the lathers, then why is not Brother Hagen consistent and why does he not submit his theory and proposals to the coming A. F. of L. convention and its department? We challenge him to do that. It would provide the convention with humor, if it was not so tragic. Let us not be penny-wise and dollar-foolish. Labor has always fought nazism, fascism, dictatorship and bureaucracy.

Let us hold the banner of trade union democracy high as a true sign of patriotism. Let no one tear it down. Let us continue the democratic procedure of holding conventions.

All matter for publication in The Lather must be in the hands of the General Secretary-Treasurer not later than the 25th in order to appear in the following month's issue of The Lather, consequently the rank and file are deprived of their constitutional right to voice their opinions on this vital subject through the official journal for the month of July, unless said journal has been placed in the hands of the rank and file before they vote on the referendum. Such a condition is also in flagrant violation of the spirit and intent of Section 202 and against a fair play and justice to the rank and file of our International. Organized labor in any industry expresses itself locally, through its individual membership to determine the will of the majority and nationally or internationally through its conventions held as provided by law. Every argument to suppress or eliminate national or international conventions would be as disastrous and un-American as it would be to insist locally upon the elimination of union meetings for the entire war period. Legally, individuals can only voice their sentiments as individuals at their local meeting, where by majority vote the union's policy is decided, and nationally or internationally union locals can only determine national or international policies by and through a vote of the representatives delegated to voice the opinions of the locals they were elected to represent. To eliminate either is to invite the destruction of both.

Our brothers in the service are fighting for democracy and against dictatorship and bureaucracy, and we are carrying on in the same spirit within our organization in order that the L. I. U. membership can, in conventions and meetings, express their position on present and future needs and aspirations, and prepare now for the post-war period.

We emphatically and sincerely urge you to vote for the holding of our convention in order to continue democracy in our International.

To The Members of The International Union

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

In answer to the referendum on whether a convention shall be held this year, my local by unanimous vote are in favor of holding the convention as scheduled.

I have several letters from district and state councils saying it will cost too much money to hold this convention, and the money saved could be used to much better advantage in other ways. I know it will cost money but each local has created a fund for this convention and it should not be used in any other way than sending delegates to this convention.

We all know that a great many of our members are in the service and many more will be there by the time of the convention but I am satisfied they would not want us to postpone the convention when there is so much at stake at the present time.

If we are to fold up for the duration of the war and make no effort to save our trade and the plastering and lathing is in the hands of others, then what will we have to give our members that are in the service when they come home?

Every lather knows that we have lost much of our work through the use of the different substitutes for wood lath, and there has been but very little done to rectify it.

I have been a lather for more than 50 years and in that time have seen many changes in our trade, have always held some office and most of the time have done work for nothing and expect to do much more at the same price. If some of the business agents and secretaries that receive large salaries are afraid of losing it by holding this convention, then it is time they should step down and out and let some good union man take over the work for the good of all members in their locals when such a condition occurs.

As to the finances of the International Union and all the locals, there has never been a time when we were in better shape to hold a convention than at the present time. There has been more work in the last three years than ever before and are in better financial condition now than they will be in two or three years from now.

At the New York convention there was a resolution adopted asking all locals to create a fund for the purpose of sending delegates to the next convention and the most of them have done so. This is the second time that this has been done and the second time that a postponement has been recommended. I wonder if the ones that are back of this in not wanting to hold this convention know what happened at the St. Louis convention and the same thing may happen in Chicago.

As to the ways and means to get to the convention, Mr. Hagen says the way of travel by convention time will be restricted, and that may be true, but there has never been a convention but what we all got there. Elect the right man, give him the credentials and some money, and he will be there when the convention opens.

Then why postpone our convention when if the American Federation of Labor and all state federations and building trades councils think that they need to hold a convention and are making plans to hold theirs.

Mr. Hagen speaks of leadership. We all know that we have a president that guided us through many years of hardship and brought us out on top and will do it again, but why throw all the responsibilities on him? Let us all get together and work out a plan for the interest of all.

The Lake Erie District Council has voted as a body in favor of holding a convention this year in Chicago.

As Secretary and Treasurer and Business Agent of Local Union No. 171, I hope to meet you one and all at the convention in Chicago. I remain, yours truly,

W. S. Limes, Secy.-Treas. and Bus Agt.
Local Union 171.

LETTERS RECEIVED NOT IN FAVOR OF POSTPONING OUR CONVENTION

To The Membership of The Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union

Greetings:

This referendum is illegal and unwise. The language of Section 202 clearly intends that the members shall have the opportunity to discuss a proposal in at least three monthly issues of The Lather and be given a reasonable opportunity to have that privilege.

Our publication, The Lather, generally does not get to the local secretary for distribution until about the 25th of the month for which it is issued. At least that is the experience of Local 190.

The editorial page of The Lather contains a permanent warning as follows: Matter for publication must be in not later than the 25th in order to appear in the following month's issue.

This means that it is physically impossible to write and deliver to Cleveland, Ohio, for publication of an article for the following month (May) publication of The Lather. In this particular case, the May 1942 issue of The Lather is the first opportunity to commence the three months period. Under this arrangement the discussion period should be the June, July and August issues. The referendum could then be held the earliest time after the full three issues were published containing the discussion period.

Any other method deprives the members of the full three months period of discussion. In effect it reduces the discussion period to two monthly issues, instead of the three monthly issues intended in Section 202. Such conduct is a violation of this section of the Constitution. Such violation is more flagrant when committed by an officer of an International Union than by a rank and file member.

Section 202 further provides for a fine of $500.00 against a local who fails to comply with Section 202. In practical effect the officers of the International Union are instructing their local unions to violate the constitution which the International officers are sworn to uphold. This alleged referendum is an illegal referendum. If the proposed violation of this section of the Constitution is not immediately withdrawn, this local union will take such action as is permissible and necessary to assist us in preventing such a violation.

We are relying upon the fair judgment of our General President to prevent the violation of the Constitution of our International Union.

Eastman's statement in the press deals with non-essential conventions. A trade union convention is not a social convention. It is a business convention for economic betterment of its members.

In view of the fact that our International is confronted with several serious problems at this time, we are out of the category of non-essential conventions.

The alleged appeals to patriotism by proponents of the referendum overreach the recommendation of Joseph Eastman, U. S. Defense Transportation Director.

The first duty of all citizens in promoting patriotism is to protect and preserve our democratic processes.

There are times when those who desire to squelch democratic processes do so by covering themselves under a false cloak of patriotism.

President William Green's position:

June 22, 1942

Mr. Walter Frank, Secretary,
Local 190, Wood, Wire and Metal
Lathers International Union
310 East Hennepin St.,
Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Replying to your letter of June 15, I enclose a list of the conventions of National and International Unions.

I know no good reason why the holding of conventions should be cancelled because of the war situation. Later on, if some good reason seems to arise which would justify the cancellation of conventions during the duration of the war, the membership of the American Federation of Labor will be advised.

Fraternally yours,
(S) Wm. Green, President
American Federation of Labor.

Mr. R. A. Olson, President of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor regarding postponing conventions for the duration of the war, says in part: "There appeared in the daily papers a story purporting to be a request by Mr. Eastman, Director of Transportation, urging the postponement of fairs, conventions, etc. Some people seem to think that that means that all conventions must be postponed this year.

"The State Federation of Labor, along with other bodies, have issued their convention call and made all other preparations for conventions this year.

"I think the patriotism of the American Federation of Labor stands as high as that of any organization in the country. When it becomes necessary to postpone our conventions in the interest of the war effort, I have no doubt but what the American Federation of Labor, through its president, will notify all their International Unions and State Federations."

Purpose of conventions. Labor, through the democratic medium of organization, meetings and conventions, aims to achieve unity and to collectively express its needs and will to improve its economic position in life; and to gain the recognition and enjoyment of rights to which it is justly entitled. Attempts to curtail or frustrate these means and rights is to strike a dagger at the very heart of Labor.

Our International Union is predicated on the same processes and aspirations, to protect and advance the social economic welfare of its membership.

The adoption of constructive policies requires detailed and correct understanding of the problems to be solved. It is an indisputable fact that collective and vital information regarding each or all of the locals of our International and the circumstances giving rise to the problems can most effectively and unitedly be dealt with in our convention.

We have grave and pressing problems now confronting all locals and our International. The solution of these problems cannot wait or be postponed without serious consequences to our trade and tremendous loss in wages from unemployment. This can and must be avoided through a constructive and collective policy of action now, by holding the convention.

The diminishing and probable elimination of our trade is predicted by opponents to the holding of our convention. As a solution to these grave problems, we are requested to postpone our convention.

What sophism. What a contradiction. They recommend for our problems not a doctor but an undertaker; they present a logic and strategy of Generals Too Late, Too Little and Do Nothing. Let us tackle our problems now. Too Late is an expensive and extravagant general.

Intolerance and half-truths. Another opponent to holding our convention says: "It would be well for local unions to keep their weather eye peeled for any smooth talking, oily tongued orator who advises such a course, for he must have a personal reason for doing so."

Such a statement represents an inferiority complex; it substitutes good reasoning for intolerance to the opinions of others; it judges others by ones own characteristics; it is begging the question for want of sound logic.

Another statement against holding the convention says: "Uncle Sam is asking that conventions, fairs, etc., be postponed to help the war program." Is that statement true or a distorted half-truth?

Joseph B. Eastman has not called for deferment of trade union conventions. The newspapers quoted him of referring to non-essential conventions. Trade union conventions are essential economic conventions. They deal with the very economic, bread and butter, and life questions of Labor.

Conserving funds in the interest of the rank and file. By observing true and consistent economy, both by our International and the local unions, our convention in September could be held at much less cost than before. Extravagant trimmings are not necessary.

In view of the grave problems confronting our trade, it may be necessary, in the interest of the rank and file, to reduce the International per capita tax to seventy cents per month and eliminate the twenty-five cent per month assessment for the next three years and other measures of entrenchments. This would mean a saving of more than $150,000 to the rank and file.

The expense to preserve democratic processes, including trade union democracy, is insignificant when compared with the enormous price of surrendering democracy.

Do not wait until our trade is beheaded. Do not wait until our problems become more grave.

Vote for holding our convention in September, 1942. Defend your trade union democracy.

Fraternally yours,
Walter Frank, Bus. Agt. and Sec.
Local Union 190.

To The Membership of The Wood, Wire & Metal
Lathers International Union
Brothers:—

By unanimous action of Local No. 2 the following is presented as reasons for voting against the postponement of our International Convention in 1942.

The resume at the end of a letter sent to you argues that because we are at war to maintain the democratic way of life, it is foolish even to consider holding a convention. If we are going to wrap up all our democratic activities for the duration of the war, and if our trade is going to fold up, as it says, it would not only be foolish to consider holding a convention, but it is foolish to have a Union. In other words, the resume argues that we should give up democracy in our Union and fight the war in order that we get democracy for our Union. It is absurd and ridiculous to be using the war as a reason for not holding the convention.

"Lock the barn door after the horse is stolen." That is the logic of the first argument set forth in the circular as a reason for postponing our convention. This circular informs you that we are threatened with substitutes such as wallboard and other types of construction that will drastically effect our craft, and advises that we can do nothing about it now, but that we should wait until the substitutes have been generally adopted before we make any plans how we will meet these radical changes. We know that the convention plan is the most effective and the only way that we can prepare and organize for these threatened changes to our craft. It is in convention that the elected delegates from every part of the country can exchange ideas, match experiences, and by resolution and debate plan for the future.

We do not only have a duty to our trade, but we have a further duty to our country to support both in resolution and debate the drive for victory by our armed forces. We must do this as an organized group of workmen, and it is only in convention that our organized voices can be heard.

We know that every lather is convinced that he is playing a very necessary part in the general scheme for the health and welfare of the public. We know that by advancing our craft and the use of materials that we advocate, that we are adding to public safety, health and sanitation. The knowledge of the types of construction that we advocate should be spread and extended to the public generally, and it can be done only by formulating the proper program in our conventions.

The flag waving, in connection with the arguments for postponement of our convention, and the argument about the cost of a convention, along with the statement that there is no danger of any change in the official family, are direct insults to the intelligence of the members of our International Union. We never had an International election, by referendum or in convention, that changes were not made. As to the cost of the convention, the International Union never was or never will be better able, financially, to hold a convention than now. Local Unions were urged to create a fund for convention purposes and most of them have done so.

The document that was sent out by Harry Hagen argues in one part that the convention should not be held because none of us can fortell what the future will be. That is an invitation to you to crawl into a hole for the duration of the war. Your voices are to be silenced and as a united craft you are to add nothing in thought or action as to what kind of a world you or your children are going to live in when this war is over.

The circular also states that if you vote to postpone the convention, you can vote by referendum on any matter that is not covered by the Constitution. But the circular failed to tell you that the holding of the convention is covered by the Constitution, and please remember that the Constitution does not make it necessary for the Executive Board to decide on the submission of a matter not covered by the Constitution.

Just one word in closing—this is your Union. Its success or its failure depends upon each one of you individually. Don't be fooled as to what this move means. Do your own thinking and vote against this referendum, and when you vote, insist, as the Constitution provides, that the vote be taken in the Local Union by secret ballot.

Remember this, that if the rank and file fail to arouse themselves against the postponement of this convention, the constiutional system of conducting all of the affairs of our International Union are gone forever. This will be the end of the rule of one vote for each Local Union—large or small; and the election of officers, and the making of laws will be dictated by five percent of the Local Unions.

Yours fraternally and for a Convention,

STATEMENT BY GEORGE T. MOORE

Defend democracy. Uphold the American way of trade union conventions. Following are excerpts from a long news item in the St. Louis Labor Tribune under date of June 17, 1942:

A. F. L. LATHERS REPRESENTATIVES ATTEND AN IMPORTANT N. Y. STATE COUNCIL MEETING IN NEW YORK.

"General President Wm. J. McSorley, Secy.-Treas. Terry Ford, First Vice-President Harry Hagen and other International officials present; abuses in building material substitutes discussed, convention postponement planned because of war."

"Harry Hagen, First Vice-President of the A. F. L. Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union has returned to St. Louis after several weeks' visit to eastern cities where he held numerous conferences with Lathers officials on industrial questions arising out of the war situation."

"Nation-wide representation — Attending the Council meeting were representatives from all local lathers unions in N. Y. State and representatives of lathers unions from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Washington, Massachusetts and the New England States, Missouri and other mid-west sections of the nation, in addition to half a dozen or more International officials."

"Convention Postponement Planned—Also discussed was the question of postponing the convention of the Lathers International Union, set for next September, for the duration of the war. The sentiment of all those present was unanimously in favor of postponement. Many reasons why such action should be taken were discussed at great length, among them patriotic reasons . . ."

". . . advisability of local unions keeping their local funds in their local treasuries for local expenses during the trying times ahead; waiting until those members of the International Union in the services of the nation who are fortunate enough to return, can have a voice in the convention; because present officials are assured of re-election, a convention is unnecessary during the war . . ."

"The New York State Council entertained their guests royally and after business was concluded, they provided a wonderful dinner, refreshments and excellent entertainment at th Latin Quarter, located at 48th and Broadway. A swell time was had by all and they voted New York Council a splendid host."

Who gave the paper the information? Has Harry Hagen as 1st Vice-President of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union taken the discussion of postponing the convention into the public press? Are his arguments that weak?

Who are the vacationing delegates and office seekers and wasters of local funds inferred by Hagen?

What does he mean when he says that, "we can not plan ahead now, because we do not know fully the obstacles we will have to overcome after the war" (out of June Journal, page 4). Yes, we can agree upon the fact that Hagen lacks that ability. He further states: "There is not a single good reason why a convention should be held next September"; and he poses as a peculiar kind of patriot when he seeks to advise us that the convention should be postponed for patriotic reasons. We do not accept Hagen's interpretation of patriotism on this issue. Hagen further states: "That because present officials are assured of re-election a convention is unnecessary during the war." Is such a declaration not the very depth of democratic degeneration, and an insult to the intelligence of the entire L. I. U. membership? Does Hagen include himself as one of the officers whose election is reassured, and who has reassured him, and by what means and for what objective and by what authority? Is that the kind of democracy our brothers are dying for on the battlefields? Why then the need of ever holding any conventions?

To say that their re-election is assured, and a set thing without resorting to the holding of a convention for that purpose, we believe to be the very opposite to democracy.

It is difficulty to believe that such callous disregard to other people's opinions; that such gross inability to judge past, present and future events; and that such enormous asininity and complete lack of real logic reposes in the head of the first vice-president of our International Union.

George T. Moore.

We feel we need this convention now more than ever before, as our work is very scarce and we need to work out a plan to benefit our members.

A CORRECTION BY THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

During the past few months, there have been many letters circulated among the membership of our International Union, as well as to our local unions and through the columns of the journal. Several of these communications set forth in the most emphatic terms that the action of the International President and Executive Council, in submitting the question of whether we shall hold our coming Convention or postpone the same for the duration of the war, was unstitutional, illegal, and without authority.

Some of the writers of these articles even go so far as to say that they will attempt to go into court and attempt to restrain the International officials from carrying out the will of the majority of our membership in this matter.

All of the men who have written these articles were delegates to the Toronto Convention which was held during the month of October, 1936, and evidently, from the contents of the articles sent broadcast, these men, who wrote these articles and signed them, seem to have very short memories in regards to their contention of this action being illegal, and, in order to clarify the situation, I am herewith explaining the action of the Toronto Convention in reference to this subject matter.

On page 18 of the Official Proceedings of the Toronto Convention, under the caption "Lawsuits", will be found the following recommendation of the General President, which was referred to the Committee on President's Report:

"Since our last Convention, the International Union has been involved in six lawsuits:

"1—In reference to the action of the Executive Council of the International Union regarding the postponement of our Convention in 1932 and the repeal of the Convention Fund Law by referendum vote. All litigation in reference to the postponement of the Convention was withdrawn from the Court of Appeals. I am firmly of the opinion that this Convention should enact some legislation that would eliminate the possibility of any reoccurrence of this kind of incorporating into the constitution a provision that would allow the officers of the International Union in cases of emergency, to submit to a referendum vote of our membership, any such emergency propositions when they arise."

On page 127, will be found the Report of the Committee on President's Report, dealing with this subject matter:

"Under the caption of "Lawsuits" we commend the general office for the diligence in handling these suits, and refer the President's expressed opinion in Case No. 1 to the attention of the Committee on Law, and request the privilege of meeting with that Committee for the purpose of drafting resolutions governing referendums and providing that referendums shall be extended over a period of four months.

"Signed: Ora Kress, David McVey, Walt. Matthews, J. J. Langan, G. W. Stevenson, Jno. Budd, Frank R. Smith.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: You have heard the report of the Committee; what is your pleasure? It has been regularly moved and seconded that the report of the Committee be adopted. You have heard the motion, are you ready for the question?

"DEL. McVEY: Mr. President, in regard to this report, I think it is necessary that a little explanation be made as to what the Committee did.

"In the first place, the article captioned 'Wood Lathing' was referred to the Committee on Law because we felt that that is where it belonged. The other one that was of vital importance and which took up much of the time of the Committee was that recommendation in No. 1 under 'Suits,' calling for a referendum. The recommendation of the General President is that referendums be allowed owing to the fact that they are not in our constitution. The Committee was all in favor of a referendum. We believe that is one of the rights of democratic government. The Committee did not agree that it was right to send out a referendum and ask for a referendum and expect a reply back by the end of that month or the following month. Anything that is of vital importance to this organization should be given some consideration. For that reason, the Committee feels that an opportunity should be given to the proponents of a measure to be submitted to referendum and to the opponents; and for that reason our journal, or our paper, should be used for both sides to present their opinions for a period of three or four months, as the case may be before a vote is taken.

"There is something in the way of carrying on a referendum, too, that possibly should be taken up in this resolution. While I am in favor of democracy in the form of referendum, I believe a referendum does not mean that the local Secretary may vote the whole membership of that local. If we are going to have a referendum, that means the personal vote of each and every one. If the men are not interested enough to come to the meeting and vote, they are not taking an interest in their organization, and the Secretary of the local should not plump the whole local in the vote. I say the matter should be taken up—possibly it cannot be done by a resolution, but perhaps some Committee will have to work out a solution; but if we are going back to what we call the democratic way of doing business, let us do it democratically and have a real referendum.

"I know in the past that such measures have been taken; that the Secretary of the local has voted the whole local and that is not democratic; neither is it giving a fair and square break to the other parties who are interested in a clean election. And so I say to you that if we believe in clean elections, and want such a thing to come about, let us practise it in our organization.

"I think some serious attention should be given to the matter of conducting a referendum vote, so that the rank and file of our organization may be able to express their own opinions and not the opinions of some of the officials of the organization. (Applause.)

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: The question recurs on the adoption of the report of the Committee. I want to say that the proposal for the referendum was satisfactory to me, but the referendum was only to be used in emergency cases.

"DEL. McVEY: I understand that, Mr. President, but in these emergency cases we should have an opportunity to think it over.

"DEL. FRANK: Mr. President, we believe that when a referendum vote is taken, as was the case in the last referendum, a secret ballot was marked by the individual member, placed in a sealed envelope, and turned over to the Secretary.

"From the remarks of Brother McVey, I would conclude that this was not the procedure followed by all of the local unions, and if they did not allow that procedure, and if any secretary voted for the membership, it was an unlawful act, according to the rules and procedures set forth by the International office with reference to the referendum vote.

"We believe that the principles of trades unions and democracy are the real foundation of a true labor movement; and we further believe that if there is a referendum vote, it should be preceded with a period for discussion. Secondly, the members should vote as they do in any other election. Further, there should be a committee on ballots, and the Secretary, together with that Committee, should know the results of the vote, and then forward to headquarters the results in the form of an affidavit, if necessary. I think you will agree with me that there is considerable dissension when the vote is sent in and the secretary or no one else knows the result of it. For instance, if you permitted a man here to run for office, and you put your ballot in an envelope and turned it over to him, he would have a good chance of having a unanimous election.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: I want to say for the benefit of Brother Frank that the locals did the voting and not the International. We only counted the ballots, we did not vote them.

"All those in favor of the adoption of the report will signify in the usual manner by saying 'Aye'; contrary? The 'Ayes' have it, and it is so ordered.

"DEL. HAGEN: Mr. President, I am ready now with the report of the Committee on the Secretary-Treasurer's report.

"DEL. McVEY: Mr. President, before you go into that, may I make a motion? I move, Mr. President, that the Committee on Constitution and Law be requested to draw up a resolution on the lines as outlined by the President's report, pertaining to the referendum vote.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: You mean to bring it in to this convention?

"DEL. McVEY: Yes, as a resolution.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: It is not assured yet as to whether the committee will recommend it or reject the recommendation. You are just simply referring it. You have got nothing to it in so far as recommending that it be adopted. Now, if they recommend the adoption of that suggestion, then we would have to appoint a committee to draw up some sort of a plan.

"DEL. McVEY: The only thing I was trying to do was to pass the job on to them.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: Did the committee make a recommendation in reference to the referendum, or did it just refer the subject matter to the committee on law?

"DEL. KRESS: Let me read it again. (Again read the committee's report on the President's Report.)

"In other words, we are just commending the general office for their diligence in handling those suits. We are complying with his opinion that the matter be referred to the Law Committee, and this Committee wants to meet with the Law Committee in the drafting out of that resolution.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: The Committee on the President's Report will meet with the Law Committee and help to draw up the plan.

"DEL. NEIL HAGGERTY, Southern California District Council: In view of the fact that the Resolutions Committee has so much work ahead of it, it is not feasible to load on it the additional burden of drafting up this resolution as suggested by Bro. McVey, who stated that he wished to duck this job, I don't want to duck it, as I think that the Committee on the President's Report is more familiar with this subject, and therefore would be the proper group to draft this resolution for presentation to the Resolution and Law Committee, for its consideration and presentation to the Convention.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: If there is no objection the Committee can proceed to draw that up, and if the Law Committee adopts the change in the Constitution, then they can submit that as the change in Constitution."

I am herewith quoting for the benefit of the membership that portion of the Resolutions and Laws Committee Report which can be found on page 195 of the Toronto Convention Proceedings of 1936, and which is as follows:

"DEL. C. J. HAGGERTY, Southern California District Council, for the Resolutions and Laws Committee: We overlooked No. 71 presented by the Committee on the President's report at the request of this convention to our Committee. It is printed on page 150 of the Thursday Morning proceedings. The resolution reads:

"WHEREAS, at the present there are no provisions in our International Constitution governing a referendum on a matter of extreme emergency,

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that a section be inserted into our International Constitution under the caption "Referendum" providing that a period of three months shall be given in which discussion in our official journal the "Lather" shall be afforded to the proponents and opponents of the emergency measure proposed,

"It shall be the duty of the General Secretary-Treasurer to submit the proposal to each and every local at least one week prior to the three month discussion period mentioned above. The General Secretary shall prepare the ballots with the proposal printed thereon and squares for the affirmative and negative votes. He shall also prepare tabulation sheets, these shall be sent to the local unions in sufficient time for the referendum. The date to be set by the general office. The local secretary shall notify in writing all members of the time and place of referendum which shall be by secret vote. The ballots shall be counted by a committee of tellers elected by local union and the results of the tabulation thereof be forwarded to headquarters within three days after voting. Failure to comply with these provisions governing the referendum by any local will be punishable by fine not to exceed $500 and the ballots of the offending local disqualified."

"Submitted by Ora A. Kress, Buckeye State Council, D. A. McVey, Local 74, and Geo. Stevenson, Local 39.

"Your committee recommends the adoption of the report. I move the Committee's recommendation be adopted.

"Seconded.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: It has been moved and seconded, That the recommendation of the Committee be adopted. Are you ready for the question?

"DEL. W. P. EDWARDS, Local 378: If we give three months, that means three issues of the Journal to the discussion of any subject, you should have to have a journal a foot thick to mail to the membership of this organization. Who is going to pay for that? There is no provision in the resolutions providing for the payment of that. I think that if the delegates wish to put their view before the Locals they should take it upon themselves and mail the copies to them themselves instead of putting the expense on the International.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: It may possibly be that the provisions of this referendum may never be used, but if occasion should arise we can then submit to a referendum without having any kick.

"All those in favor of adopting the report of the Committee will signify by saying "Aye." Aye. Contrary. The Ayes have it, and it is so ordered.

"DEL. HAGGERTY: That completes the report of the Committee.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: If there is no objection, the Report of the Committee on Resolutions and Laws can now be adopted as a whole.

Moved and seconded that the Report of the Committee on Resolutions and Laws be adopted as a whole.

"PRESIDENT McSORLEY: It has been regularly moved and seconded, That the Report of the Committee on Resolutions and Laws be adopted as a whole. Are you ready for the question? If so, will you signify your consent by saying Aye. Contrary? The Ayes have it, and it is so ordered."

I have submitted the above portions of the Proceedings for the purpose of clarifying the erroneous statements contained in many of these letters and many of the articles in the journal, and correct any wrong impression among the membership of our International Union in reference to the legality of the submission of this subject matter for the consideration of the rank and file of our organization.

The action of the convention speaks for itself and refutes all of the statements made by the men who have sent out these letters and who have signed them, in fact four of them that have signed them were delegates to this Convention.

My advice to the membership is to vote upon this subject as their conscience dictates to them. If they believe it is to the best interest of the International Union to postpone the Convention for the duration of the war, they should vote that way, and if they believe otherwise, they shou'd vote against postponing it, and as the law prescribes the vote shall be by a secret ballot of the individual members, and each member shall have the right to vote as his conscience dictates without the interference of any one, and he should vote in the manner he believes that his local union will be best served, as well as the interests of the International Union in general. I am

Fraternally yours,
William J. McSorley, General President.

WHO OWNS PANAMA?

If you were asked to name the country which owns the Panama Canal, what would you reply?

Many persons—perhaps most—might say the United States, but the answer would not be quite right. The owner of the canal is the Republic of Panama. The United States rents it.

The lease of the United States can last "for all time," and that is almost the same as owning it. Yet the United States only leases it, paying Panama 250 thousand dollars per year from 1913 onward.

That sum may not seem very large in these times, when millions of dollars are being spent each hours of the day. To the little republic in the torrid zone, however, a quarter of a million dollars a year is welcome rent.

Panama may be called "little" when we compare it with most countries of Latin America. On the other hand, it is not just a tiny corner of the world. It contains more land than Holland and Belgium put together.

Panama used to be a part of Colombia, but in 1903 was declared a free republic. Since then it has chosen its own law-makers, but has been guided and helped in more than one way by the United States. The American government feels the need of helping Panama in order to guard its interests in the Canal Zone.

Panama is a land of mountains, rivers, forests and jungles. More than 350 rivers flow through it. Most of these are small, but a few are large. Heavy rainfall keeps the rivers from running dry.

When the Spaniards were carting treasure out of South America in early days, much of the gold and silver passed through Panama. Vessels sailed from ports of Perú northward to the coast of Panama. There they were unloaded, and the metals were taken across the isthmus to the coast of the Caribbean sea, to be loaded again on sea-going vessels. Pirates and other robbers sometimes seized the treasure before it could be taken away from Panama.—The Plasterer and Cement Finisher.

SAVE ON WRAPPINGS

If everybody cuts the use of paper for grocery bags 50 percent, there will be 300,000 tons of paper freed for other more essential uses in the war, says "Consumers' Guide," publication of the Consumers' Counsel Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. See if you can cut in half, or even more, the number of bags you use.

WIT AND HUMOR

Hotel Keeper—Mr. McTavish, come out here and look at this marvelous rainbow.

Cautious Tourist—How much extra is it?

———o———

"The best way to enjoy perfect health is to rise at 5 every morning and have a cold bath," says a doctor.

Oh, well, what's the next best way?

———o———

A city court official, after explaining the history of the American flag to a group of aliens seeking citizenship papers, asked one of them: "Tell me, what flies over the city hall?"

The alien blinked a minute, and replied: "Peejins."

———o———

Someone once described a diplomat as a man who can make his wife believe she would look fat in a fur coat.

———o———

The greatest case of misplaced confidence on record is that of the circus dog who buried a big, fat, juicy bone at the foot of the main prop of the big tent when the circus played in Los Angeles, and then wore his paws half off trying to dig it up when the circus played in San Francisco.

———o———

Usually when a man boasts that "he runs things at his home," he means the washing machine, vacuum cleaner, and perhaps the cream separator.

———o———

At a newspaper men's convention the famous editor, "Marse" Henry Watterson, once related the most amusing typographical error he had ever seen.

A New York newspaper used to print its shipping news on the same page as the obituaries. One morning the readers found two of the captions exchanged, resulting in a long list of respectable names being set forth under the marine heading: "Passed Through Hell Gate Yesterday."

———o———

Bride—Who is the man in the blue coat, darling?

Groom—That's the umpire, dear.

Bride—Why does he wear that funny wire thing over his face?

Groom—To keep from biting the ball players, precious.

———o———

Aunt Minnie was taking her first trip on a train. When the conductor came through the car and called for tickets, Auntie readily gave up hers. A few minutes later the train boy, coming through, called "chewing gum."

"Never," cried Aunt Minnie, bravely. "You can take my ticket, but not my gum."

An English paper published this advertisement:

"For sale: Baker's business; good trade; large oven; present owner been in it for seven years; good reasons for leaving."

———o———

Disappointed Candidate—I thought sure I heard the voice of the people calling me.

Friend—It must have been yourself thinking out loud.

———o———

"By Jove," said a stranger at a dance, "what a long and lanky girl that is over there."

"Hush!" his host whispered. "She used to be long and lanky—but nowadays she's tall and stately. She's just inherited $100,000.

———o———

An inmate of the asylum approached the painter hard at work on the ceiling. "Hey, mister, have you got a good hold on that brush?"

"I think so—why?"

"Well, hang on tight—I'm gonna move this ladder."

———o———

Mrs..—John, taste this an tell me what you think it is.

Mr.—Tastes like soda to me.

Mrs.—That's what I told Bridget. She says it is rat poison. Taste it again and make sure.

———o———

Barber (whispering to new helper): "Here comes a man for a shave."

Helper: "Let me practice on him."

Barber: "All right, but be careful and not cut yourself."

———o———

Jerry—Why do you say there's too much favoritism in your family?

Tom—Well, when I bite my nails I get into trouble; but when baby puts his foot in his mouth it's cute.

———o———

At a recent women's debating society the subject, "Which is the most useful—a man or a strawberry?" was never settled because the unmarried women voted for the man and the married ones all voted for the strawberry.

PUTTING 10% OF YOUR EARNINGS INTO WAR BONDS ISN'T SACRIFICE... It's Saving!

Let's not kid ourselves.

Our buying War Bonds isn't a sacrifice even though the money's badly needed for our country's Victory.

We're not giving anything; we're being paid for lending.

The Government even guarantees to return our money safe and sound—plus interest.

So where does the sacrifice come in? It doesn't!

Unless you think taking a bus instead of your car compares with wading across a river with a Jap machine gun pouring bullets at you . . .

Unless you think resting on your porch in the evening instead of going out on a party compares with crouching on your knees all night in a mud-upholstered fox hole . . .

Unless you think spending less and saving more compares with risking your life for your country . . .

Nobody thinks so. "Risking your life for your country" is a privilege that we who are left behind would gladly share, if we could.

And that's why, if anybody's been buying a Bond now and then and thought he was doing his part, he's been kidding himself.

That's why, unless we want Hitler and the Japs to come over and take—not borrow—100 percent of what we've built in a free America, we'd better put at least 10 percent of our pay into War Bonds every pay day.

EVERYBODY EVERY PAYDAY 10%

MAKE EVERY PAY DAY "BOND DAY"

Hold On! Deliverance Is Coming.

AFL Secretary George Meany's address to the workers of Europe short-waved in various languages Sunday, June 28, 1942.

Men and women of France, of Poland, of Norway, of Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands; men and women of Greece and Yugoslavia and of all the nations which are today ground down under the cruel heel of the Nazis—to each of you I bring a word of good cheer from the aroused and angry workers of America.

Their message to you, which they have asked me to convey to you in this broadcast across the ocean, is very simple, to the point and, I feel confident, will be welcomed by you. The message of American labor to our brothers and sisters in Europe is this:

"The hour of deliverance, the day when the Nazi yoke will be lifted from your backs, the day when you can again live in peace, in freedom and in prosperity, is coming. Take heart! Hold on! Tens of thousands of tanks and tens of thousands of planes are on their way to continental Europe, and America will see to it that again, as in 1918, the Germans will be beaten. And this time we will finish the job!"

That is the message of the working men and women of America to you, our brother workers in the Old World, who today live under the lash of Hitlerism. And you can rest assured that these are not mere words. Our pledge to you that deliverance is coming is backed up by the greatest miracle of production in the history of the world.

You know America as the foremost mass-production nation on earth. You know how our lightning-fast manufacturing processes, in the days of peace, gave us millions of automobiles, electric refrigerators, radio sets and other commodities. You have heard of the assembly-line methods which sent completed cars out of the mammoth motor factories in Detroit at the rate of hundreds per day. Speed, speed and still more speed—that is the way we manufacture things in America.

Today, because of the appearance in the world of the mad dog who calls himself Hitler, the workers are no longer manufacturing peacetime articles. Today, instead of automobiles, we here in America —millions of workers, men and women alike—are keeping the plants of America going seven days a week, twenty-four hours a day, manufacturing thousands of airplanes, thousands of tanks, tens of thousands of bombs like those the men of the R. A. F. showered down upon Cologne.

In scores of shipyards in all parts of our country ships are being manufactured in a fraction of the time that was required only a few years ago.

We are fashioning the tools of deliverance so rapidly that the 1942 production goals of our great President are certain to be surpassed by a wide margin, although, frankly, at the time they were announced many of us, despite our faith in the productive capacity of American industry, regarded the quotas as impossible to fill.

In the realm of airplanes alone, our President called for 60,000 during the year 1942. At least that number will be built—actually a great many more. But just take 60,000 planes in one year! Think of it! Think of what the R. A. F. did to Cologne with a thousand ships, and you have some idea of what an overpowering air force America is building up—an air force that will play its full part in wiping Hitler and his fellow assassins off the face of the earth.

As with airplanes so with all the other implements of modern, mechanized warfare. We are building everything that can be effective in the task of rolling the Nazis back to Berlin. The equipment which we are building is of the finest quality. And we are building all these things with the greatest speed and efficiency.

Only a few days ago, Captain Oliver Lytelton, the British production director, visited one of our Midwestern cities where production is going full blast, and upon returning to Washington he said: "If Hitler could only have seen what I have seen, I am sure that he would throw in his hand and cut his throat."

Mind you, this was upon seeing the insides of only one of our great war production centers. What Captain Lyttelton saw going on in that Midwestern city goes on every day and every night, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, 168 hours per week, in hundreds of production centers throughout the length and breadth of America. So when we American workers promise you, solemnly, that deliverance is coming, you can have faith not only that we are coming, but that we are coming with the armament against which no dictator can long stand.

The millions of men and women who make up the American labor movement are supporting the war against Hitlerism with all their skill and all their strength. We are standing behind our commander-in-chief, President Roosevelt. Millions of workers are already in our Army. The rest of us are on the job, our sleeves rolled up, working as hard as it is humanly possible to work. American labor has voluntarily relinquished the right to strike for the duration of the war. Whatever sacrifices are found necessary to help the war effort we workers have accepted cheerfully.

All this we are doing because we know that, no matter what the cost, no matter how high the price in blood and treasure, Hitlerism must be destroyed.

SUSPENDED REINFORCED CONCR ETE CEILING AND FLOOR 125x250

COMPLETED SUSPENDED CONCRETE FLOOR

—Courtesy Harry J. Hagen.

TOP—Suspended 3-inch thick concrete ceiling recently installed by lathers in St. Louis. Construction eliminated concrete beams and columns on gymnasium floor beneath and provided solid floor for installation of all piping above. Wood shoring was first erected by carpenters. Lathers then placed double ¾" channels, interlocked at 18" intervals on shoring. Wire mesh was placed over the channels and other channels placed over the wire mesh at right angles to those on bottom, also at 18" intervals. All material was tied together and hangers were dropped at 3-foot intervals from steel joist above, and slipped under bottom channels, where upper channels crossed, and hangers drawn up taut. Hangers were staggered. Concrete was then poured. Metal lath was also used over steel joist on roof.

BOTTOM—Finished 3-inch concrete floor. Hangers show up better in this photo. Hy-rib lath also used on roof above. This suspended floor served the double purpose of providing a solid floor for pipe work installation above and it eliminated all beams and columns in ceiling of gymnasium below.

ACOUSTICAL CEILINGS

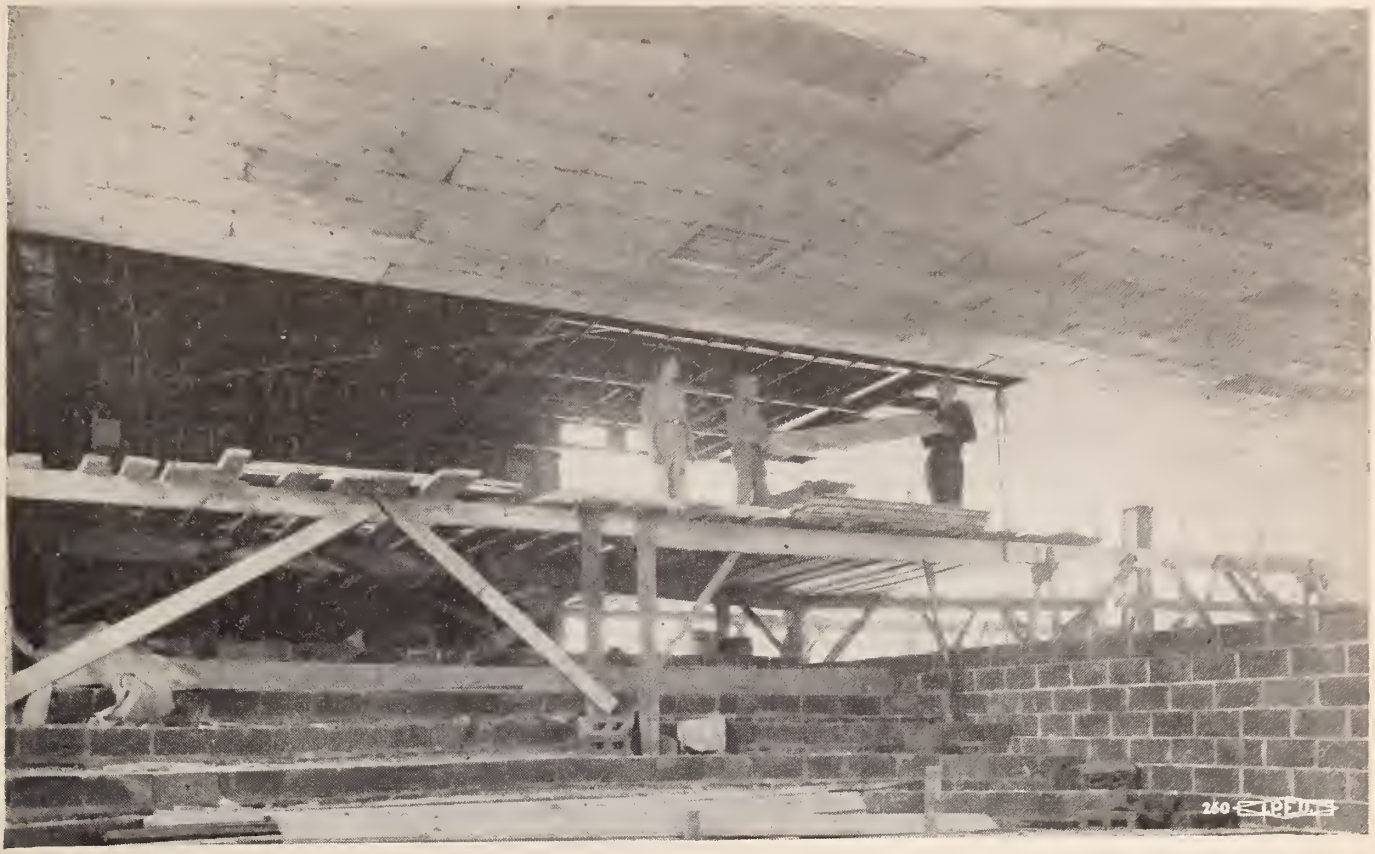

Members of Local 73 installing U. S. G. Perfatone acoustic ceiling. This system is similar to Johns-Manville Sanacoustic tile ceiling, consisting of 12x24 acoustic metal pans. On this job, the carriers were anchored to a suspended metal lath and plaster ceiling with toggles. Slotted T-furring was attached to the carriers and the pans then slipped into furring.

One of three acoustic ceilings recently installed in Thompson's Restaurants, St. Louis. Two of the ceilings are Sanacoustic (Johns-Manville), and one is Perfatone (USG), both metal pan type ceilings. Lathers placed the hangers, carriers, and furring. Sheet metal workers placed the pans.

RICHMOND LATHERS INSTALLING THERMAX BOARD

Lathers installing Thermax Board on the Belgium Building, Virginia Union University, Richmond, Va.. Standing, l. to r.: James T. Duggan, Porter P. Nicholas, Jack T. Alexander.

Lathers tied ¾ in. channels direct to 4 in ceiling channels and then tied the Thermax Board direct to the ¾ in. channels. This board was tied up with No. 16 gauge tie-wire and ties were made on top of ¾ in. channels to hold board. Carpenters sawed the board for the lathers and lathers put the boards up and tied them. —Courtesy Local 63

Hold On! Deliverance Is Coming

Hitlerism is a plague, and we can deal with it in only one way. We must wipe it out. American labor is determined that it shall be wiped out and is prepared to do anything our government calls upon us to do to that end.

The wage-earners of America understand clearly that nothing can be of importance today except the attainment of victory—complete, uncompromising victory over the Nazis. We understand clearly that the brutal history of Nazism in every country Hitler has conquered is a history of labor oppression. Hitler's first act in Germany and his first acts in all the nations he has overrun have been to destroy the trade unions, to imprison and murder union officials. By his acts of pillage, torture and murder against the decent, honest working people of Europe, Adolf Hitler has made this war labor's war. He has made this war American labor's war—to his sorrow.

Meanwhile, men and women of the conquered nations, keep your courage up. Hold yourselves in readiness to rise against the enemy when the opportune hour arrives. As General Marshall, the American Chief of Staff, said the other day, the American armies will again land in France. Be ready when that happy moment comes. In the meantime, be on the alert. Whenever possible, hinder and harass the Huns now on the soil of your country.

Workers of Europe, you are not alone in the world. You have friends, millions of friends, on this side of the Atlantic. Friends whose sole aim in life today is to destroy the monsters who look like men but who have the hearst and minds of the beasts of the jungle.

—o—

To have what we want is riches, but to be able to do without is power.—G. Macdonald.

—o—

No man ever sank under the burden of the day. It is when tomorrow's burden is added to the burden of today that the weight is more than a man can bear.—George MacDonald.

METAL LATH AND PLASTER WALLS AND CEILINGS RESIST FIRE IN HOSPITAL GROUP

(Northwest Plastering Industries)

Although the Army and FBI say "nix" on photographic evidence, members of our editorial board have just witnessed one of the most amazing demonstrations of the fire resisting effects of metal lath and plaster yet encountered in the war program.

Recently a disastrous fire at Walla Walla destroyed 21 frame buildings in the hospital group, with a loss of more than $150,000. The last of the buildings in the row featured metal lath and cement plaster walls and ceilings.

Arthur R. Lauch, president of the plastering contracting firm who did the work, made a personal inspection of the damage.

To his amazement, though the exterior siding, the studs, floors, joists and roof of the cement plastered building were completely destroyed, the walls and ceilings remained as integral units, hard and without cracks.

"They looked like boxes which had been cast," declared Lauch; "if the exteriors had been stucco and the floors fireproof I feel sure the fire would have been prevented."

Army officials sent to inspect the damage were reported as amazed at the tangible proof of plaster and stucco's fire-resisting qualities.

TO OUR SECRETARIES

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

The September LATHER will carry a list of WAR SAVINGS BONDS purchased by our local unions.

We would greatly appreciate your informing us by return mail of any War Savings Bonds bought by your local unions to date and not previously reported to headquarters.

A great many of our members have also invested their earnings and savings in War Savings Bonds. Nothing will please us more than to give credit to these unsung heroes on the home front and if you will give us the total individual purchases by the entire membership of your local unions and their families, these totals will be published as separate items, along with total local purchases.

Complete information will be greatly appreciated by return mail. With best wishes, I am

Fraternally yours,

TERRY FORD,

General Secretary-Treasurer.

NAVY WANTS 65,000 BUILDING MEN

The United States Navy has issued an urgent call for 65,000 construction mechanics to enlist immediately for overseas construction work. Any workman, between the age of 17 to 50 years of age, may apply at his nearest Naval Recruiting Station for complete details.

All applicants accepted will receive at least a rank of second-class seaman, to as high as chief petty officer, at wage scales running from $54 to $138 per month exclusive of any amounts which may accrue to the enlistee because of dependents. In addition to the wage scale and dependency allowances the worker is entitled to all the privileges accorded enlisted personnel of the armed forces, such as housing, food, clothing, transportation, medical and dental care and other incidentals.

Commander E. J. Spaulding in outlining the procedure says that each candidate should apply at the nearest Naval Recruiting Office. He will be interviewed by an engineer from the Navy Department to determine his rank, which will be based on three primary requisites: experience, age and ability. The enlistee will not be hampered by the rigid physical requirements expected from combat recruits.

Upon acceptance and classification the candidate is to proceed to the Norfolk, Va., Naval Training Base for a 21-day incubation or quarantine period. While at Norfolk he will receive the necessary innoculations required by all foreign service men and an additional check will be made in relation to his classification.

Following 21 days at Norfolk all candidates will proceed to California for three to four weeks of additional preparation. While at the West Coast station he will receive a small amount of military training.

Each construction company, although not a fighting unit, will be armed and equipped for any eventuality. The entire program before shipment to a foreign station will not take more than seven weeks and it is the desire of the Navy that the construction companies be able to defend themselves.

There will be 226 men assigned to each company, of which some 60 shall be classed as laborers. Thus each mechanic will be asked only to perform the work for which he is best suited, as there will be several types of construction experts in each company.

Immediate plans call for 54 battalions of "Seabees" with additional expansion later. The Navy shall eventually enlist some 100,000 American workmen on these projects and hopes to get most of its personnel from the ranks of the American Federation of Labor.

The men in the ranks of the construction regi-

PROPER FOOD FOR DEFENSE

What and Why the B Complex

This article on Vitamin B is by Dr. Walter H. Eddy, Professor Emeritus of Columbia University and published by the courtesy of the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

Way back in 1915, when we first began to dig vitamins out of foods, we found we could get one by simply soaking certain foods like yeast and rice polishings in water. This vitamin wasn't like the first one obtained, Vitamin A. That vitamin was insoluble in water but extractable by fat solvents such as ether. This vitamin was "water-soluble" and so, in 1915, Dr. E. V. McCollum christened it "water-soluble B" or Vitamin B.

Today there isn't any Vitamin B! There are itamins B-1, B-2 and B-6. Why?

For the simple reason that when we began to fish in the water extracts we found we had more than than one vitamin, in fact a school of them; for, today, water extracts of yeast, wheat germ, whole cereals, liver, and other foods have yielded twelve distinct and different vitamins, distinct in chemical structure and in action. This group is known today as the Natural B Complex. It's simply a mixture of vitamins planted by Nature in certain foods and having one property in common, water-solubility.

Some of these B Complex vitamins have already attained fame for their service to man. Vitamin B-1, for example, for its prevention of the disease of beriberi that used to afflict the entire Orient, for its control of appetite and its ability to get energy out of the foods we eat. We know today that this particular vitamin is essential to normal nerves and Dr. Russel Wilder of the Mayo Cilnis calls it the "morale" vitamin because of its ability to reduce nerve irritability. If you tire easily, get a load of this vitamin and it will prove your friend.

But your body doesn't rely on this vitamin alone to get power to work out of the foods we eat. A number of others in the B Complex share this job—notably, what we now call Vitamin B-2 or Riboflavin and the one whose name sounds like nicotine but isn't, Nicotinic Acid. Incidentally, people got so confused over the similarity of this name to the name of the poison that is in cigarett smoke that the Food and Drug Administration has named it "Niacin."

Like B-1, however, these two vitamins also perform other jobs for us besides getting energy out of foods. We get itching and burning of eyes, sensitivity to light, and cracks in the skin at the corners of the lips and in the folds of skin between nose and cheek unless the diet contains sufficient riboflavin. Nicotinic Acid or niacin proved to be the long sought for cure, and preventive of, the dread disease called pellagra, so prevalent in certain parts of our South. We already know a lot about these three B Complex factors; B-1, B-2, and Niacin, but they aren't the only important members of the B Complex. There's another group of three vitamins that are attracting attention just now because they appear to control hair coloration, the so-called "anti-gray hair" vitamins, namely Pantothenic Acid, Para-amino-benzoic Acid and Inositol,

The next time you look at a B Complex preparation note how the label reads. You'll find it runs something like this: "Each capsule contains the full adult daily requirement of Vitamin B-2, (and also) so many micrograms of Nicotinic Acid and of Pantothenic acid, etc., the human need for which has not been established." That last phrase is for your protection. It doesn't mean that these vitamins aren't important but simply that we do not yet know just how the body uses them or just how much of each, you and I need in our daily diet. We know, for example, that some people who have used the anti-gray hair vitamins have had their hair color restored. On others no effects was produced. We don't know just why these discordant results and sadly need more data on behavior and dosage.

Impregnated cottons are being tried for camouflage. Variegated design for fabric to cover ammunition in woods has already been successfully developed, as have been sand colored goods for waterfronts and simulated ground material which blends with gravel or fields.

Common lipsticks were put in 65,000 first-aid belts being distributed by the Massachusetts Committee on Public Safety to air raid wardens, because lipsticks are the simplest means of writing on a person's forehead identification, classification of injuries and other information, such as the time that a tourniquet has been applied.

Presses that once turned out plastic bottle caps for beauty aids now produce plastic parts for airplanes.

NAVY WANTS BUILDING MEN

ments are to include, among others, mechanics, carpenters, bricklayers, electricians, power-plant operators, blacksmiths, metalsmiths, drillers, drivers, wharf builders, etc., and all will do shore duty at naval bases outside the continental limits of the United States.

Additional information regarding these enlistments may be had by writing to Commander E. J. Spaulding, Room 1305, Navy Building, Washington, D. C.

DON'T TELL THE ENEMY

There are a lot of seamen's families pretty worried about their men out on enemy-infested waters. You can't keep them from being in some danger, but the less the enemy knows, the safer they are.

That's why the Navy Department issued instructions on addressing mail to ships.

Even if you know that a sea-going ship is at a certain harbor, don't address mail there, the Navy Department said last week, explaining that to do so might reveal the ship's position to any person who sees or handles the letter, making it easier for this information to fall into the hands of the enemy.

Accurate location of ships is information which the enemy is anxious to obtain. There are only two post office addresses that should be used % Postmaster, New York, and % Postmaster, San Francisco, depending on which is nearer the man addressed. Example: John Doe, Seaman Second Class, USS CHARLESTON, % Postmaster, San Francisco.

Local addresses are proper, however, for men at shore stations, attached to District craft, ships building or under conversion, and Sea Frontier or Fleet units normally based at ports within the continental U. S.

WHAT IS MORALE?

Hitler is spending millions of dollars a year on psychological warfare, an attempt to split the American public by jealousies, by race or religious hatreds, by mutual distrust of labor and capital, by unwillingness to cooperate. Now the plan is to divide America from England and from Russia, to divide America internally into mutually distrustful, uncooperative groups. Hitler knows well that an army can fight only as well as the people think and feel.

And what is morale? It is not flags flying, although we need flags flying. It is not bands playing; it is not platform oratory. It is faith in a cause. It is unity in a purpose. It is a people confident that they are purposefully working toward victory in the practical aspects of total war. It is a people mobilized as one, prepared to work, sacrifice, fight for something greater than any individual. It is the united will of a great people directed by a high purpose toward a great end. We march and our marching and working is morale.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

George Bernard Moore

MISSING IN THE PHILIPPINES

This is Capt. George Bernard Moore, son of George T. Moore, business representative of Local 74, Chicago, Illinois, whom the War Department reports missing in action in the Philippines.

Capt. Moore has had military training since 1929 and was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1937. He has been in active duty since December 1939 and left for the Philippines, September 28, 1940.

The War Department has notified his parents that they do not know if he has been captured with General Wainwright or has been killed in action and if they do not hear from him within a period of one year, they will consider him as killed in action.

We are very sorry to have to report of this missing member of our organization, who was initiated in Local 74 on the night prior to his departure for the Philippines.

We hope for the best and trust that Brother Moore will receive some favorable information regarding his son in the near future and that he will return to him safe and sound.

THERE'S A LITTLE DIFFERENCE!

They don't have any joint management and labor committees in Germany. There are guys with rifles and machine guns who see that both management and labor do what they're supposed to do. None of this voluntary stuff. To hell with anybody's rights.

This is the story told by a new pamphlet issued by the War Production Drive Headquarters for distribution to workers in defense plants.

"There's a little difference in the way the Nazis run a war production drive," the pamphlet points out.

"You've probably heard, too, about the way they bring workers in from the conquered countries. Sometimes they promise good pay and vacations with trips back home. (They did this with French workers, to lure them away from their families.) But the pay was phoney printing-press money. And the vacations were the Nazi idea of a joke. Some of those workers haven't seen their wives and kids since the early summer of 1940.

"The Poles were treated worse. The Nazis actually put ball-and-chains on the Poles they forced to work. The Russians have been treated worst of all. As the Nazis have retreated they've driven whole villages of Russian civilians before them, to be used as slave labor. If any Russian man or woman slowed up, or fell, he or she was shot dead. Nice people!

"Of course, you'd figure the Germans themselves would get a better break. They do. But not much. They're safe as long as they keep their mouths shut about the pay they get, the hours they work, the food they don't get. But whipping and beheading are still legal punishment for labor or management that doesn't obey every Nazi order.

"It's all very well to say we wouldn't stand for that stuff in America, but if we don't win this war we might have to stand for it. To win, we have to prove that free labor can out-produce slave labor, that voluntary committees can do a better job than bullies with guns, that a decent way of working and living can beat the Japanazi way!"

PEANUT OIL TO HELP RELIEVE SHORTAGES

Peanut oil is expected to help make up for shortages in fats and oils this year, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Government home economists say that peanut oil is good for frying, especially for frying potato chips and other fried foods that are served cold. Peanut oil, like other vegetable oils, is also said to be useful for greasing cake and bread tins economically because they form a continuous film on the pan.

A PEEP IS NOT A JEEP

The question of which is a jeep and which is a peep has been settled officially by the Armored Force News, publication of the enlisted men in the American "panzer" divisions. The little three-men reconnaissance car is a peep, and the larger five-passenger vehicle is a jeep.

A western editor sends in this one:

When a garage man makes a mistake, he adds it on your bill.

When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference.

When a lawyer makes a mistake, it was just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land.

When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it.

But when the editor makes a mistake—GOOD NIGHT!

Buy War Bonds to Make More Bombs for Hitler.

The U. S. military aircraft accident rate today is 68 per cent lower than it was 10 years ago.

WIT AND HUMOR

Officer: Soldier, hop on your motorcycle and deliver this message.

Soldier: Sorry, Sir, I just had it camouflaged and now I can't find it.

———o———

Daughter—Dad, what is your birthstone?

Father of Seven—My dear, I'm not quite sure, but I rather think it is a grindstone.

———o———

An admiral—a stickler for uniform—stopped opposite a very portly sailor whose medal-ribbon was an inch or so too low.

Fixing the man with his eye the admiral asked: "Did you get that medal for eating, my man?"

On the man replying, "No sir," the admiral rapped out: "Then why the deuce do you wear it on your stomach?"

———o———

Hubby—Why on earth must you feed every tramp that comes to the door?

Wifey—You've no idea what a joy it is to see a man eat a meal without finding fault with the cooking.

———o———

Doctor—Your husband, madame, is suffering either from overwork or excessive indulgence in alcoholic stimulants; it is difficult to say which.

Anxious Wife—Oh, doctor, I'm sure it's overwork! Why, he can't even go to the theater without hurrying out half a dozen times to see one of his partners.

———o———

A recruiting sergeant was trying to convince a half-wit that he wasn't mentally suited for the army. He asked him: "What would happen if I would cut off one of your ears?"

The fellow said, "I could hear just half as well."

"Well, what would happen if I cut off both your ears?"

"I couldn't see."

The sergeant said: "Well, why wouldn't you be able to see if I cut off both ears?" He thought he had him.

"Because my hat would fall down over my eyes."

———o———

The average woman has a vocabulary of only 1,800 words. It is a small stock, but think of the turnover.

———o———

Clever! Why, he was so darn clever he could make money faster than his wife and daughter could spend it.

"What made you quit your job?"

"Well, the boss called me in last week and said he was going to fire me. Then he fired me a couple of times. The next day he had a fellow in my place, and—well, that was too much. I handed in my resignation."

———o———

A man, pinned underneath his car after an auto accident, was being questioned by a policeman.

"Married?"

"No," said the man. "This is the worst fix I was ever in.

———o———

Wife—Goodness, George, this is not our baby. This is the wrong carriage.

Hubby—Shut up. This carriage has rubber tires on it.

———o———

Seeing her former suitor at a party, a girl decided to snub him.

"So sorry," she murmured when the hostess introduced him, "but I didn't get the name."

"I know you didn't," said the unabashed f. s., "but you certainly tried hard enough."

———o———

Lawyer (persisting)—You've heard what the last witness said, and yet your evidence is to the contrary. Am I to infer that you doubt her veracity?

Polite Young Man (waving a deprecating hand)—Not at all. I merely wish to make it clear what a liar I am if she's speaking the truth.

———o———

Doctor: "Did your teeth chatter, when you felt the chill coming on?"

Mrs. A.: "I don't know; they were lying on the table."

———o———

"The man with good clothes," says a psychologist, "is instinctively trusted."

Sure, sure. That's how he got the good clothes.

———o———

Employer (interviewing applicant for job): "Know anything about electricity?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is an armature?"

"A chap who boxes for nothin'!"

———o———

"What is a debtor, Pa?"

"A man who owes money."

"And what is a creditor?"

"The man who thinks he's going to get it."
